Sec. Rusk Not Sure Whether Soviets Keep Cuba Bargain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today that some Russian troops are being removed from Cuba and that more Soviet ships are on the way to the island.

But Rusk said he would make no "assessment" now of whether the Kremlin is meeting its promise to remove "several thousand" forces from Cuba by next Friday.

The secretary told a news conference that Russian ships have been moving into Cuba during the past two weeks and more are on the way. He said the available ships are enough to carry out the troop removal.

Rusk also said:

The United States will be "very much alert" to any threats to the security of Saudi Arabia and Jordan, which may be endangered by recent revolts in Iraq, Yemen and, today, Syria.

The United States must be willing to take "some risks" in a nuclear test ban because it is faced with "greater risks" of the spread of nuclear weapons, perhaps into irresponsible hands.

A large part of Rusk's news conference was devoted to the test ban issue. The administration is being criticized both by the Russians and by some scientists and members of Congress who feel the United States has already made too many concessions.

NEW YORK (AP)—Representatives of publishers and striking printers agreed today on a new contract, clearing the way for an end to New York's 91-day-old newspaper shutdown.

Key provisions of the pact are an increase in wages over a two-year period, plus a reduction in hours the second year, for a total package of $12.63.

Cost of the strike within the industry has been estimated in excess of $100 million.

There was no indication how soon eight closed newspapers, which before the strike printed 5½ million copies a day, might resume publication.

The agreement is subject to union ratification, but Mayor Robert F. Wagner said he assumed it would be ratified in view of its unanimous endorsement by local and international officers of the International Typographical Union, AFL-CIO, and by the publishers. Wagner made the announcement at 6:30 a.m. He had proposed the settlement shortly after midnight.

"This means that the shutdown involving the printers will end as soon as the union completes negotiations of certain so-called clean-up issues and ratifies the agreement," said Wagner.

"In addition," he said, "negotiations involving other unions, two of whom are still on strike, will likewise have to be completed."

Still on strike are unions representing stereotypers and mailers.

As outlined by Wagner, the third-party agreement he worked out—as accepted by negotiators for both sides—provides for a wage rise of $6.51 the first year of the contract and $6.12 the second.

Also included, Wagner said, are various terms to offset the effects of automation—called a prime issue in the dispute by the president of ITU Local 6, Bertram A. Powers. Asked for details, the mayor said it was complicated and he would rather not discuss it.

The mayor said there also was agreement in principle on a common expiration date of all union contracts, subject to approval by other craft unions and the American Newspaper Guild.

The mayor met first with publishers' representatives, then with members of the ITU executive committee, headed by International President Elmer Brown, who had come here from union headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Then followed a closed meeting with the Newspaper Unity Committee representing all 10 newspaper unions. In all, more than 18,000 of their members had been idled by the shutdown.

Asked whether he thought the package would be accepted by his local's 2,000 printers, Powers said: "I think so." He noted that there

Controversy Over 'Silence' Rages in Nation's Capital

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. George Mahon's plea that public officials keep quiet about American intelligence activities was welcome news to President Kennedy, and many members of Congress agreed "silence is golden."

The President, it was learned today, was immensely pleased when aides showed him news wire accounts of the Texas Democrat's speech Thursday on the House floor. There was good reason to believe Kennedy began making plans to grab the ball Mahon tossed into the air.

White House sources said, however, that the congressman acted on his own initiative, that Kennedy had no foreknowledge of the blistering attack on loose talk.

Mahon, chairman of the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee, said "officials in Moscow, Peking and Havana must applaud our stupidity in announcing publicly facts which they would gladly spend huge sums of money endeavoring to obtain."

He gave no specific examples and said the executive branch and the legislative, Republicans and Democrats alike, "must share the blame" for "making us the laughing stock of the world."

There was an immediate chorus of amens on Capitol Hill.

At the same time, Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., said he had called on Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to tell the American people whether Soviet ships recently reported en route to Cuba to remove Soviet troops actually were carrying missiles to the island.

In a news release from his office, Wilson said he had sent a letter to the secretary posing these questions:

"How many ships have actually arrived in Cuban ports ostensibly to return Soviet soldiers? Have our intelligence-gathering services

New Headquarters Of ADC Dedicated To Gen. Chidlaw

In impressive formal ceremonies Thursday the new headquarters for the Air Defense Command was formally dedicated in honor of Retired Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw, first commander of NORAD.

Several hundred persons were present for the dedication which saw the keys to the building turned over to the Air Force.

"In behalf of myself, my wife, my children and my grandchildren, I want to tell you how deeply, how sincerely, how humbly we feel about this honor you have bestowed on us," Gen. Chidlaw said.

He told those present that the occasion brought back memories of "dreams and hopes and wishes we had in the build-up period of the ADC."

Polaris Missile Fleet to Hide Along Shores

WASHINGTON (UPI)— NATO's Polaris missile fleet will hide in the Kattegat, the Skaggerak, the Firth of Clyde and the Dodecanese, it was learned today.

The Kattegat and Skaggerak are arms of the North Sea between the Scandinavian Peninsula and Denmark, the Firth of Clyde is on the west coast of Scotland and the Dodecanese Islands are between Greece and Turkey.

By hugging the shores of these European waters, the surface ships bearing NATO's Polaris missiles will be able to evade Soviet submarines, which need deeper water.

A high U. S. Navy officer explained it would be so difficult for the Soviet Union to track or maintain contact with the missile vessels, that only four or five could be destroyed with a single Communist volley.

The officer said that NATO countries could save about two years by creating a force of surface ships instead of submarines. Other sources have revealed that the U. S. plan envisions 200 missiles on 25 ships.

$5 Million Shopping Center Seen

Jack Howard, Unitco president, said here Thursday work would start on the project this year. Howard was here for dedication of the ADC building, named for Gen. Benjamin W. Childlaw (ret), first commander of North American Air Defense Command.

Plans were announced late last year that Montgomery Ward and Co. will build a large store in the area this spring. Howard said other businesses in the center will be a Safeway Store and a Skaggs Drug Store. A cafeteria and other stores also are planned.

The new shopping center will be located just east of the ADC building. Howard said the center will be "among the finest in Colorado."

"We're going to put up a center that both we and Colorado Springs can be proud of," he said.

The Ward store will use an eight - acre tract and the remainder of the center will occupy 10 acres.

Prisoner Ransom Treaty in Effect, Judge Declares

MIAMI (UPI)—A federal judge said Thursday that the Cuban prisoner ransom deal was, in effect, a treaty with Fidel Castro, and "I just don't think the President can treat with a foreign nation without Congress."

Judge Emett Choate, however, refused to restrain ransom shipments to Cuba and dismissed the U. S. government as defendant in a criminal suit brought by realtor Douglas Voorhees.

The suit challenged the legality of the $53 million ransom deal.

Voorhees contended that the ransom agreement violated the Logan Act in that certain firms made a private deal with a foreign government without the formal backing of the U. S. government.

Choate agreed, in part, with Voorhees' claims. He said in

Colorado to Have Five Missile Control Centers

GREELEY, Colo. (AP)—Colorado will have five control centers, each with a cluster of 10 missile sites, in the Minuteman Missile Project.

Eight centers will be located in Wyoming and seven in Nebraska.

An official of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, which has set up an office in Greeley, said drilling of holes is under way in some areas of Nebraska.

The official, Jim Cope, said some 400 to 500 carpenters and millwrights eventually will be employed on the work in the three states.

The Meredith Drilling Co. of Denver is using a 91,000-pound machine which first drills a hole sx feet in diameter, then reams it out to 15 feet. The machine is capable of drilling to depths of 110 feet.

The Colorado locations of the control centers are 12 miles east of Grover, 32 miles northeast of Grover, a mile north of New Raymer, 12 miles north of Stoneham and five miles west of Peetz.

Those in Wyoming are 12 miles northeast of Burns, nine miles northeast of Albin, 6½ miles southeast of Pine Bluffs, 16 miles southwest of Chugwater, 16 miles southeast of Chugwater, 12 miles south of Torrington, eight miles southeast of Wheatland, and 30 miles northeast of Cheyenne.

Centers in Nebraska will be nine miles southeast of Sidney, eight miles northwest of Sidney, 13 miles northeast of Sidney, 11 miles southeast of Kimball, 11 miles northwest of Kimball, four miles northeast of Harrisburg, and 13 miles northwest of Potter

Pro-Nasserites Claim Syria Following Revolt

By WEBB MCKINLEY

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Pro-Nasser army officers launched a revolution in Syria today and claimed control of the country. But Turkish officials in Ankara received reports of violent street fighting in Damascus.

Western diplomats in Cairo had reports from Damascus that no resistance to the coup had developed in the capital by mid-morning and street demonstrations in support of the army were taking place.

The rebels, broadcasting on Damascus Radio, pledged themselves to forge Arab unity "in the shortest possible time." They condemned Syria's withdrawal without saying they wanted to rejoin the U.A.R.

The U.S. Embassy in Cairo reported communications from Damascus indicated all Americans there were safe and were not affected by the coup.

Baghdad Radio said the Syrian rebels messaged Iraq that "we are in control" and "there in no need for any action on your part." The rebels said their situation was excellent.

The Turkish foreign ministry said top leaders of the Syrian government, including Premier Kha El Azem, had taken refuge in the Turkish Embassy in Damascus.

The pro-Nasser revolutionary regime in neighboring Iraq and Nasser's United Arab Republic quickly voiced all-out support for the Syrian revolutionists and warned against foreign intervention.

The warnings appeared directed at Israel and pro-Western Jordan. The Israeli army, facing the largest concentration of Syria's army on Israel's northeast frontier, was reported on the alert. But no special emergency measures were announced in Jeruslem.

Reports to Cairo said the rebels held the army headquarters in Damascus and were believed to have arrested the armed forces commander, Gen. Abdel Karim Zahraddim.

Arab Nationalism May Be Decided In Syrian Area

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The tortured heart of Arab nationalism is in Syria, its birthplace. In Syria may be the key to its future.

In the dusty, colorful streets of Damascus, the oldest continuous city in the world, there is a permanent atmosphere of tension and anxiety.

It is a strange atmosphere. You cannot put your finger on just what is wrong. The Damasienes have lived with the feeling for generations and they are fatalistic about it.

Syria has exploded many times, each time with repercussions throughout the Arab East. In an era of cold war and world tension, the explosions become progressively more dangerous. Unfortunately for Syria, her geography is far too important for her to be left alone in peace.

Cripple Creek Seen as Possible Site For Air Force Underground Facility

U.S. Rep. J. Edgar Chenoweth said Thursday that the "sensitivity" of the project would forbid any public announcement on what is planned for the Cripple Creek area.

However, in an interview with the Gazette Telegraph, the congressman confirmed that the plans involve a possible underground installation similar to NORAD's Hardsite project under Cheyenne Mountain.

"I can tell you this tho, and I want to emphasize it," Chenoweth said, "the surveys being made there are solely for the purposes of study and nothing else at this time."

Meanwhile, the Air Force also confirmed Thursday that it was considering Cripple Creek as a possible location for a deep underground support center.

At the same time, spokesmen said they were also considering a site near Pawnee City, Neb. The Air Force said it has been studying this project since last summer but emphasized that the surveys were solely for the purpose of obtaining information.

Chenoweth revealed that the Air Force first informed him of their plans to make a survey in the Cripple Creek region last September and at that time asked him not to make a public statement on the project.

Rep. Chenoweth was also told Feb. 6 that the Army Corps of Engineers would soon begin an inspection of mines in the Cripple Creek area and again was asked to say nothing on the project.

"Earlier this week I called them (the engineers) and asked what was happening. They told me they were ready to go into the mines and said they would be happy to come over and discuss the project with me if I wanted. I declined the offer," he said.

He explained that he felt it would be better if he knew nothing about the project until it was decided if the installation would definitely go in at Cripple Creek.

"I was told that the Army Corps of Engineers would seek rights of way into the mines there and I asked no more about it," Rep. Chenoweth said. "They said they preferred no public an-

Boost in State Expenditures Seen by Love

DENVER (UPI)— Gov. John Love released "rough guesses" Thursday predicting a 40 per cent increase in the state's operating expenditures in the next five years.

The projection statement released by the governor indicated that an abnormally low $46,000 would be available for capital construction in fiscal 1966-67. Love, in his budget message to the Legislature, recommended a capital construction outlay of $12,534,000 for the coming year.

The table of projections was prepared by Con Shea, state budget officer.

The projections are based on the governor's plan to keep income taxes at the present level, $8 million below what they were last year under former Gov. Steve McNichols tax program.

The governor said the state's financial problems would not necessitate a tax increase if he could hold present tax levels in the coming years.

System of Public Defenders Is Proposed in Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy asked Congress today to set up a system for appointment of public defenders to represent people who can't afford lawyers to defend them in federal criminal cases.

"Whenever the lack of money prevents a defendant from securing an experienced lawyer, trained investigator or technical expert, an unjust conviction may follow," the President said.

Kennedy sent the House and Senate a draft of legislation which he said would "diminish the role which poverty plays in our federal system of criminal justice."

The President said the bill would "assure effective legal representation for every man whose limited means would otherwise deprive him of an adequate defense against criminal charges."

Belching Better Than Blocking, Doc Declares

CHICAGO (AP) — If you feel like belching, belch.

Dr. Bargen said Wednesday that a person who tries to be polite by stifling a belch may develop serious gastronomic trouble.

If a person feels like belching, Dr. Bargen said, "he should go into a corner, open his mouth widely, and let the air come out."

He said attempts to block a belch by swallowing air may cause air to be trapped in the gastro-intestinal tract, which may cause distention and bloating.

Critical Spots Still Remain In Flood Zones

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Surging waters receded in most rivers and streams in the nation's flood belt from Indiana into the Southeast today and the danger of new major flooding appeared ended temporarily.

But there were some critical spots in the flood zones and ice jamming remained a serious threat in some areas.

No heavy rainfall was reported in the more than a dozen states which have been hit by the season's first serious flooding. However, there were patches of light rain and snow flurries in some parts of the Ohio River Valley, the hardest hit by the late winter overflows.

Minor flooding was reported in some other Eastern and Southern states but the heaviest damage was in Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Indiana. The floods, caused by heavy rains and melting snow, were blamed for at least 18 deaths. Property damage was estimated in the millions of dollars.

The nation's general weather pattern showed few changes. No

Death Strikes Once More Against Grand Ole Opry

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Personal tragedy, a theme in the mournful lyrics of country music, struck deeply into the lives of its stars and fans again Thursday with the death of singer Jack Anglin.

Anglin, the tenor of the nationally-known "Johnny and Jack" singing team, died when his car crashed into a tree.

Anglin was the fifth personality of the famed Grand Ole Opry to die accidentally within two days.

Hawkshaw Hawkins, Patsy Cline, Cowboy Copas and Randy Hughes, Miss Cline's manager, were killed Tuesday night when their light plane crashed in hilly, wooded country near Camden, Tenn.

They were returning here from a benefit show last weekend in Kansas City for the family of Cactus Jack Call, a country music disc jockey killed last year in an automobile accident.

The Anglin death was at least the fourth time recently that tragedy has struck the Opry, a showplace for the stars in the country music field.

Ira Louvin of the Louvin Brothers singing team was shot six times in a domestic quarrel recently and is still recuperating.

Anglin, born in Columbia, Tenn., joined Johnny Wright in 1937 and they first appeared on the Opry in 1952.

They were named the No. 1 country music duet in the nation each year from 1953 to 1958, recording such hits as "Oh Baby Mine" and "Poison Love."

The regular performance of the Opry will be interrupted for a brief memorial service Saturday night.

Sec. Rusk Not Sure Whether Soviets Keep Cuba Bargain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today that some Russian troops are being removed from Cuba and that more Soviet ships are on the way to the island.

But Rusk said he would make no "assessment" now of whether the Kremlin is meeting its promise to remove "several thousand" forces from Cuba by next Friday.

The secretary told a news conference that Russian ships have been moving into Cuba during the past two weeks and more are on the way. He said the available ships are enough to carry out the troop removal.

Rusk also said:

The United States will be "very much alert" to any threats to the security of Saudi Arabia and Jordan, which may be endangered by recent revolts in Iraq, Yemen and, today, Syria.

The United States must be willing to take "some risks" in a nuclear test ban because it is faced with "greater risks" of the spread of nuclear weapons, perhaps into irresponsible hands.

A large part of Rusk's news conference was devoted to the test ban issue. The administration is being criticized both by the Russians and by some scientists and members of Congress who feel the United States has already made too many concessions.

Polaris Missile Fleet to Hide Along Shores

WASHINGTON (UPI)— NATO's Polaris missile fleet will hide in the Kattegat, the Skaggerak, the Firth of Clyde and the Dodecanese, it was learned today.

The Kattegat and Skaggerak are arms of the North Sea between the Scandinavian Peninsula and Denmark, the Firth of Clyde is on the west coast of Scotland and the Dodecanese Islands are between Greece and Turkey.

By hugging the shores of these European waters, the surface ships bearing NATO's Polaris missiles will be able to evade Soviet submarines, which need deeper water.

A high U. S. Navy officer explained it would be so difficult for the Soviet Union to track or maintain contact with the missile vessels, that only four or five could be destroyed with a single Communist volley.

The officer said that NATO countries could save about two years by creating a force of surface ships instead of submarines. Other sources have revealed that the U. S. plan envisions 200 missiles on 25 ships.

Colorado to Have Five Missile Control Centers

GREELEY, Colo. (AP)—Colorado will have five control centers, each with a cluster of 10 missile sites, in the Minuteman Missile Project.

Eight centers will be located in Wyoming and seven in Nebraska.

An official of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, which has set up an office in Greeley, said drilling of holes is under way in some areas of Nebraska.

The official, Jim Cope, said some 400 to 500 carpenters and millwrights eventually will be employed on the work in the three states.

The Meredith Drilling Co. of Denver is using a 91,000-pound machine which first drills a hole six feet in diameter, then reams it out to 15 feet. The machine is capable of drilling to depths of 110 feet.

The Colorado locations of the control centers are 12 miles east of Grover, 32 miles northeast of Grover, a mile north of New Raymer, 12 miles north of Stoneham and five miles west of Peetz.

Those in Wyoming are 12 miles northeast of Burns, nine miles northeast of Albin, 6½ miles southeast of Pine Bluffs, 16 miles southwest of Chugwater, 16 miles southeast of Chugwater, 12 miles south of Torrington, eight miles southeast of Wheatland, and 30 miles northeast of Cheyenne.

Centers in Nebraska will be nine miles southeast of Sidney, eight miles northwest of Sidney, 15 miles northeast of Sidney, 11 miles southeast of Kimball, 11 miles northwest of Kimball, four miles northeast of Harrisburg, and 13 miles northwest of Potter.

Pro-Nasserites Claim Syria Following Revolt

By WEBB McKINLEY

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Pro-Nasser army officers launched a revolution in Syria today and claimed control of the country. But Turkish officials in Ankara received reports of violent street fighting in Damascus.

Western diplomats in Cairo had reports from Damascus that no resistance to the coup had developed in the capital by mid-morning and street demonstrations in support of the army were taking place.

The rebels, broadcasting on Damascus Radio, pledged themselves to forge Arab unity "in the shortest possible time." They condemned Syria's withdrawal without saying they wanted to rejoin the U.A.R.

The U.S. Embassy in Cairo reported communications from Damascus indicated all Americans there were safe and were not affected by the coup.

Baghdad Radio said the Syrian rebels messaged Iraq that "we are in control" and "there in no need for any action on your part." The rebels said their situation was excellent.

The Turkish foreign ministry said top leaders of the Syrian government, including Premier Kha El Azem, had taken refuge in the Turkish Embassy in Damascus.

The pro-Nasser revolutionary regime in neighboring Iraq and Nasser's United Arab Republic quickly voiced all-out support for the Syrian revolutionists and warned against foreign intervention.

The Israeli army, facing the largest concentration of Syria's army on Israel's northeast frontier, was reported on the alert. But no special emergency measures were announced in Jeruslem.

Reports to Cairo said the rebels held the army headquarters in Damascus and were believed to have arrested the armed forces commander, Gen. Abdel Karim Zahraddim.

Arab Nationalism May Be Decided In Syrian Area

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The tortured heart of Arab nationalism is in Syria, its birthplace. In Syria may be the key to its future.

In the dusty, colorful streets of Damascus, the oldest continuous city in the world, there is a permanent atmosphere of tension and anxiety.

It is a strange atmosphere. You cannot put your finger on just what is wrong. The Damascenes have lived with the feeling for generations and they are fatalistic about it.

Syria has exploded many times, each time with repercussions throughout the Arab East. In an era of cold war and world tension, the explosions become progressively more dangerous. Unfortunately for Syria, her geography is far too important for her to be left alone in peace.

U.S. Rep. J. Edgar Chenoweth said Thursday that the "sensitivity" of the project would forbid any public announcement on what is planned for the Cripple Creek area.

However, in an interview with the Gazette Telegraph, the congressman confirmed that the plans involve a possible underground installation similar to NORAD's Hardsite project under Cheyenne Mountain.

"I can tell you this tho, and I want to emphasize it," Chenoweth said, "the surveys being made there are solely for the purposes of study and nothing else at this time."

Meanwhile, the Air Force also confirmed Thursday that it was considering Cripple Creek as a possible location for a deep underground support center.

At the same time, spokesmen said they were also considering a site near Pawnee City, Neb. The Air Force said it has been studying this project since last summer but emphasized that the surveys were solely for the purpose of obtaining information.

Chenoweth revealed that the Air Force first informed him of their plans to make a survey in the Cripple Creek region last September and at that time asked him not to make a public statement on the project.

Rep. Chenoweth was also told Feb. 6 that the Army Corps of Engineers would soon begin an inspection of mines in the Cripple Creek area and again was asked to say nothing on the project.

"Earlier this week I called them (the engineers) and asked what was happening. They told me they were ready to go into the mines and said they would be happy to come over and discuss the project with me if I wanted. I declined the offer," he said.

He explained that he felt it would be better if he knew nothing about the project until it was decided if the installation would definitely go in at Cripple Creek.

"I was told that the Army Corps of Engineers would seek rights of way into the mines there and I asked no more about it," Rep. Chenoweth said. "They said they preferred no public an-

Boost in State Expenditures Seen by Love

DENVER (UPI)— Gov. John Love released "rough guesses" Thursday predicting a 40 per cent increase in the state's operating expenditures in the next five years.

The projection statement released by the governor indicated that an abnormally low $46,000 would be available for capital construction in fiscal 1966-67. Love, in his budget message to the Legislature, recommended a capital construction outlay of $12,534,000 for the coming year.

The table of projections was prepared by Con Shea, state budget officer.

The projections are based on the governor's plan to keep income taxes at the present level, $8 million below what they were last year under former Gov. Steve McNichols tax program.

The governor said the state's financial problems would not necessitate a tax increase if he could hold present tax levels in the coming years.

System of Public Defenders Is Proposed in Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy asked Congress today to set up a system for appointment of public defenders to represent people who can't afford lawyers to defend them in federal criminal cases.

"Whenever the lack of money prevents a defendant from securing an experienced lawyer, trained investigator or technical expert, an unjust conviction may follow," the President said.

Kennedy sent the House and Senate a draft of legislation which he said would "diminish the role which poverty plays in our federal system of criminal justice."

The President said the bill would "assure effective legal representation for every man whose limited means would otherwise deprive him of an adequate defense against criminal charges."

Belching Better Than Blocking, Doc Declares

CHICAGO (AP) — If you feel like belching, belch.

Dr. Bargen said Wednesday that a person who tries to be polite by stifling a belch may develop serious gastronomic trouble.

If a person feels like belching, Dr. Bargen said, "he should go into a corner, open his mouth widely, and let the air come out."

He said attempts to block a belch by swallowing air may cause air to be trapped in the gastro-intestinal tract, which may cause distention and bloating.

Critical Spots Still Remain In Flood Zones

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Surging waters receded in most rivers and streams in the nation's flood belt from Indiana into the Southeast today and the danger of new major flooding appeared ended temporarily.

But there were some critical spots in the flood zones and ice jamming remained a serious threat in some areas.

No heavy rainfall was reported in the more than a dozen states which have been hit by the season's first serious flooding. However, there were patches of light rain and snow flurries in some parts of the Ohio River Valley, the hardest hit by the late winter overflows.

Minor flooding was reported in some other Eastern and Southern states but the heaviest damage was in Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Indiana. The floods, caused by heavy rains and melting snow, were blamed for at least 18 deaths. Property damage was estimated in the millions of dollars.

The nation's general weather pattern showed few changes. No

$100-Million News Strike to Be Ended

NEW YORK (AP)—Representatives of publishers and striking printers agreed today on a new contract, clearing the way for an end to New York's 91-day-old newspaper shutdown.

Key provisions of the pact are an increase in wages over a two-year period, plus a reduction in hours the second year, for a total package of $12.63.

Cost of the strike within the industry has been estimated in excess of $100 million.

There was no indication how soon eight closed newspapers, which before the strike printed 5½ million copies a day, might resume publication.

The agreement is subject to union ratification, but Mayor Robert F. Wagner said he assumed it would be ratified in view of its unanimous endorsement by local and international officers of the International Typographical Union, AFL-CIO, and by the publishers. Wagner made the announcement at 6:30 a.m. He had proposed the settlement shortly after midnight.

"This means that the shutdown involving the printers will end as soon as the union completes negotiations of certain so-called clean-up issues and ratifies the agreement," said Wagner.

"In addition," he said, "negotiations involving other unions, two of whom are still on strike, will likewise have to be completed."

Still on strike are unions representing stereotypers and mailers.

As outlined by Wagner, the third-party agreement he worked out—as accepted by negotiators for both sides—provides for a wage rise of $6.51 the first year of the contract and $6.12 the second.

Also included, Wagner said, are various terms to offset the effects of automation—called a prime issue in the dispute by the president of ITU Local 6, Bertram A. Powers. Asked for details, the mayor said it was complicated and he would rather not discuss it.

The mayor said there also was agreement in principle on a common expiration date of all union contracts, subject to approval by other craft unions and the American Newspaper Guild.

The mayor met first with publishers' representatives, then with members of the ITU executive committee, headed by International President Elmer Brown, who had come here from union headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Then followed a closed meeting with the Newspaper Unity Committee representing all 10 newspaper unions. In all, more than 18,000 of their members had been idled by the shutdown.

Asked whether he thought the package would be accepted by his local's 2,000 printers, Powers said: "I think so." He noted that there

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. George Mahon's plea that public officials keep quiet about American intelligence activities was welcome news to President Kennedy, and many members of Congress agreed "silence is golden."

The President, it was learned today, was immensely pleased when aides showed him news wire accounts of the Texas Democrat's speech Thursday on the House floor. There was good reason to believe Kennedy began making plans to grab the ball Mahon tossed into the air.

White House sources said, however, that the congressman acted on his own initiative, that Kennedy had no foreknowledge of the blistering attack on loose talk.

Mahon, chairman of the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee, said "officials in Moscow, Peking and Havana must applaud our stupidity in announcing publicly facts which they would gladly spend huge sums of money endeavoring to obtain."

He gave no specific examples and said the executive branch and the legislative, Republicans and Democrats alike, "must share the blame" for "making us the laughing stock of the world."

There was an immediate chorus of amens on Capitol Hill.

At the same time, Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., said he had called on Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to tell the American people whether Soviet ships recently reported en route to Cuba to remove Soviet troops actually were carrying missiles to the island.

In a news release from his office, Wilson said he had sent a letter to the secretary posing these questions:

"How many ships have actually arrived in Cuban ports ostensibly to return Soviet soldiers? Have our intelligence-gathering services

Death Strikes Once More Against Grand Ole Opry

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Personal tragedy, a theme in the mournful lyrics of country music, struck deeply into the lives of its stars and fans again Thursday with the death of singer Jack Anglin.

Anglin, the tenor of the nationally-known "Johnny and Jack" singing team, died when his car crashed into a tree.

Anglin was the fifth personality of the famed Grand Ole Opry to die accidentally within two days.

Hawkshaw Hawkins, Patsy Cline, Cowboy Copas and Randy Hughes, Miss Cline's manager, were killed Tuesday night when their light plane crashed in hilly, wooded country near Camden, Tenn.

They were returning here from a benefit show last weekend in Kansas City for the family of Cactus Jack Call, a country music disc jockey killed last year in an automobile accident.

The Anglin death was at least the fourth time recently that tragedy has struck the Opry, a showplace for the stars in the country music field.

Ira Louvin of the Louvin Brothers singing team was shot six times in a domestic quarrel recently and is still recuperating.

Anglin, born in Columbia, Tenn., joined Johnny Wright in 1937 and they first appeared on the Opry in 1952.

They were named the No. 1 country music duet in the nation each year from 1953 to 1958, recording such hits as "Oh Baby Mine" and "Poison Love."

The regular performance of the Opry will be interrupted for a brief memorial service Saturday night.

MY ANSWER

by Billy Graham

© 1963 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: I find little to challenge me in life. I just seem to drift along from day to day; doing nothing really good, or really bad — just sort of existing. How does one feel alive? —B. M.

ANSWER: You are caught in the 'doldrums' of this modern age, and I pity you.

A prominent psychologist asked three thousand persons this question. "What have you to live for?" He was shocked to find that 94 per cent were "simply enduring the present while they waited for the future . . . waited for tomorrow without realizing that all anyone ever has is today because yesterday is gone and tomorrow may never come."

Life has lost its luster. Everything about them seemed commonplace, unchallenging, uninteresting. What did they need? A change of surroundnigs? A trip abroad? A new, stimulating situation? No! They lack, as do you, inner resources of the spirit which enable them to capture the beauty and significance of life as it is.

Carlyle admonished the bored of his generation a century ago: "Yes, here, in this poor, miserable, hampered, despicable Now, wherein thou standest here or nowhere is thy ideal; work it out therefrom; and working, believe, live, be free."

Christ came to strengthen this point of view. He said: "I am come that they might have life". I have never known the meaning of boredom since I received Christ.

King Coal's Stewardship Explodes Into Politics

By FRED WALTERS

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania coal that once fueled the nation's furnaces now feeds the flames of economic unrest and political controversy.

Coal and the men who ran the companies that dug it out of the earth dominated Pennsylvania's economy and its social and political life for the better part of the last century.

Now, the stewardship of "king coal's" court has become a subject of strident issue.

Its payroll has dropped from about 400,000 men to about 50,000.

Many economists and political leaders blame the industry's leaders for discouraging diversification of the economy to offset the time, now arrived, when coal no longer can provide for the people in the coal regions.

The regions' scarred earth, man-made hills of coal refuse, towns blackened with coal dust, streams turned rust-colored from pollution, have become painfully obvious now that the enchantment with the king has paled.

The conservationists' cries for stricter regulations now have recruited once indifferent voices to their chorus.

The focus of their attack is strip mining, a relative infant in the industry but a method whose mutilation of the landscape is so obvious as to lend itself naturally to attack.

Pennsylvania's new governor, William W. Scranton, stepped into the middle of this controversy last week when he made a personal tour of soft coal strip mining areas in central and Western Pennsylvania.

He has pledged stronger controls for the industry and his proposal for the current Pennsylvania Legislature is now in the final stages of preparation.

Strip mining grew rapidly during World War II because of the demand for coal to fuel the nation's war machine.

When competing fuels cut coal's market to pieces after the war, strip mining picked up an increasing share of the remains.

At present, about one-third of the soft coal and almost half of the hard coal or anthracite, is strip mined.

The result is a long, open wound in the landscape. Moreover, rainwater washes over exposed coal and turns acid. When it reaches streams and rivers, they turn the color of rust. Aquatic life, including fish, disappears.

A law passed in 1945 and gradually strengthened since then requires strippers to restore to the open pits a measure of the earth removed (the amount of restoration depending upon the proximity to built-up areas), to dress up the remaining piles of earth and to plant new vegetation before leaving the mine site after the coal is removed.

They also are required to provide that drainage will not pollute streams.

The industry contends that pollution is exaggerated and temporary, that reclamation of the land is adequate under the present law, and that further restoration work would wipe out their profit margin and bankrupt them.

Geological factors complicate the issue.

In the soft coal fields, the seams generally are deeper under ground as you move from western to central Pennsylvania. That means it costs more to get the coal out and more to refill the open pit.

"The variation in conditions between the central sections and the western counties is greater than I realized," Scranton commented, "which makes it more difficult to establish legislation that is applicable to every area, especially as to detail."

The coal regions are economically distressed areas and strip mining means jobs whatever the damage to the scenery.

"Don't think for a moment, governor, that we think spoil piles or strip mine cuts are pretty," publisher William E. Ulerich of the Clearfield Progress told Scranton.

Clearfield County in central Pennsylvania is the most heavily strip-mined area of the state. The industry provides 2,700 jobs, whereas the payroll of the county's 20 other leading employers has dropped to 2,000.

"When kids are hungry," Ulerich said, "and their mothers are ashamed to send them to Sunday School because they don't have neat clothes to wear, aesthetic values fade into the background."

Sportsmen claim the industry is crying wolf when it says it can't afford to replace more of the earth shoved aside to get at the coal.

With a neater landscape and stronger antipollution measures, they feel Pennsylvania could be built up as a major tourist state, particularly for fishermen, hunters and other outdoorsmen.

Scranton agrees with their assessment of the state's tourist potential without necessarily expressing agreement with their complaints about the stripping industry.

Multi-Billion U.S. Recreation Program Urged

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall testified at a Senate Interior Committee hearing on a bill which would set up an outdoor recreation fund.

Udall estimated the plan could lead to investment of about $15 billion of federal and state money in the 10 years and said it should get going before the needed land becomes too costly.

The fund would be used to finance acquisition of federal and state parks and recreation areas. It would be raised by recreation user and entrance fees, motorboat fuels taxes and excess federal land sales.

"The provision of outdoor recreation is a national concern. The interest of the federal government can no longer be limited to preserving sites of national significance and exercising stewardship over its own lands."

The federal share, which Udall said could approximate $2.1 billion in 10 years, would be financed basically on a pay-as-you-go plan based in part on user fees.

The land and water conservation, after setting aside up to 20 special land acquisition at federal reservoirs, would be allocated 60 per cent to the states and 40 per cent to federal agencies — the National Park Service, National Forest Service and Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife.

The states would have to match the allotments, putting up 50 per cent of the cost of planning and 70 per cent of the cost of acquisition or development.

'Stacked Odds' in Oil Lease Cases Blasted

DENVER (UPI) — Lowell M. Puckett, state director of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management, said Wednesday he was happy with a Department of Interior move to avoid "stacked odds" in oil lease applications.

Puckett, commenting on proposed new regulations against speculators filing "dummy" applications, said the proposed Interior Department Regulations would give all speculators a fair chance at acquiring the leases.

He said some unscrupulous speculators would have front men file "dummy" applications, thus stacking the odds against other speculators who filed only one application.

King Coal's Stewardship Explodes Into Politics

By FRED WALTERS

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania coal that once fueled the nation's furnaces now feeds the flames of economic unrest and political controversy.

Coal and the men who ran the companies that dug it out of the earth dominated Pennsylvania's economy and its social and political life for the better part of the last century.

Now, the stewardship of "king coal's" court has become a subject of strident issue.

Its payroll has dropped from about 400,000 men to about 50,000.

Many economists and political leaders blame the industry's leaders for discouraging diversification of the economy to offset the time, now arrived, when coal no longer can provide for the people in the coal regions.

The regions' scarred earth, man-made hills of coal refuse, towns blackened with coal dust, streams turned rust-colored from pollution, have become painfully obvious now that the enchantment with the king has paled.

The conservationists' cries for stricter regulations now have recruited once indifferent voices to their chorus.

The focus of their attack is strip mining, a relative infant in the industry but a method whose mutilation of the landscape is so obvious as to lend itself naturally to attack.

Pennsylvania's new governor, William W. Scranton, stepped into the middle of this controversy last week when he made a personal tour of soft coal strip mining areas in central and Western Pennsylvania.

He has pledged stronger controls for the industry and his proposal for the current Pennsylvania Legislature is now in the final stages of preparation.

Strip mining grew rapidly during World War II because of the demand for coal to fuel the nation's war machine.

When competing fuels cut coal's market to pieces after the war, strip mining picked up an increasing share of the remains.

At present, about one-third of the soft coal and almost half of the hard coal or anthracite, is strip mined.

To get at the coal, the miner scrapes away the earth cover. The result is a long, open wound in the landscape. Moreover, rainwater washes over exposed coal and turns acid. When it reaches streams and rivers, they turn the color of rust. Aquatic life, including fish, disappears.

A law passed in 1945 and gradually strengthened since then requires strippers to restore to the open pits a measure of the earth removed (the amount of restoration depending upon the proximity to built-up areas), to dress up the remaining piles of earth and to plant new vegetation before leaving the mine site after the coal is removed.

They also are required to provide that drainage will not pollute streams.

The industry contends that pollution is exaggerated and temporary, that reclamation of the land is adequate under the present law, and that further restoration work would wipe out their profit margin and bankrupt them.

Geological factors complicate the issue.

In the soft coal fields, the seams generally are deeper under ground as you move from western to central Pennsylvania. That means it costs more to get the coal out and more to refill the open pit.

"The variation in conditions between the central sections and the western counties is greater than I realized," Scranton commented, "which makes it more difficult to establish legislation that is applicable to every area, especially as to detail."

The coal regions are economically distressed areas and strip mining means jobs whatever the damage to the scenery.

"Don't think for a moment, governor, that we think spoil piles or strip mine cuts are pretty," publisher William E. Ulerich of the Clearfield Progress told Scranton.

Clearfield County in central Pennsylvania is the most heavily strip-mined area of the state. The industry provides 2,700 jobs, whereas the payroll of the county's 20 other leading employers has dropped to 2,000.

"When kids are hungry," Ulerich said, "and their mothers are ashamed to send them to Sunday School because they don't have neat clothes to wear, aesthetic values fade into the background."

Sportsmen claim the industry is crying wolf when it says it can't afford to replace more of the earth shoved aside to get at the coal.

With a neater landscape and stronger antipollution measures, they feel Pennsylvania could be built up as a major tourist state, particularly for fishermen, hunters and other outdoorsmen.

Scranton agrees with their assessment of the state's tourist potential without necessarily expressing agreement with their complaints about the stripping industry.

Multi-Billion U.S. Recreation Program Urged

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall testified at a Senate Interior Committee hearing on a bill which would set up an outdoor recreation fund.

Udall estimated the plan could lead to investment of about $15 billion of federal and state money in the 10 years and said it should get going before the needed land becomes too costly.

The fund would be used to finance acquisition of federal and state parks and recreation areas. It would be raised by recreation user and entrance fees, motorboat fuels taxes and excess federal land sales.

"The provision of outdoor recreation is a national concern. The interest of the federal government can no longer be limited to preserving sites of national significance and exercising stewardship over its own lands."

The federal share, which Udall said could approximate $2.1 billion in 10 years, would be financed basically on a pay-as-you-go plan based in part on user fees.

The land and water conservation, after setting aside up to 20 special land acquisition at federal reservoirs, would be allocated 60 per cent to the states and 40 per cent to federal agencies — the National Park Service, National Forest Service and Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife.

The states would have to match the allotments, putting up 50 per cent of the cost of planning and 70 per cent of the cost of acquisition or development.

MY ANSWER

by Billy Graham

© 1963 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: I find little to challenge me in life. I just seem to drift along from day to day; doing nothing really good, or really bad — just sort of existing. How does one feel alive? —B. M.

ANSWER: You are caught in the 'doldrums' of this modern age, and I pity you.

A prominent psychologist asked three thousand persons this question, "What have you to live for?" He was shocked to find that 94 per cent were "simply enduring the present while they waited for the future . . . waited for tomorrow without realizing that all anyone ever has is today because yesterday is gone and tomorrow may never come."

Life has lost its luster. Everything about them seemed commonplace, unchallenging, uninteresting. What did they need? A change of surroundnigs? A trip abroad? A new, stimulating situation? No! They lack, as do you, inner resources of the spirit which enable them to capture the beauty and significance of life as it is.

Carlyle admonished the bored of his generation a century ago: "Yes, here, in this poor, miserable, hampered, despicable Now, wherein thou standest here or nowhere is thy ideal; work it out therefrom; and working, believe, live, be free."

Christ came to strengthen this point of view. He said: "I am come that they might have life". I have never known the meaning of boredom since I received Christ.

Civil Rights Said Absent On Reservation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An attorney for the Bannock-Shoshone Indians told a Senate subcommittee Thursday civil rights are absent on the Fort Hall, Idaho, reservation.

R. Max Whittier, the attorney, was the leadoff witness before the Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights which reopened hearings on those rights of American Indians.

He said the Bureau of Indian Affairs had allowed the court system to wither to the point that one judge—a woman, Dolores L. Paniogue—is recognized.

"Justice is being dispensed in a rampant fashion by this one absolute tribal judge without any consideration being given to the wishes of the tribal council or the members' constitutional rights," Whittier testified.

"The shocking thing to me is the attitude of the bureau employes on constitutional rights," he said, recounting that one employe said: "We didn't have any trouble with the Indians until they found out that they had constitutional rights."

Whittier said he had a list of 78 Indian deaths occurring on or near the reservation. He said they were victims of "accidents or acts of others."

"My information is that there has never been a prosecution by state officials for these fatalities or homicides," he said.

Texas, Iowa Get Most Government Farm Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas and Iowa were virtually tied for first place in the amount of government payments made to farmers in 1962. The Texas payments totaled $148,461,000, the Iowa farmers $148,228,000.

An agriculture department report showed today that payments totaled $1,736,147,000 in 1962 compared with $1,484,356,000 in 1961.

Payments to farmers for reducing acreages of feed grains under a program designed to reduce surpluses made up almost half the total outlay. They amounted to $840.9 million. Payments for idling wheat land under a similar program totaled $253 million.

Farmers who still had cropland retired under the old soil bank plan received $304.1 million. They also got $224 million for carrying out approved soil and water conservation projects on their land under the agricultural conservation program.

Payments totaling $53.7 million were made to domestic sugar growers under a stabilization program and $54 million to wool growers in incentive payments.

States receiving in excess of $50 million in payments last year included Nebraska $101.3 million.

Columbine Creates Denver Difficulties

DENVER (AP) — The columbine is Colorado's state flower, see?

Also, Denver has a firm called the Columbine Pipe & Tube Co.

It seems someone put a classified advertisement in The Denver Post urging readers to send to the pipe and tube firm for a free potted columbine.

But the company says it didn't put in the ad and doesn't have any columbines. "The calls are driving us nuts," said an official.

Civil Rights Said Absent On Reservation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An attorney for the Bannock-Shoshone Indians told a Senate subcommittee Thursday civil rights are absent on the Fort Hall, Idaho, reservation.

R. Max Whittier, the attorney, was the leadoff witness before the Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights which reopened hearings on those rights of American Indians.

He said the Bureau of Indian Affairs had allowed the court system to wither to the point that one judge—a woman, Dolores L. Paniogue—is recognized.

"Justice is being dispensed in a rampant fashion by this one absolute tribal judge without any consideration being given to the wishes of the tribal council or the members' constitutional rights," Whittier testified.

"The shocking thing to me is the attitude of the bureau employes on constitutional rights," he said, recounting that one employe said: "We didn't have any trouble with the Indians until they found out that they had constitutional rights."

Whittier said he had a list of 78 Indian deaths occurring on or near the reservation. He said they were victims of "accidents or acts of others."

"My information is that there has never been a prosecution by state officials for these fatalities or homicides," he said.

Texas, Iowa Get Most Government Farm Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas and Iowa were virtually tied for first place in the amount of government payments made to farmers in 1962. The Texas payments totaled $148,461,000, the Iowa farmers $148,228,000.

An agriculture department report showed today that payments totaled $1,736,147,000 in 1962 compared with $1,484,356,000 in 1961.

Payments to farmers for reducing acreages of feed grains under a program designed to reduce surpluses made up almost half the total outlay. They amounted to $840.9 million. Payments for idling wheat land under a similar program totaled $253 million.

Farmers who still had cropland retired under the old soil bank plan received $304.1 million. They also got $224 million for carrying out approved soil and water conservation projects on their land under the agricultural conservation program.

Payments totaling $53.7 million were made to domestic sugar growers under a stabilization program and $54 million to wool growers in incentive payments.

States receiving in excess of $50 million in payments last year included Nebraska $101.3 million.

Columbine Creates Denver Difficulties

DENVER (AP) — The columbine is Colorado's state flower, see?

Also, Denver has a firm called the Columbine Pipe & Tube Co.

It seems someone put a classified advertisement in The Denver Post urging readers to send to the pipe and tube firm for a free potted columbine.

But the company says it didn't put in the ad and doesn't have any columbines. "The calls are driving us nuts," said an official.

Controversy Over 'Silence' Rages in Nation's Capital

Wilson's letter continued: "Since the Communists obviously are aware of the answers to these questions, I can see no reason to withhold the same information from the American public."

In expressing agreement with Mahon, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said: "I feel that there's too much intelligence given out." And Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., told a reporter: "All should heed the admonition that silence is the golden rule of intelligence."

On the House side, Mahon's assertion that "the present situation is outrageous and intolerable" brought a bipartisan plea to try to stop the tongue-wagging as far as Congress is concerned.

"I hope that during these confused times members of Congress will be particularly careful about what they say," said Rep. Frances P. Bolton of Ohio, top Rebpulican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"We must exercise discretion in these matters," said Rep. Ben F. Jensen of Iowa, senior Republican on the Appropriations Committee. "None of us should be responsible for giving aid and comfort to the Communists by loose talk."

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota suggested in a Senate speech that a new joint committee on national security affairs be established with legislative jurisdiction over all government intelligence agencies.

In his speech, Mahon called on Kennedy, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and House Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., to "coordinate a course of action for the purpose of halting the rapid erosion of our national intellgence effort."

"Today's headlines may cost the lives of the human sources of information," Mahon said. "The enemy can find our intelligence sources much more easily when he knows what we have found out. This knowledge helps to pinpoint the location of intelligence activities, and once knowing the location, the discovery of the means is much easier and intelligence sources dry up."

Various administration officials have repeatedly expressed the view that, because this is a democracy where government secrets are suspect, there is a tendency to make public too much information that could be helpful to a potential enemy.

Any curbing of public discussion of intelligence activities might serve to quiet the continuing controversy about the effectiveness of intelligence operations involving Soviet moves in Cuba.

In addition, the administration might use Mahon's speech as a new lever to employ in discouraging government employes from giving certain kinds of information to newsmen.

At the time of the Cuban crisis, both the Defense and State departments issued directives aimed at this objective. Although both departments acted in the name of national security, it is questionable whether their orders ever were as effective as intended.

Mahon said the Kennedy administration "has mistakenly allowed itself to be goaded into revealing information detrimental to our best interests."

The remark recalled the uneasiness Kennedy expressed at a news conference Feb. 7, the day after Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and an aide conducted an unprecedented, television display of reconnaissance photographs of the Cuban arms buildup.

In a separate interview, Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., who in the past repeatedly charged the Kennedy administration with understating the extent of the Cuban arms buildup, said: "Any steps necessary to protect our national security will have my support. A attempt to suppress information simply to avoid embarrassment to government officials deserves no such consideration."

Arab Nationalism May Be Decided In Syrian Area

The clash between the modern West and the ancient East is evident on all sides. Swank Arabs finger their ever-present beads but look as Western as Chicagoans. In restaurants and cabarets they mingle with dark-skinned bearded sheiks in robes and headdress from the provinces or other parts of the Arab East.

Syria is a land of contradictions, rich in the history of Islam and Christianity but splattered with the blood of the eternal clash between East and West.

Damascus has about 40 Christian churches and more than three times that many mosques, whose ancient minarets dot a western skyline with an oriental fringe.

Syrai's wounds are deep and old. Once she was a proud nation dominating a vast area. But she has a history of indignities, of colonialism, of big power politics. Hatred rages in the Arab breast for neighboring Israel, which the Arabs consider an expression of western imperialism.

Syria's history is one of invasions: By the Egyptians, the Assyrians, the Macedonians, the Persians, the Mongols, and finally the Turks of the Ottoman Empire, who ruled the country harshly for 400 years. After World War I the French came to the Levant with a League of Nations mandate.

The Syrians were restless and resentful under the French and there were many disturbances. By the end of World War II, the French could hold out no longer and Syria won her independence in 1946.

The only semblance of unity Syria achieved in modern times with other Arabs was her brief stay in President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic from March, 1958, until September 1961.

Nixon Fires New Salvo Regarding Cuban Invasion

Saying President Kennedy has been subjected to some unfair criticism on the invasion, Nixon added: "I think he was wrong in another respect. I think he was wrong, once we committed our power, in not seeing it through and finishing the job.

"And when the suggestion is made that President Eisenhower may or may not have planned air cover, I would only suggest this: I cannot imagine the general, who planned the greatest invasion in history, the invasion of Normandy, allowing those 1,500 brave Cubans to go in the Bay of Pigs there without having first destroyed the enemy air power or providing air cover."

Nixon's appearance on the Jack Paar show was taped last Sunday in New York for showing tonight on NBC-TV. But the program was shown first Thursday night on CTV in Toronto, a Canadian commercial network.

Nixon called for "a political, diplomatic, economic and military quarantine of Cuba, of communism in Cuba."

Newsday, a Long Island daily newspaper, reported Thursday that last Tuesday during an off-the-record speech at Garden City, N.Y., Nixon advocated an oil blockade of Cuba in recommending a four-point U.S. policy toward Cuba. His four points: removal of all Russian troops, on-site inspection of missile installations, an end to foreign aid to nations which trade with Cuba and a partial blockade to stop all oil shipments to the island.

Nixon repeated those assertions on the television program.

Republicans who have criticized the President about Cuba "will join in a bipartisan support of any strong action that President Kennedy will take to remove the Communist cancer," Nixon said.

"My answer is this: That we've got to run American foreign policy from the standpoint of the United States of America and the defense of freedom throughout the world, and we shouldn't take a vote of popularity of the neutrals and the other nations of the world and let our policy be only what the weak and timid will approve," he said.

Nixon, in Chicago on Thursday, held his first news conference since immediately after his November defeat in California's gubernatorial election.

Nixon told the newsmen he plans a number of speaking appearances next fall and said he "will support and campaign enthusiastically for the Republican candidate, whoever he may be."

Nixon listed the leading candidates for the GOP presidential nomination as New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, and Michigan Gov. George Romney.

"In my view one of the four will be nominated. Rockefeller is the front runner today—the polls show that."

When Paar asked Nixon, "Can Kennedy be defeated in '64?" He replied: "Which Kennedy?"

Justice Issues Jail Term On Drunk Driving Charge

Edward William Stapish was sentenced to 90 days in county jail and fined $100 by Justice of the Peace H. C. McShane Tuesday for drunk driving. Stapish, 50, of West Creek was arrested Feb. 7 on South 8th Street by Cpl. Q. K. Conrad of the police department.

A Petersen Field man, Clement Hall Reed Jr., 20, paid a $20 fine and costs for careless driving Feb. 28. Reed was ticketed by Conrad on East Dale Street.

Disregarding a red signal light on U. S. Highway 85-87 Saturday cost Daniel Donald Rydel, 33, of 330 N. Hancock Ave. $10 and costs. The state patrolman was Leland Acre.

State Patrolman J. Mathis gave a summons to Carlos Eugene Norman as he did not have his 1963 plates attached to his car when driving on West Colorado Avenue Saturday. Norman, 38, of 3221 W. Colorado Ave. received a $10 fine and costs.

Donald Arthur Ring, 41, of 2 East Boulder St. was charged with being employed in the state more than 30 days, having no Colorado registration and being without a valid operator's license. State Patrolman Al Smith cited him on "B" Street Tuesday. Ring was fined $10 and costs.

Careless driving, being without a valid operator's license and not changing her name on the license, cost Glenda Lee Hollman, 21, of Falcon Road $15 and costs. State Patrolman Leland Acre ticketed her on Templeton Gap Road Feb. 15.

William Henry Strickland, 27, of 1617 E. Platte Ave. paid a $10 fine with costs for driving on the wrong side of the road Feb. 28. The violation happened on East Platte Avenue and Lloyd M. Carothers was the state patrolman.

$100-Million News Strike to Be Ended

Amory H. Bradford, general manager and vice president of the New York Times and chief negotiator for the publishers, said it was "a costly settlement but one which is acceptable to the publishers."

Bradford estimated that if the package is accepted by the printers—and if the other newspaper craft unions accept similar terms it will cost the papers about $18.5 million over the next two years.

There was no indication that the agreement will result in a rise in newsstand prices of the papers.

Bradford said the agreement would be effective from the day the newspapers resume publication. He said the publishers would meet with the ITU again—"to clean up the remaining issues and to agree on contract language"—after everyone had had a chance to rest.

The newspaper shutdown—longest and costliest in this city's history—began Dec. 8, when the printers struck the Times, Daily News, Journal-American and World-Telegram & Sun.

Although their contracts with all the papers expired at the same time, the printers did not strike the Post, Herald Tribune, Mirror, Long Island Press and Long Island Star-Journal. Those papers closed voluntarily although the Press continued to publish editions for circulation outside New York City.

The mailers union, a sister union of the ITU, joined the strike Jan. 9, and the stereotypers went on strike this week.

Originally, the printers asked an increase of $19 a week, plus fringe benefits the publishers said would bring their total cost to $37 per week per man.

In a formal statement, the publishers association invited all newspaper unions "to join us in bringing to an end this prolonged period of strike." It expressed the hope that the agreement "will result in a contract and early resumption of publication."

On the question of automation, Bradford said the agreement provided for the use of outside Teletypesetter tape to set stock market tables.

Bradford said the agreement provides for "further study and discussion" and that if no agreement is reached with the union the question of teletypesetter tape will be submitted to arbitration.

In Cleveland, Ohio, where the two newspapers have been shut down by strikes for 99 days, the latest negotiations between striking printers and the publishers failed to budge either side.

The printers are considered the key union of the three on strike against the Plain Dealer and the Press & News. Two of the five unions which struck have reached contract settlements.

Management has offered the Cleveland printers a two-year contract providing for a package increase of $9 in wages and fringe benefits. The union demands $18.

Cripple Creek Is Seen As Underground Site

He said, however, that the Air Force had no objections to him making a statement on what knowledge he had if he was asked by the press.

"This is about all I can tell you. I don't know what they are planning there. We will all find out in good time," he said.

When asked if the project might have some connection with Secretary of the Defense Robert S. McNamara's statement last Jan. 30 that the 1964 fiscal year budget would include an alternate command center for the Strategic Air Command, Chenoweth said:

"I don't know. I'd rather not discuss it. I just don't have any knowledge of the nature of the plans."

Thursday, McNamara said in Washington that the Pentagon is proposing to start construction of such support centers for SAC in the bookkeeping year which begins July 1.

The Air Force, however, said that the Cripple Creek surveys have no "relation to any construction plans or programs. This position still stands."

First announcement of the surveys at Cripple Creek was made Tuesday by the Air Force and the Army Engineers in Omaha, Neb.

At that time, Col. Virgil B. Culberson, Air Force regional civil engineer, said the engineers and the Air Force were planning to make a study to determine the feasibility of locating underground facilities in the Cripple Creek area.

He said the engineers were asked to obtain permission to enter property in that area for the pubpose of obtaining further detailed information to be used in site surveys. He said no actual construction is currently planned.

Spokesmen at NORAD here said the local command had no information on the project and declined any comment.

Chenoweth, in his interview, confirmed that several studies had been made in the Cripple Creek area over the past several months.

It is known that at least a dozen survey trips have been made to the area dealing with possible housing on rental basis, availability of electrical power, water etc.

Early reports indicate that the Air Force and Army Engineers would use the already bored tunnels and shafts as well as deep mines for the installation rather than bore new ones as had to be done at NORAD's Hardsite.

The project is in line with recent thinking that military control centers, mainly defensive and offensive posts, should be located in areas as safe as possible from the ravages of nuclear attack and fallout. This theory led to the multi - million dollar NORAD Hardsite project under Cheyenne Mountain.

If one of the mines in the old gold mining region of Cripple Creek issued, it would mean a considerable savings to the government since very little, if any, excavation would be necessary.

Critical Spots Still Remain In Flood Zones

(Continued From Page One) heavy rain or snow was reported and temperatures were mostly near normal levels. Cool spots were across Northern areas from the Plains to Maine. It was a little cooler in the Southeast, with temperatures dropping to the upper 30s in extreme northern Florida and much of Dixie north of Florida.

Although flood conditions in most of Ohio appeared improved, there were some trouble spots. A mile-long ice jam broke in the Sandusky River in Fremont Thursday night, pushing the stream up to three feet above the 12-foot flood stage.

Huge ice floes 50 feet high were stacked at the north and south ends of Fremont. The river cuts through the city. Mayor Richard Maier declared a state of emergency for the northwest Ohio city of 18,000.

In Pennsylvania, an ice jam formed on the Susquehanna River in the Harrisburg area and residents in lowland areas north of the city were evacuated. Harrisburg, however, appeared in no immediate danger.

Flood warnings were issued for areas in central South Carolina. The Broad River crested at 12 feet and the Congaree River rose rapidly to crest at 22 feet, 3 feet above flood stage.

Five counties in West Virginia, hit hard by overflows from the Ohio River and its tributaries earlier this week have been designated as disaster areas by the Small Business Administration in Washington. The counties are Brooke, Hancock, Marshall, Ohio and Wetzel, which will be eligible for federal loans for repairs to property caused by the damaging floods.

Norwich, Conn., also was declared a disaster area in the wake of damaging flood waters which swept into the city of 40,000 Wednesday night after a dam, weakened by heavy rains, broke. The tons of water set off a boiler explosion in a manufacturing plant, killing five persons. One woman drowned in the flood waters and six persons were hospitalized. Damage was estimated at between $2 million and $3 million.

Awning Fire Causes Department Run

Company 1 of the fire department at 11:10 p. m. Thursday made a run to Barley Refrigerating Co., 301 S. Tejon St., when an awning was found to be on fire. There was no damage except to the awning.

Death Penalty Recommended for Slayer of Son

PUEBLO (AP) — A 51-year-old Pueblo man was found guilty of first degree murder Thursday in the fatal beating of his son.

A District Court jury recommended the death penalty for Joe A. Segura who beat his son to death last Sept. 16 with a baseball bat during a family argument.

The jury of nine men and three women deliberated about four hours before reaching a verdict.

Defense attorney Vasco Seavy said he will file a motion for a new trial.

Segura showed no emotion as he heard the verdict marking the end of three days' court testimony.

Highlight of the trial was the testimony Wednesday of Segura's wife, Lorraine, 48, as a witness against him. Mrs. Segura's testimony came despite the repeated objections of Seavy who contended that it was contrary to accepted Colorado statures.

New Headquarters Of ADC Dedicated To Gen. Chidlaw

Gen. Lee, in his remarks, said the opening of the building will "permit greater efficiency" in the operation of the command. He pointed out that this is the first time in the 17 year history of ADC that all of its units are located under one roof.

Gen. Lee accepted the keys to the building from Robert McNamara, regional administrator for the Government Service Administration who said the construction of the facility "was a rather unusual undertaking for the CSA. It is probably the biggest project we have participated in with the military in the Rocky Mountain area."

The keys were presented to McNamara by Jack Howard, president of UNITCO, the corporation which holds a 10 year lease on the 300,000 square foot building, who had accepted them from Ralph Tice, construction superintendent for Peter Kiewitt & Sons, the contractors on the job.

All of the speakers praised the cooperation received on the project from local, state and national officials.

The Chidlaw Building, which will serve as work space for 1,700 military and civilian personnel of ADC is the largest building of its type in Colorado Springs.

It was completed within a nine-month period and will be rented by the government for a $500,000 annual rental fee.

Participating in the dedication and ribbon cutting were the ADC Honor Flight and the NORAD band.

Today's Weather

(Reports furnished by U. S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 5:30 a.m. today!)

High pressure and fair weather marked this Friday morning's weather scene across a major portion of the country, marred only by some snow and snow flurry activity scattered from the upper plains to western New York and the mountains of Pennsylvania.

An interesting weather note and in sharp contrast to today's rather tranquil weather picture, it was just one year ago during this period when residents along the eastern seaboard were reeling from the onslaught of a horrendous coastal storm which, in fact, changed the face of the nation.

Wave and tidal action pounded, eroded and carved beach areas along the Atlantic seaboard, particularly from Virginia To New Jersey.

When it was over, 33 persons had died while property damage piled into an excess of $2 million.

Back to this morning's scene, there were areas of snow and snow flurries, tho generally light, scattered across the northeast quadrant.

However a strom centered over northeastern Minnesota a few hours before sunrise is expected to dump from one to three inches of new snow in that area before ending during the day.

The chilling news is that cold arctic air pouring south and eastward behind the Minnesota disturbance saw the mercury tumble sharply.

For example, Fargo, N. D., was logging 31 above at midnight, and by sunrise a relatively few hours later the thermomoter plunged to three below zero.

Cold wave warnings are out today for all portions of the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin, and these warnings will include most of the Midwest tonight.

Elsewhere across the nation, skies were generally clear as high pressure dominated the weather pattern.

There was some cloudiness across Texas while low clouds and morning fog rolled into some Pacific coastal sectors. Temperaturewise, the morning mercury registered in the 20s and 30s over most of the country; colder along the northeastern border sectors and in the north central portion of the country, where the fresh blast of arctic air sent the mercury near or below zero around northern Minnesota and North Dakota with Devil's Lake falling to 8 below shortly after sunrise.

Milder 49s were logged along the Pacific coast and southern border sections with morning thermomoters faling no lower than the 50s and 60s in southern Florida.

Controversy Over 'Silence' Rages in Nation's Capital

Wilson's letter continued: "Since the Communists obviously are aware of the answers to these questions, I can see no reason to withhold the same information from the American public."

In expressing agreement with Mahon, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said: "I feel that there's too much intelligence given out." And Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., told a reporter: "All should heed the admonition that silence is the golden rule of intelligence."

On the House side, Mahon's assertion that "the present situation is outrageous and intolerable" brought a bipartisan plea to try to stop the tongue-wagging as far as Congress is concerned.

"I hope that during these confused times members of Congress will be particularly careful about what they say," said Rep. Frances P. Bolton of Ohio, top Rebpulican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"We must exercise discretion in these matters," said Rep. Ben F. Jensen of Iowa, senior Republican on the Appropriations Committee. "None of us should be responsible for giving aid and comfort to the Communists by loose talk."

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota suggested in a Senate speech that a new joint committee on national security affairs be established with legislative jurisdiction over all government intelligence agencies.

In his speech, Mahon called on Kennedy, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and House Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., to "coordinate a course of action for the purpose of halting the rapid erosion of our national intelligence effort."

"Today's headlines may cost the lives of the human sources of information," Mahon said. "The enemy can find our intelligence sources much more easily when he knows what we have found out. This knowledge helps to pinpoint the location of intelligence activities, and once knowing the location, the discovery of the means is much easier and intelligence sources dry up."

Various administration officials have repeatedly expressed the view that, because this is a democracy where government secrets are suspect, there is a tendency to make public too much information that could be helpful to a potential enemy.

Any curbing of public discussion of intelligence activities might serve to quiet the continuing controversy about the effectiveness of intelligence operations involving Soviet moves in Cuba.

In addition, the administration might use Mahon's speech as a new lever to employ in discouraging government employes from giving certain kinds of information to newsmen.

At the time of the Cuban crisis, both the Defense and State departments issued directives aimed at this objective. Although both departments acted in the name of national security, it is questionable whether their orders ever were as effective as intended.

Mahon said the Kennedy administration "has mistakenly allowed itself to be goaded into revealing information detrimental to our best interests."

The remark recalled the uneasiness Kennedy expressed at a news conference Feb. 7, the day after Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and an aide conducted an unprecedented, television display of reconnaissance photographs of the Cuban arms buildup.

In a separate interview, Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., who in the past repeatedly charged the Kennedy administration with understating the extent of the Cuban arms buildup, said: "Any steps necessary to protect our national security will have my support. A attempt to suppress information simply to avoid embarrassment to government officials deserves no such consideration."

Arab Nationalism May Be Decided In Syrian Area

Phoenecians, lies at the eastern end of the Mediterranean with an important, bustling port at Latakia. Across the country run 430 miles of pipeline of the Iraq Petroleum Company, feeding vital fuel to Europe's industry. Syria occupies the western part of the Arab East's fertile crescent, and greater Syria has been a dream of many nationalists.

The clash between the modern West and the ancient East is evident on all sides. Swank Arabs finger their ever-present beads but look as Western as Chicagoans. In restaurants and cabarets they mingle with dark-skinned bearded sheiks in robes and headdress from the provinces or other parts of the Arab East.

Syria is a land of contradictions, rich in the history of Islam and Christianity but splattered with the blood of the eternal clash between East and West.

Damascus has about 40 Christian churches and more than three times that many mosques, whose ancient minarets dot a western skyline with an oriental fringe.

Syrai's wounds are deep and old. Once she was a proud nation dominating a vast area. But she has a history of indignities, of colonialism, of big power politics. Hatred rages in the Arab breast for neighboring Israel, which the Arabs consider an expression of western imperialism.

Syria's history is one of invasions: By the Egyptians, the Assyrians, the Macedonians, the Persians, the Mongols, and finally the Turks of the Ottoman Empire, who ruled the country harshly for 400 years. After World War I the French came to the Levant with a League of Nations mandate.

The Syrians were restless and resentful under the French and there were many disturbances. By the end of World War II, the French could hold out no longer and Syria won her independence in 1946.

The only semblance of unity Syria achieved in modern times with other Arabs was her brief stay in President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic from March, 1958, until September 1961.

Nixon Fires New Salvo Regarding Cuban Invasion

taped television show, said he "could not imagine" former President Dwight D. Eisenhower not providing such air cover. Nixon advocated an oil blockade of Cuba.

Saying President Kennedy has been subjected to some unfair criticism on the invasion, Nixon added: "I think he was wrong in another respect. I think he was wrong, once we committed our power, in not seeing it through and finishing the job.

"And when the suggestion is made that President Eisenhower may or may not have planned air cover, I would only suggest this: I cannot imagine the general, who planned the greatest invasion in history, the invasion of Normandy, allowing those 1,500 brave Cubans to go in the Bay of Pigs there without having first destroyed the enemy air power or providing air cover."

Nixon's appearance on the Jack Paar show was taped last Sunday in New York for showing tonight on NBC-TV. But the program was shown first Thursday night on CTV in Toronto, a Canadian commercial network.

Nixon called for "a political, diplomatic, economic and military quarantine of Cuba, of communism in Cuba."

Newsday, a Long Island daily newspaper, reported Thursday that last Tuesday during an off-the-record speech at Garden City, N.Y., Nixon advocated an oil blockade of Cuba in recommending a four-point U.S. policy toward Cuba. His four points: removal of all Russian troops, on-site inspection of missile installations, an end to foreign aid to nations which trade with Cuba and a partial blockade to stop all oil shipments to the island.

Nixon repeated those assertions on the television program.

Republicans who have criticized the President about Cuba "will join in a bipartisan support of any strong action that President Kennedy will take to remove the Communist cancer," Nixon said.

"My answer is this: That we've got to run American foreign policy from the standpoint of the United States of America and the defense of freedom throughout the world, and we shouldn't take a vote of popularity of the neutrals and the other nations of the world and let our policy be only what the weak and timid will approve," he said.

Nixon, in Chicago on Thursday, held his first news conference since immediately after his November defeat in California's gubernatorial election.

Nixon told the newsmen he plans a number of speaking appearances next fall and said he "will support and campaign enthusiastically for the Republican candidate, whoever he may be."

Nixon listed the leading candidates for the GOP presidential nomination as New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, and Michigan Gov. George Romney.

"In my view one of the four will be nominated. Rockefeller is the front runner today—the polls show that."

$100-Million News Strike to Be Ended

were still some outstanding issues to be resolved.

Amory H. Bradford, general manager and vice president of the New York Times and chief negotiator for the publishers, said it was "a costly settlement but one which is acceptable to the publishers."

Bradford estimated that if the package is accepted by the printers—and if the other newspaper craft unions accept similar terms it will cost the papers about $18.5 million over the next two years.

There was no indication that the agreement will result in a rise in newsstand prices of the papers.

Bradford said the agreement would be effective from the day the newspapers resume publication. He said the publishers would meet with the ITU again—"to clean up the remaining issues and to agree on contract language"—after everyone had had a chance to rest.

The newspaper shutdown—longest and costliest in this city's history—began Dec. 8, when the printers struck the Times, Daily News, Journal-American and World-Telegram & Sun.

Although their contracts with all the papers expired at the same time, the printers did not strike the Post, Herald Tribune, Mirror, Long Island Press and Long Island Star-Journal. Those papers closed voluntarily although the Press continued to publish editions for circulation outside New York City.

The mailers union, a sister union of the ITU, joined the strike Jan. 9, and the stereotypers went on strike this week.

Originally, the printers asked an increase of $19 a week, plus fringe benefits the publishers said would bring their total cost to $37 per week per man.

In a formal statement, the publishers association invited all newspaper unions "to join us in bringing to an end this prolonged period of strike." It expressed the hope that the agreement "will result in a contract and early resumption of publication."

On the question of automation, Bradford said the agreement provided for the use of outside Teletypesetter tape to set stock market tables.

Bradford said the agreement provides for "further study and discussion" and that if no agreement is reached with the union the question of teletypesetter tape will be submitted to arbitration.

In Cleveland, Ohio, where the two newspapers have been shut down by strikes for 99 days, the latest negotiations between striking printers and the publishers failed to budge either side.

The printers are considered the key union of the three on strike against the Plain Dealer and the Press & News. Two of the five unions which struck have reached contract settlements.

Management has offered the Cleveland printers a two-year contract providing for a package increase of $9 in wages and fringe benefits. The union demands $18.

Cripple Creek Is Seen As Underground Site

He said, however, that the Air Force had no objections to him making a statement on what knowledge he had if he was asked by the press.

"This is about all I can tell you. I don't know what they are planning there. We will all find out in good time," he said.

When asked if the project might have some connection with Secretary of the Defense Robert S. McNamara's statement last Jan. 30 that the 1964 fiscal year budget would include an alternate command center for the Strategic Air Command, Chenoweth said:

"I don't know. I'd rather not discuss it. I just don't have any knowledge of the nature of the plans."

Thursday, McNamara said in Washington that the Pentagon is proposing to start construction of such support centers for SAC in the bookkeeping year which begins July 1.

The Air Force, however, said that the Cripple Creek surveys have no "relation to any construction plans or programs. This position still stands."

First announcement of the surveys at Cripple Creek was made Tuesday by the Air Force and the Army Engineers in Omaha, Neb.

At that time, Col. Virgil B. Culberson, Air Force regional civil engineer, said the engineers and the Air Force were planning to make a study to determine the feasibility of locating underground facilities in the Cripple Creek area.

He said the engineers were asked to obtain permission to enter property in that area for the pubpose of obtaining further detailed information to be used in site surveys. He said no actual construction is currently planned.

Spokesmen at NORAD here said the local command had no information on the project and declined any comment.

Chenoweth, in his interview, confirmed that several studies had been made in the Cripple Creek area over the past several months.

It is known that at least a dozen survey trips have been made to the area dealing with possible housing on rental basis, availability of electrical power, water etc.

Early reports indicate that the Air Force and Army Engineers would use the already bored tunnels and shafts as well as deep mines for the installation rather than bore new ones as had to be done at NORAD's Hardsite.

The project is in line with recent thinking that military control centers, mainly defensive and offensive posts, should be located in areas as safe as possible from the ravages of nuclear attack and fallout. This theory led to the multi - million dollar NORAD Hardsite project under Cheyenne Mountain.

If one of the mines in the old gold mining region of Cripple Creek issued, it would mean a considerable savings to the government since very little, if any, excavation would be necessary.

Critical Spots Still Remain In Flood Zones

heavy rain or snow was reported and temperatures were mostly near normal levels. Cool spots were across Northern areas from the Plains to Maine. It was a little cooler in the Southeast, with temperatures dropping to the upper 30s in extreme northern Florida and much of Dixie north of Florida.

Although flood conditions in most of Ohio appeared improved, there were some trouble spots. A mile-long ice jam broke in the Sandusky River in Fremont Thursday night, pushing the stream up to three feet above the 12-foot flood stage.

Huge ice floes 50 feet high were stacked at the north and south ends of Fremont. The river cuts through the city. Mayor Richard Maier declared a state of emergency for the northwest Ohio city of 18,000.

In Pennsylvania, an ice jam formed on the Susquehanna River in the Harrisburg area and residents in lowland areas north of the city were evacuated. Harrisburg, however, appeared in no immediate danger.

Flood warnings were issued for areas in central South Carolina. The Broad River crested at 12 feet and the Congaree River rose rapidly to crest at 22 feet, 3 feet above flood stage.

Five counties in West Virginia, hit hard by overflows from the Ohio River and its tributaries earlier this week have been designated as disaster areas by the Small Business Administration in Washington. The counties are Brooke, Hancock, Marshall, Ohio and Wetzel, which will be eligible for federal loans for repairs to property caused by the damaging floods.

Norwich, Conn., also was declared a disaster area in the wake of damaging flood waters which swept into the city of 40,000 Wednesday night after a dam, weakened by heavy rains, broke. The tons of water set off a boiler explosion in a manufacturing plant, killing five persons. One woman drowned in the flood waters and six persons were hospitalized. Damage was estimated at between $1 million and $3 million.

Company 1 of the fire department at 11:10 p. m. Thursday made a run to Barley Refrigerating Co., 301 S. Tejon St., when an awning was found to be on fire. There was no damage except to the awning.

Death Penalty Recommended for Slayer of Son

PUEBLO (AP) — A 51-year-old Pueblo man was found guilty of first degree murder Thursday in the fatal beating of his son.

A District Court jury recommended the death penalty for Joe A. Segura who beat his son to death last Sept. 16 with a baseball bat during a family argument.

The jury of nine men and three women deliberated about four hours before reaching a verdict.

Defense attorney Vasco Seavy said he will file a motion for a new trial.

Segura showed no emotion as he heard the verdict marking the end of three days' court testimony.

Highlight of the trial was the testimony Wednesday of Segura's wife, Lorraine, 48, as a witness against him. Mrs. Segura's testimony came despite the repeated objections of Seavy who contended that it was contrary to accepted Colorado statures.

when Lt. Gen. Robert M. Lee, ADC commander, unveiled the portrait of Chidlaw which will hang in a place of honor in the lobby of the building.

Gen. Lee, in his remarks, said the opening of the building will "permit greater efficiency" in the operation of the command. He pointed out that this is the first time in the 17 year history of ADC that all of its units are located under one roof.

Gen. Lee accepted the keys to the building from Robert McNamara, regional administrator for the Government Service Administration who said the construction of the facility "was a rather unusual undertaking for the CSA. It is probably the biggest project we have participated in with the military in the Rocky Mountain area."

The keys were presented to McNamara by Jack Howard, president of UNITCO, the corporation which holds a 10 year lease on the 300,000 square foot building, who had accepted them from Ralph Tice, construction superintendent for Peter Kiewitt & Sons, the contractors on the job.

All of the speakers praised the cooperation received on the project from local, state and national officials.

The Chidlaw Building, which will serve as work space for 1,700 military and civilian personnel of ADC is the largest building of its type in Colorado Springs.

It was completed within a nine-month period and will be rented by the government for a $500,000 annual rental fee.

Participating in the dedication and ribbon cutting were the ADC Honor Flight and the NORAD band.

Today's Weather

(Reports furnished by U. S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 5:30 a.m. today!)

High pressure and fair weather marked this Friday morning's weather scene across a major portion of the country, marred only by some snow and snow flurry activity scattered from the upper plains to western New York and the mountains of Pennsylvania.

An interesting weather note and in sharp contrast to today's rather tranquil weather picture, it was just one year ago during this period when residents along the eastern seaboard were reeling from the onslaught of a horrendous coastal storm which, in fact, changed the face of the nation.

Wave and tidal action pounded, eroded and carved beach areas along the Atlantic seaboard, particularly from Virginia To New Jersey.

When it was over, 33 persons had died while property damage piled into an excess of $2 million.

Back to this morning's scene, there were areas of snow and snow flurries, tho generally light, scattered across the northeast quardrant.

However a strom centered over northeastern Minnesota a few hours before sunrise is expected to dump from one to three inches of new snow in that area before ending during the day.

The chilling news is that cold arctic air pouring south and eastward behind the Minnesota disturbance saw the mercury tumble sharply.

For example, Fargo, N. D., was logging 31 above at midnight, and by sunrise a relatively few hours later the thermomoter plunged to three below zero.

Cold wave warnings are out today for all portions of the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin, and these warnings will include most of the Midwest tonight.

Elsewhere across the nation, skies were generally clear as high pressure dominated the weather pattern.

There was some cloudiness across Texas while low clouds and morning fog rolled into some Pacific coastal sectors. Temperaturewise, the morning mercury registered in the 20s and 30s over most of the country; colder along the northeastern border sectors and in the north central portion of the country, where the fresh blast of arctic air sent the mercury near or below zero around northern Minnesota and North Dakota with Devil's Lake falling to 8 below shortly after sunrise.

Milder 49s were logged along the Pacific coast and southern border sections with morning thermomoters faling no lower than the 50s and 60s in southern Florida.

Four Hub Caps Taken From Car

Donald Saucerman of 819 N. Institute St. told the sheriff's office Thursday that four hubcaps were stolen from his car when it was parked at the Broadmoor World Arena lot.

Deputy Sheriff Edward Pakenham said the hubcaps were worth $33.30 and that several other cars in the area had their hubcaps taken.

Future of Europe Market Seen in Hands of Nine

By TOM A. CULLEN

BRUSSELS — (NEA) — The fate of 170 million Europeans scattered from the toe of Italy to the Baltic province of Schleswig Holstein in West Germany is in the hands of nine men who have their headquarters here in Brussels.

The nine form the Commission of the European Economic Community, or the Common Market as it is better known. They and a staff of 2,000 economists, technicians and secretaries are the Eurocrats, a hybrid breed of men and women.

The Eurocrats are remaking the face of the six nations (France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg) linked in the E.E.C.

Already they have achieved a large amount of economic unity among the Six, but their ultimate aim is political unity, no less than a United States of Europe.

Their economic success has been spectacular. In four years, trade among E.E.C. members has increased by nearly 75 per cent and their combined trade with the rest of the world by more than 25 per cent.

The E.E.C. is now the world's largest importer. Its gross product is expanding at the rate of 5 per cent annually, twice as fast as expansion in the United States. Its industry is growing four times faster than American industry.

The decisions which the Eurocrats make today are so far reaching that they will affect the lives of generations unborn. Consequently, the Eurocrats are not without critics who say they are too powerful, that they constitute a power elite which has no popular mandate behind it. The E.E.C. also has been described as "bureaucracy run riot," and "the golden age of the technocrats."

The all-powerful E.E.C. Commission is headed by Prof. Walter Hallstein of West Germany. Six of its nine members come from France, West Germany and Italy with the Benelux countries supplying the remainder. None has been elected to the office he holds.

On taking office they all swore not to uphold the interests of their own national governments, but to give their loyalty to the E.E.C. From the beginning, the commissioners are supranationals in their outlook.

They are politicians without an electorate, cabinet ministers without portfolios. They are responsible to everyone and hence to no one. They are subject to no democratic controls.

True, the 378-page Treaty of Rome which is the charter of the E.E.C., provides certain checks and balances to the commissioners' power. There is a Council of Ministers, composed of one representative from each of the six governments who is appointed specifically to represent national interests.

There is also a European Parliament of 142 members which meets in Strasbourg once a month. But it has no legislative authority; it can only recommend.

The Commission's powers, on the other hand, are sweeping. It alone can:

Put forward proposals for the Council of Ministers to consider.

Has mastered the technical details of the Common Market and can make day-to-day decisions.

The Commission meets every Wednesday in Brussels.

"We are building the New Europe from the ground up right here in these offices," says Adolfo Comba, an executive of the E.E.C.'s powerful economic and financial section.

"Right across the hall experts are deciding what Europe's rate of economic expansion will be in 1970," Comba added. As he spoke you could almost hear the whirr of their calculating machines.

Comba is a handsome Italian in his early 40s who is married to an American. He is what might be called a summit economist. His job is to stand on the heights and look down upon the European economy in relation to the rest of the world.

"For example," he explained, "I would be interested in figures on world cocoa production only insofar as they affected the economy of West Africa. Similarly, I might call for a study of world coffee prices to aid me in asserting the balance of payments situation in Brazil."

Not all the Eurocrats move in such a rarefied atmosphere. Most are engaged in breaking down broad policy into hundreds of small decisions.

They speak a jargon all their own, peppered with such expressions as "sluice - gate prices," "the hinge question," "harmonization," and "integration" (this latter is used in a political sense because President de Gaulle dislikes all mention of a United States of Europe).

Some of the jobs performed by Eurocrats sound downright insane. In one wing of the E.E.C. building I found a battery of men who do nothing all day long but study the fluctuation in world wheat prices as quoted on the Rotterdam exchange.

In another office a group of experts are trying to "harmonize" (standardize) the size of garden peas. There also have been fierce arguments over what constitutes a marrow fat.

A third group is concerned about food colorings, and after deliberating for months has finally agreed to list of 28 substances which may be used to color foodstuffs. The six member governments have been given three years to comply with this list.

The most celebrated case, however, concerns bedclothes. After deliberating for more than two years a Committee for the Standardization of Blankets is still unable to agree as to what constitutes a standard blanket.

Frenchmen like to have their toes covered by tucking the blanket well underneath the mattress; Germans do not. The Germans and the Italians prefer twin beds, which the French and the Belgians look upon in horror.

Barring a revolution in sleeping habits, it looks as though the committee will remain deadlocked.

Additional Gold Losses Faced by United States

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon said today the United States faces additional losses of gold and a continuing deficit in its balance of payments this year.

With that prospects, he said, the government must redouble its efforts to reduce the outflow of dollars in foreign aid programs and stimulate the economy at home.

Dillon, in a speech prepared for the American Bankers Association's annual monetary conference, called the need for improving the U.S. payments position one of the most telling arguments in favor of President Kennedy's tax program.

"I am convinced that tax reduction, prudently financed and accompanied by persistent and firm expenditure control, can play a major role in that improvement," he said.

"It will also free the hands of American monetary authorities to deal more vigorously with any contingencies that may arise—thus reinforcing our already strong defenses against pressures on the dollar during the difficult period until balance is fully restored."

Dillon made no prediction as to when a balance or surplus would be reached in the flow of dollars in and out of the country. The 1962 U.S. deficit, in this flow, was 2.2 bilion. Nearly $900 million in gold left the country.

While the deficit was the smallest since 1957, Dillon acknowledged progress was limited.

New Ballistic Missile Is Sent to Europe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U. S. forces in Europe will be provided this month with a new ballistic missile, the 86-mile range Sergeant which can carry either nuclear or conventional warheads, it was announced today.

The Defense Department said the first battalion of the missiles will be assigned to the U. S. Army in Europe this month. Additional units will be sent to the European command over the next several months.

While the announcement did not mention the fact, the solid-fuel Sergeant also can be used to carry chemical agents designed to incapacitate enemy forces.

The Sergeant, which has been eight years in development, is 34.5 feet long. It will replace the shorter range liquid-fueled Corporal, which has been in service in Italy and Germany for the past six years.

Early settlers in the United States depended on dehydrated buffalo meat for food.

Park Administration Transfer Is Opposed

DENVER (UPI) — Proposed legislation aimed at transferring functions of the State Parks and Recreation Board to the State Game and Fish Commission faced stiff opposition today from the Regional Parks Association.

The association is made up of some 30 civic groups in the metropolitan Denver area.

John Wiesbenson of Morrison, president of the association, said the metropolitan group opposed the bill to abolish the Parks and Recreation Department because:

—In other states where parks and game and fish activities have been combined, "it has meant a retarding of the parks acquisition and development program."

—Representation on the Game and Fish Commission by geographic areas rather than by population "means it would be impossible to get a parks - minded commission."

GOP Was 'Cubanized,' Chairman Tool Says

ENGLEWOOD (UPI)— Jean K. Tool, Republican state chairman, said Wednesday night the GOP was "Cubanized" out of between 20 and 25 congressional seats in the 1962 elections.

He said the GOP defeats resulted from President Kennedy's blockade action against Cuba and the ordering out of Soviet missiles from the Communist island. He called the action the "President's crisis."

Tool addressed the annual election meeting of the Arapahoe County Republican Central Committee.

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon said today the United States faces additional losses of gold and a continuing deficit in its balance of payments this year.

With that prospects, he said, the government must redouble its efforts to reduce the outflow of dollars in foreign aid programs and stimulate the economy at home.

Dillon, in a speech prepared for the American Bankers Association's annual monetary conference, called the need for improving the U.S. payments position one of the most telling arguments in favor of President Kennedy's tax program.

"I am convinced that tax reduction, prudently financed and accompanied by persistent and firm expenditure control, can play a major role in that improvement," he said.

"It will also free the hands of American monetary authorities to deal more vigorously with any contingencies that may arise—thus reinforcing our already strong defenses against pressures on the dollar during the difficult period until balance is fully restored."

Dillon made no prediction as to when a balance or surplus would be reached in the flow of dollars in and out of the country. The 1962 U.S. deficit, in this flow, was 2.2 bilion. Nearly $900 million in gold left the country.

While the deficit was the smallest since 1957, Dillon acknowledged progress was limited.

FOOD EXPORTS UP

CHICAGO (UPI) — The United States in 1962 exported more than $3.5 billion worth of food products, 20 per cent more than the previous apphime high in 1947, the Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc. said.

Agriculture Not Dying, Farm Expert Declares

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — Agriculture is not a dying industry, S. S. Wheeler, dean of the Colorado State University Agriculture School said Wednesday night.

"Unfortunately there has been too much pessimism about farming. People have looked at it as a dying industry," Wheeler said, "an industry that is dependent on subsidies.

"But the fact is that agriculture is changing, and that few industries can point to as rapid an increase in the efficiency of production as agriculture."

Wheeler made his remarks at a Future Farmers of America dinner here. He told an audience of 240 persons that "In the hue and cry for more scientists we have lost sight of the fact that agriculture itself is a science."

Wheeler said it is important to "look at the whole picutre of agricultural employment and not just at figures on the declining farm population."

He said it was true that the number of farm operators will continue to decrease.

"Bu the number of farm managers and the people who serve the farmer by providing the machinery, chemicals and seed he needs is growing steadily," he said.

Wheeler forecast a steady demand for trained farm researchers, farm business people, agricultural engineers, machine designers and others engaged in farm services.

"There are more calls for agricultural graduates today than we can supply," he said. Wheeler pointed out, as an example, that there were six students in agricultural journalism at CSU and that he could place 20 in jobs.

Pueblo Demos Elect Dr. Farley to Post

PUEBLO (UPI)—Pueblo Democrats this week elected Dr. John B. Farley to represent them at the Democratic State Central Committee meeting.

Farley, a longtime Pueblo Democratic worker, was indirectly castigated earlier this year by the same Democratic group for his support of Republican Sen. Peter Dominick during the general electon last fall.

Farley refused to support the incumbent Sen. John A. Carroll, a Democrat, because of Carroll's announced support for the Kennedy Administration's Medicare program.

The Pueblo Democrats last month warned all members and office holders they would be removed from office for future party disloyalty.

This Is Season of Soviet Spy, J. Edgar Hoover Says

By JOHN EDGAR HOOVER
Director,
Federal Bureau of Investigation
Copyright 1963,
By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — In this season of the Soviet spy — when the United States is espionage target No. 1 of Moscow—we might ask, "Who is a Soviet spy?" "What does he look like?" "Does he have a profile?"

Many people, undoubtedly, have a definite image of a spy—perhaps a good-looking, Mata Hari type, ready to romantically deceive, or a dire-faced fellow, in a long coat, racing up and down an alley.

Nothing could be further from the truth—for the profile of a Soviet spy today is that he has no profile! By this I mean it is not possible to set up any composite picture—because he is so different, so varied.

The spy may be old or young, man or woman, of any national background. He may be highly educated or illiterate; he may be a doctor, dentist, stenographer, military man, government worker, scientist or of any trade or profession; he may be highly trained as a spy or a neophyte; he may live in a cheap boarding house with no money in his pocket or reside in a swanky home.

Harry Gold was a rather undistinguished chemist from Philadelphia. His contact, Klaus Fuchs —who furnished data about America's most valuable secret of World War II, the atomic bomb —was a highly competent, well-educated scientist. Another Gold contact, David Greenglass, though not a scientist, was in an Army assignment at Los Alamos which enabled him to sketch the lens mold of the atomic bomb. Then there was David's wife, Ruth. She didn't actually commit espionage, but she helped solicit her husband to do his evil work.

All of these — including Julius and Ethel Rosenberg — were all different, yet they were part of one of the most dangerous spy combinations ever directed against the United States.

A typist, a file clerk or a charwoman—any person who has access to coveted industrial and scientific documents—can be valuable to the Russians.

In one instance the Soviets developed a technical librarian in an industrial firm. Who else would have so many secrets at her fingertips? The Russians even furnished cameras to clandestinely photograph documents.

While the FBI was investigating the Col. Rudolf Abel espionage case, we ran across the code name of "Quebec." Here was a Russian agent. Who was he? Our investigation focused on an Army sergeant previously assigned to the American Embassy in Moscow. Compromised by a Russian girl in Moscow with whom he had an affair, this man became invoved in espionage.

Then, like Col. Abel, there are deep-cover Soviet spies — native Russians, professionally trained in espionage, who enter the United States under false identification papers. Col. Abel, for example, posed as a photographer with a studio on the fifth floor of a Brooklyn building. He was an ordinary-looking fellow who would never command a second glance if you passed him on the street—yet he was a master Soviet spy.

After his arrest, the FBI found that his studio and hotel room were virtual museums of espionage equipment — cipher pads, shortwave radios, equipment for producing microdots. Located also were containers, such as coins, shaving brushes, tie clasps, which had been hollowed out for the purpose of secreting espionage messages.

This lack of a standard profile for a Soviet spy—his apparent anonymity and propensity to be of many types—increases the task of the FBI.

But, based on our experience, we have learned his habits, his methods of operation—how to identify and counteract him. That is our job as professional investigators.

You, the citizen, can do much to help us:

1. Report promptly any information you possess concerning espionage, sabotage and subversive activities.

2. Even if the information may seem insignificant or nonpertinent report it anyway. Many times a small piece of data, when placed with information we already possess, can solve an important case.

3. Report the facts. The FBI is not interested in rumor, gossip or idle talebearing.

4. Do not try to conduct your own investigation. The job of countering Soviet intelligence is a task for the trained investigator.

5. Be constantly alert.

Not long ago a photographer called the FBI. He said he wanted to report some information. On the basis of this call we were able to identify a Russian diplomat who, operating under an alias, was trying clandestinely to secure a special high altitude aerial map of New York City of a type not commercially available —a map which could have been of prime military value to the Russians.

This photographer's vigilance paid high dividends.

Mexican Valley Water Rate Study Is Begun

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Mexican experts have begun a two-month study of the controversial issue of Mexican Valley water rates with the apparent intention of urging an early increase, it was reported today.

Hydraulic resources minister Alfredo Del Mazo said Wednesday after conferring with President Adolfo Lopez Mateos, that present Mexicali rates are not enough to cover the cost of distribution.

Mazo added, however, that the riotously-protested rate increases recently put into effect by the Colorado River Irrigation District will be suspended until the Mexican rate study is complete.

Western Airlines Report Profit Boost

DENVER (UPI)—Western Air Lines reported Thursday it made $612,000 in profits last month, an increase of 17 per cent from January, 1962.

January operating revenues hit a record $7,582,000, up 9.5 percent from those of January, 1962. Operating income totaled $1,519,000 last month, compared to $910,000 during the same month last year.

ACCEPT NEGRO CLASSMATE

TROY, Ala. (UPI) —Seventy per cent of a group of Troy State College freshmen said in a poll released Wednesday that they would not object to a Negro classmate.

But 53 of 65 of the youths and coeds polled in connection with a sociology study in the bio-social classes said they would not care to sleep in a dormitory room with Negroes.

Reapportion Move Is Seen in Oklahoma

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White refused Thursday to block the threat of a federal court in Oklahoma City to reapportion the State Legislature if the legislature does not do so itself.

The three judge tribunal said it would take on the reapportionment job itself if the legislature had not done so by Friday.

The legislature has enacted a new law but it does not conform to standards in the lower court's decree.

In a second application, several state senators asked White to let a second state lawsuit go ahead, but he refused this application, also.

LEATHER TILES

NEW YORK (UPI) —Leather floor tiles — comparable in cost to carpeting — are cushiony underfoot, durable, absorb sound and can be washed with a mop dipped in soap or detergent suds, claims the Soap and Detergent Association.

Ellender Blasts Soft Diplomacy Of U.S. in Africa

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., contended here that the United States uses a "tip toe diplomacy" in Africa to avoid offending "thin-skinned politicians."

Ellender also repeated remarks he made in Africa last December that he has yet to see any part of Africa where Africans are ready for self-government.

He was banned from some African countries as a result of his remarks, and Tanganyika, he said officially proclaimed him a "prohibited immigrant."

Ellender held a news conference in advance of releasing copies of an 800-page report he has prepared on his visit to Africa.

He said that after some African countries had barred him for published reports of his remarks, he was given permission to stop in Kenya but "our people were scared to death—they were scared I might cause trouble. I got no protection from them."

Ellender said he was banned because of a newspaper headline which did not accurately reflect remarks he had made at a news conference in Salisbury, Rhodesia.

The headline, Ellender said, reported that he told the news conference "You need white help for 50 years."

"I never said that," Ellender said. "I never used the word 'white.' I did say that if there is any place in Africa where brick and mortar had been used by the natives to build a civilization through no assistance or without the assistance or guidance of Europeans, I had yet to see it."

He also said, he related, that "I have yet to see any part of Africa where Africans are ready for self-government."

"I did say that; it is the truth. And I repeat it here. I dare say no African country, newly independent, is capable of going ahead on its own."

Fiscal Suicide Seen By Denver Attorney

DENVER (UPI)—Denver attorney George K. Thomas warned Wednesday the U.S. was heading toward fiscal suicide by frittering away its gold reserves.

Thomas, in an address to the Denver Mining Club, called on the club to support legislation which he said would help cure the gold situation. For one thing, he said, government controls should be tossed out.

He said several bills now before Congress to stabilize the price of gold mined in America should be supported by mining interests in the United States.

Ellender Blasts Soft Diplomacy Of U.S. in Africa

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., contended here that the United States uses a "tip toe diplomacy" in Africa to avoid offending "thin-skinned politicians."

Ellender also repeated remarks he made in Africa last December that he has yet to see any part of Africa where Africans are ready for self-government.

He was banned from some African countries as a result of his remarks, and Tanganyika, he said officially proclaimed him a "prohibited immigrant."

Ellender held a news conference in advance of releasing copies of an 800-page report he has prepared on his visit to Africa.

He said that after some African countries had barred him for published reports of his remarks, he was given permission to stop in Kenya but "our people were scared to death—they were scared I might cause trouble. I got no protection from them."

Ellender said he was banned because of a newspaper headline which did not accurately reflect remarks he had made at a news conference in Salisbury, Rhodesia.

The headline, Ellender said, reported that he told the news conference "You need white help for 50 years."

"I never said that," Ellender said. "I never used the word 'white.' I did say that if there is any place in Africa where brick and mortar had been used by the natives to build a civilization through no assistance or without the assistance or guidance of Europeans, I had yet to see it."

He also said, he related, that "I have yet to see any part of Africa where Africans are ready for self-government."

TV Industry Ratings Blasted By Ex-Official

WAHINGTON (AP)—A former president of the National Broadcasting Co. says the television industry has been led into a never-never land by its slavish acceptance of audience ratings as an accurate measure of the viewing public.

Sylvester Weaver shook his head in sorrow as he told a House Commerce subcommittee Wednesday of the lengths to which the industry has gone in its reliance on the audience measuring reports.

"It's just one step from chicken entrails," said Weaver, alluding to the pagan practice of forecasting events by studying the spread out remains of slain birds.

Weaver, now television director for an advertising agency, testified after the subcommittee had heard officials of all three major television networks tell of the importance of the ratings in their operations.

"I'm greatly puzzled," said Chairman Oren Harris, D-Ark., "that this great, important industry should be so dependent on this service, and so satisfied with it."

"The decisions you have to make in television," he said, "are so subjective, so difficult to get into, that you have to grab at whatever seems to be real. You have to talk yourself into believing something provable really exists. You can't tell the client that the one thing that looks safe to talk about isn't safe either."

Weaver said the ratings have inaccuracies, but do provide "a relative measure of the relative popularity" of a television show. Even if there is a 20 per cent error in the figures, he explained, the same error is being made in rating all the shows.

Life in Cuba Not Good, Says Secretary Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Thursday there is growing discontent in Cuba and several hundred thousand Cubans have indicated they want to flee Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime.

"The economic situation is grim," Rusk said. "There is evidence of great and growing discontent on that island.

"The fact that a couple of hundreds of thousands of Cubans have given up all their material possessions and left Cuba to seek freedom abroad since the beginning of this present regime would indicate that Cuba is not a satisfactory place in which to live now.

"Our information is that several hundred thousands of these Cubans have indicated their desire to leave the country if possible." Rusk spoke in a recorded radio interview for an AFL-CIO program.

"There is no question whatever in my mind that the Cuban people will again be free," he said. "But we cannot be precise today about just how and when this will come about."

Rusk said there is no way to measure Cuban public sentiment with complete accuracy because the Cubans have had no election since Castro took over more than four years ago.

"The (Castro) regime has mismanaged their agricultural practices so that from a relatively prosperous economy, one of the most prosperous economies in the hemisphere, Cuba's has dropped to a typical satellite economy of the sort that we have seen in East Germany, North Viet Nam and other places," Rusk said.

BENEFITS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Private industry spent an estimated $20.6 billion in 1962 for employee pension and welfare funds, social security, unemployment insurance and injury compensation, according to the national industrial conference board. This is $2 billion more than was spent in 1961.

Navajo Indians Are Getting New Schools

DURANGO (UPI)—James Officer, associate commission of the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs, said today the bureau is spending $25 million this year on school construction on the Navajo Indian Reservation.

Officer, who addressed the final day of the four-day sixth annual Conference on Navajo Education, said the school construction would provide an additional 3,000 classroom spaces for Navajo children.

He said another $37 million was being sought by the bureau for Navajo school construction next year.

TV Industry Ratings Blasted By Ex-Official

WAHINGTON (AP)—A former president of the National Broadcasting Co. says the television industry has been led into a never-never land by its slavish acceptance of audience ratings as an accurate measure of the viewing public.

Sylvester Weaver shook his head in sorrow as he told a House Commerce subcommittee Wednesday of the lengths to which the industry has gone in its reliance on the audience measuring reports.

"It's just one step from chicken entrails," said Weaver, alluding to the pagan practice of forecasting events by studying the spread out remains of slain birds.

Weaver, now television director for an advertising agency, testified after the subcommittee had heard officials of all three major television networks tell of the importance of the ratings in their operations.

"I'm greatly puzzled," said Chairman Oren Harris, D-Ark., "that this great, important industry should be so dependent on this service, and so satisfied with it."

"The decisions you have to make in television," he said, "are so subjective, so difficult to get into, that you have to grab at whatever seems to be real. You have to talk yourself into believing something provable really exists. You can't tell the client that the one thing that looks safe to talk about isn't safe either."

Weaver said the ratings have inaccuracies, but do provide "a relative measure of the relative popularity" of a television show. Even if there is a 20 per cent error in the figures, he explained, the same error is being made in rating all the shows.

Life in Cuba Not Good, Says Secretary Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Thursday there is growing discontent in Cuba and several hundred thousand Cubans have indicated they want to flee Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime.

"The economic situation is grim," Rusk said. "There is evidence of great and growing discontent on that island.

"The fact that a couple of hundreds of thousands of Cubans have given up all their material possessions and left Cuba to seek freedom abroad since the beginning of this present regime would indicate that Cuba is not a satisfactory place in which to live now.

"Our information is that several hundred thousands of these Cubans have indicated their desire to leave the country if possible." Rusk spoke in a recorded radio interview for an AFL-CIO program.

"There is no question whatever in my mind that the Cuban people will again be free," he said. "But we cannot be precise today about just how and when this will come about."

Rusk said there is no way to measure Cuban public sentiment with complete accuracy because the Cubans have had no election since Castro took over more than four years ago.

"The (Castro) regime has mismanaged their agricultural practices so that from a relatively prosperous economy, one of the most prosperous economies in the hemisphere, Cuba's has dropped to a typical satellite economy of the sort that we have seen in East Germany, North Viet Nam and other places," Rusk said.

BENEFITS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Private industry spent an estimated $20.6 billion in 1962 for employee pension and welfare funds, social security, unemployment insurance and injury compensation, according to the national industrial conference board. This is $2 billion more than was spent in 1961.

Navajo Indians Are Getting New Schools

DURANGO (UPI)—James Officer, associate commission of the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs, said today the bureau is spending $25 million this year on school construction on the Navajo Indian Reservation.

Officer, who addressed the final day of the four-day sixth annual Conference on Navajo Education, said the school construction would provide an additional 3,000 classroom spaces for Navajo children.

He said another $37 million was being sought by the bureau for Navajo school construction next year.

Large Families Dwindle

By RUTH MILLETT

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"The large family may be losing some of its charm for the younger married woman." That is how Robert C. Cook, chief of the Population Reference Bureau, accounts for the bureau's prediction that though there are more potential mothers in each of the 50 states than ever before, the birth rate will probably continue to fall as it has been doing for the past four years.

If the large family is losing some of its charm for young married women, it's no wonder. With all of the demands, made on young homemakers today, it is hard for a mother to rear a large family unless she can afford household help.

Today's homemakers is expected to maintain such high standards in such matters as housekeeping, home decorating, entertaining, companionship with her husband, staying personally attractive, "doing" for her children, and in taking part in community affairs that she can't possibly do all that is expected of her, without help, if she has a large family.

On top of those requirements, many of today's young wives know that once their children reach school age they will have to work in order to assure their children of the "advantages" they want them to have. The more children, the more difficult it is for the wife to take on that outside job to help pay for a home, put something aside for college educations, and so on.

Another thing: today's young husbands often are more interested in secure jobs with a limited future than in taking a chance by aiming higher.

So the young wife knows from the start that the future isn't going to offer a great deal more than the present. She is inclined to think of family size in terms of how many children her husband is going to be able to provide for with his secure, little job.

If the large family doesn't have quite the appeal it once had, it's no wonder.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I would like to tell your readers that we have been working with starched products for some 10 years and were particularly interested in your comments on starching.

As you stated . . . washer starching is the fastest, most economical way to starch, if one has lots of starchable laundry.

You mentioned having received many letters asking for help on "starch spotting." We have found that starch spotting most often occurs for the following reasons:

1. A sufficient amount of starch solution is not prepared to completely cover and saturate the clean, damp items to be starched (this is particularly true in hand starching).

2. Lumpy starch — improper preparation.

3. The starch solution and water are not mixed well.

4. Dampened articles (starched and dried) are not allowed to stand long "enough" to permit even distribution of moisture before ironing.

5. Uneven starching—all too often a homemaker wishing a heavy starch finish on heavy weight fabric (such as denim or khaki) uses too heavy concentration.

6. Some fabrics are inherently hard to finish with or without starch (particularly some rayons, linens, and dark cottons); they should be ironed when damp (right for ironing) "rather" than the usual procedure of drying, sprinkling and then ironing!

With reference to dryer drying of starch loads: if clothes are tumbled beyond the storage dry stage, some starch will be removed from the dried clothes.

We have found, if at all convenient to do so, the homemaker will save herself time and money if she removes the starched load from the dryer when right for ironing, place in damp towel or piece of plastic and iron at once or set aside for ironing later.

By this method she saves herself the need for redampening, the time of waiting for the sprinkled clothes to be evenly damp, and use less fuel for operation of her dryer.

Starch that is sprayed on is expensive but to the homemaker who places a premium on convenience and her time, it's hard to beat.

1. You can spray and iron a portion of the article at a time. Most "starchables" adapt easily to the spray method, even some you might not expect:

Khakis — A light, even spray gives a medium stiffness. Spray and iron again if heavy stiffness is desired. (Caution: If the spray is "too heavy," the starch will not penetrate as well and will "flake off" when ironed!)

Bedspreads, tableclothes, slipcovers, and other bulky items can be starched more economically with hot starch but they finish wonderfully well with this method too.

2. You can spray dry articles completely—roll up—unroll and iron at once.

Smaller articles, and especially those made from light weight fabrics are "naturals" for this method. It gives the starch a moment to distribute more evenly and penetrate the fabric better.

Blouses, skirts, play clothes, sport shirts—try this method on: strong colored dacron — cottons and other light-weight blends; solid color cottons — keep the spray fine and even; dark colors — spray and iron these from the wrong side—of course!

3. You can spray damp-dried articles completely too, roll up and iron immediately, or put aside for ironing later.

Some fabrics streak readily with any starch and are always difficult to finish. Perhaps this method will help when difficulties arise.

Dresses—solid color linens and rayons; keep the spray light to avoid excessive stiffness. If "ironing lines" occur, brush with a damp cloth and touch up.

4. You can bring special items on a line to spray.

Partial starching — Want crisp collars and cuffs only? Spray the wrong side and then the right side! Then iron—first your wrong side and finish on the right side.

Travel touch-up? As you steam press, try very light spray of starch to remove creases and to crisp up collars and cuffs. — Ethel J. Russell Home Economics Consultant

Sour Cream Is Used In Light Dinner Rolls

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Home-baked rolls make any dinner seem particularly special. Making them does take a little extra time. But the aroma, tenderness and pleasure they give, repay the homemaker several fold.

These rolls are made much like ordinary yeast rolls, except that sour cream is used in place of the butter or shortening and milk. No milk to scald! Also, the slight crunchiness of corn meal and its corn flavor add welcome texture and taste variations.

Sour Cream Yeast Rolls
(Makes 3 dozen rolls)

1 cake compressed or 1 package dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 pint dairy sour cream
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
3½ to 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup enriched corn meal

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Combine sour cream, sugar and salt in large-sized bowl. Beat in 1 cup flour, softened yeast and corn meal. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough.

Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead until satiny, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl; brush lightly with melted shortening. Cover; let rise in warm place until double in size, about 2 hours.

Punch dough down; turn out on lightly floured board or canvas. Cover; let rest 10 minutes. Shape dough to form bowknots, twists, rosebuds, fan tans, clothespin rolls or clover leaf rolls.

Place on ungreased cooky sheets or in greased muffin cups. Brush with melted shortening; cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 45 minutes. Bake in preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) about 20 minutes or until golden brown. Brush lightly with melted butter.

Are Two Pays Worth It!

By RUTH MILLETT

Ask a young mother who holds a job while she hires someone to look after her children why she decided to go back to work. Chances are she will say, "Because it is getting harder and harder for a family to live on one salary."

That reads like a logical answer. Most people accept it as such. But is it really?

Don't many young working mothers really mean that they don't want to live on their husbands' salaries?

They don't want to settle for houses or apartments their husbands can provide alone. They don't want to have to count pennies and figure out all kinds of ways to make a dollar go as far as possible. They don't want to make do with the clothers their husbands' pay check can provide. They don't want to answer their children's demands for things with, "We simply can't afford it."

They don't wnat, in short, to accept the kind of living thier husbands can afford for the family to have.

And so they often go to work not out of dire necessity, but because they have decided a higher accept the kind of living their husbands can provide is more important to the family's welfare than for the home to have a full-time homemaker.

Perhaps this is a decision that some mothers make too lightly. For when a mother of young children goes to work and hires someone to look after her children she is almost always giving their care to a woman who is more poorly equipped then she is to guide them. Even if the woman she hires to be a substitute mother is actually as smart as she is, she is still only a substitute.

So before a mother of young children decides the family can't live on one pay check, she ought to be quite sure that what she really means is not, "We can't live the way I want to live on one pey check." There's quite a difference between the one and the other.

Lamb Madeira Is Real Spring Economy Treat

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Ever cook a rolled shoulder of lamb? A good menu change. It's easy to carve and it's also one of the many lower-cost cuts.

Lamb A La Maderra
(Makes 6 to 8 servings)

1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon crushed basil
5-pound boned lamb shoulder, rolled and tied
1 can (1 pound) purple plums
1 can (1 pound 4 ounces) sliced pineapple
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Red food coloring, optional
1-3 cup Madeira wine or orange juice

Mix salt, pepper and basil; rub over lamb. Place lamb on rack in shallow roasting pan; bake in slow oven (325 degrees) 2 hours. Drain syrup from plums and pineapple and stir into cornstarch in saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly until glaze is thickened and clear. Add a few drops red food coloring if desired. Drain off lamb drippings; pour 1 cup glaze over lamb, reserving remainder for sauce.

Bake meat 30 to 60 minutes longer or until meat thermometer registers 175 to 180 degrees (depending on desired degree of doneness). Baste occasionally with glaze from bottom of pan. Garnish lamb with pineapple and plums; and parsley if desired. Stir wine or juice and 2 tablespoons pan glaze into reserved glaze; heat and serve with lamb.

St. Patrick's Day Loaf Wears Traditional Green

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Molded Avocado And Tuna Loaf Erin
(6 to 8 servings)

1 package lime-flavored gelatin
1¼ cups boiling water
1 cup mashed avocado (one)
3 drops green food coloring
3 drops yellow food coloring

1 (7-ounce) can of tuna, flaked
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ cup chopped green pepper
⅛ teaspoon celery seed
1 tablespoon creamy French dressing
¼ teaspoon seasoned salt
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
3 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
8 slices enriched bread
1 hard-cooked egg, sliced
½ (3 - ounce) package cream cheese

Combine gelatin and water; let cool until slightly set; add mashed avocado, blending well with a rotary beater. Pour ½ cup of the gelatin mixture into oiled (1½-quart) loaf pan. Chill until firm. Combine tuna, pimiento, lemon juice, green pepper, celery seed, French dressing, seasoned salt and mayonnaise. Make 2 (4-layer) sandwiches, using soft butter on bread and ¼ cup tuna filling in each layer.

Trim off crusts and place sandwiches next to each other in the center of the loaf pan on top of gelatin layer. Pour remaining gelatin mixture around and over sandwiches. Refrigerate until firm. Unmold and garnish loaf with 3 slices of hard-cooked eggs and a green-pepper ring to simulate a shamrock. Edge bottom of loaf with white or yellow softened cream cheese piped through a pastry tube.

Aged in Kentucky

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Old age, retirement and life after 60 has its problem wherever you live. But a recent survey by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the University of Kentucky shows there are differences between old age in the country and old age in the city.

For example, men in Casey County, Kentucky, reported substantially smaller annual incomes than those living in Lexintgon, an urban area. The country dwellers had annual incomes of $815 compared with $2,256 for the city dwellers. But the income of Lexington's older men dropped more sharply with age than did that of farm residents.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

She Wants to Know!

DEAR ABBY: What, in your opinion, is a good line of work for a girl to get into if she is interested in getting man? —ANXIOUS

DEAR ANXIOUS: Nursing—a man loves a girl who knows how to rub his back. Air line stewardess—where else can you find a man already strapped down?

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a good woman except for one thing. She is a lousy cook. Everything she makes tastes the same. She smokes whiel she cooks and ashes fall into the food. I am always finding something in my dinner that doesn't belong there. One night the supper is under-cooked and the next night it's burned. She hasn't cooked a good meal since I married her and it's been six years. Any suggestions? —INDIGESTION

DEAR INDIGESTION: Your problem didn't originate in the kitchen, and chances are it can't be solved by me in your mailbox. A woman who doesn't care enough about her husband to "try" to put a good meal in front of him needs more help than I can give her in a letter. If there is a marriage counselor in your area, invite him to dinner.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me how you can keep an old witch of a mother-in-law out of your house: This one has had four husands. Buried one, divorced two, and drove the fourth one crazy. (No joking—he is in a mental institution.) She comes over every day, uninvited, and orders everybody around. She talks incessantly and criticizes everything and everybody. She has two other children who are lucky enough to live out of town, and they treat her like they don't even know she is alive. My husband tells me not to pay any attention to her. How can I accomplish this miracle? I think she needs psychiatric care. —VERY VERY NERVOUS

DEAR NERVOUS: Think of your mother-in-law as someone just two steps ahead of the man in the white coat and your resentment will turn to compassion and your anger to resignation. Do this for your own sanity, or you will beat her to the psychiatrist.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Paul": Don't worry. If criticism had any real power to harm, the skunk would be extinct by now.

Sour Cream Is Used In Light Dinner Rolls

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Home-baked rolls make any dinner seem particularly special. Making them does take a little extra time. But the aroma, tenderness and pleasure they give, repay the homemaker several fold.

These rolls are made much like ordinary yeast rolls, except that sour cream is used in place of the butter or shortening and milk. No milk to scald! Also, the slight crunchiness of corn meal and its corn flavor add welcome texture and taste variations.

Sour Cream Yeast Rolls
(Makes 3 dozen rolls)

1 cake compressed or 1 package dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 pint dairy sour cream
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
3½ to 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup enriched corn meal

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Combine sour cream, sugar and salt in large-sized bowl. Beat in 1 cup flour, softened yeast and corn meal. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough.

Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead until satiny, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl; brush lightly with melted shortening. Cover; let rise in warm place until double in size, about 2 hours.

Punch dough down; turn out on lightly floured board or canvas. Cover; let rest 10 minutes. Shape dough to form bowknots, twists, rosebuds, fan tans, clothespin rolls or clover leaf rolls.

Place on ungreased cooky sheets or in greased muffin cups. Brush with melted shortening; cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 45 minutes. Bake in preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) about 20 minutes or until golden brown. Brush lightly with melted butter.

Are Two Pays Worth It!

By RUTH MILLETT

Ask a young mother who holds a job while she hires someone to look after her children why she decided to go back to work. Chances are she will say, "Because it is getting harder and harder for a family to live on one salary."

That reads like a logical answer. Most people accept it as such. But is it really?

Don't many young working mothers really mean that they don't want to live on their husbands' salaries?

They don't want to settle for houses or apartments their husbands can provide alone. They don't want to have to count pennies and figure out all kinds of ways to make a dollar go as far as possible. They don't want to make do with the clothers their husbands' pay check can provide. They don't want to answer their children's demands for things with, "We simply can't afford it."

They don't wnat, in short, to accept the kind of living thier husbands can afford for the family to have.

And so they often go to work not out of dire necessity, but because they have decided a higher accept the kind of living their husbands can provide is more important to the family's welfare than for the home to have a full-time homemaker.

Perhaps this is a decision that some mothers make too lightly. For when a mother of young children goes to work and hires someone to look after her children she is almost always giving their care to a woman who is more poorly equipped then she is to guide them. Even if the woman she hires to be a substitute mother is actually as smart as she is, she is still only a substitute.

So before a mother of young children decides the family can't live on one pay check, she ought to be quite sure that what she really means is not, "We can't live the way I want to live on one pey check." There's quite a difference between the one and the other.

Judge Dismisses Tax Charges Against Beck

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—A federal judge has dismissed income tax evasion charges against Dave Beck Sr., former president of the Teamsters Union, and five others accused of conspiring with him.

"It would be a waste of public funds to carry prosecution further," U.S. Dist. Judge George H. Boldt said.

Beck, 68, is serving a five-year sentence at McNeil Island Federal Penitentiary near here. He was convicted in December 1957 of evading $240,000 in income taxes for 1950-53 and two counts of filing false returns for the union.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals set the tax evasion conviction aside in January 1962 on the question of taxability of embezzled money.

The tax evasion case was sent back for retrial, but Asst. U.S. Atty. Jack S. Obenoeur said Wednesday the government decided Monday against another trial because Beck is in prison on the false returns conviction. He will not be eligible for parole for about a year. He is serving a five-year sentence for filing false returns for the union.

Conspiracy charges were dropped against Nathan W. Shefferman, a labor consultant, and his son, Shelton, of Chicago, Beck's son, Dave Jr., Seattle; and the late Fred Verschuren Sr. Seattle, who was an accountant for the union.

WHEAT RIDGE (AP) — An 18-year-old Norwegian high school girl was named Honorary Sweetheart Wednesday by the Wheat Ridge chapter of the Order of DeMolay, a spokesman said.

The girl, Merete Selmer of Kristensund, Norway, is currently a student at Wheat Ridge High School where she is studying on an American Field Service Scholarship.

Bill Hardesty, a spokesman for the Masonic group, said Miss Selmer attended a DeMolay installation March 3. He said she liked it so much that she wanted to join. But since the organization's membership is limited to males 14 to 21 years old, she could not become a member.

At a meeting Wednesday the 100 members voted unanimously to make her Honorary Sweetheart. Hardesty said such action is unique and, to his knowledge, had never been done elsewhere.

He said a report of the action was being sent to Colorado headquarters of the group, suggesting that Miss Selmer be named statewide Honorary Sweetheart.

'VISION FOR SHRINE' — Mrs. Sarah Bartholomae of Los Angeles points to a sketch which she had an architect draw up of a $1 million shrine she says she plans to build east of Los Angeles in the shape of John Glenn's Mercury space capsule. The 47-year-old woman received a $4 million divorce settlement last month. She said that following Glenn's flight she had a vision during a prayer, in which she saw the space vehicle "not as the Mercury capsule, but as a beautiful shrine." (AP Wirephoto)

Greeks Charge Britishers Are Vandals of Art

By TOM A. CULLEN

LONDON (NEA)—Are the British a nation of "barbarians, vandals, looters of ancient art treasure"?

Is the British Museum "one vast loothouse where the spoils of ancient Greece are illegally held"?

A sizable number of Greeks apparently think that this is so, and they have started a campaign for the return of ancient Greek works of art now in British hands.

Chief bone of contention are the Elgin Marbles, 253 pieces of marble sculpture which once graced the Parthenon on the Acropolis in Athens, and which are now housed in the British Museum.

These priceless sculptures were acquired by Lord Elgin in 1800, transported to England and bought by the British government for $100,000. The British defense has always been that had the treasure not been brought to England it would have been destroyed by neglect, pilfering and wanton damage.

The Greeks, on the other hand, claim that the Elgin Marbles were acquired by trickery, bribery and fraud: Vice Adm. Charalambos Rouchotas, a member of the Greek parliament, is heading the campaign for the return of the Elgin Marbles and has enlisted the support of leading Greek writers, artists and intellectuals.

If he gets no action from the British government, Rouchotas plans to erect illuminated signs over the Acropolis reading: "The profane hand of the British diplomat Thomas Elgin removed the famous Parthenon friezes."

The Greeks are not without their sympathizers here. Many Britons feel that their government should return the sculpture as a gesture of Anglo-Greek friendship. Quite apart from the moral issue, the marbles could be shown to far greater advantage in the clear light of Athens than as they are now shown, tucked away in a gloomy museum, it is argued.

But the British Museum is standing pat. "If every country started demanding back its relics there would be no museums left," a spokesman points out.

Few structures in the world have been battered as much as the Parthenon in its 2,395-year history. The wonder is that anything of it is left to admire.

The Parthenon was built as a temple to Athena between 447 and 432 B.C. when Pericles was the leader in Athens. The structure survived as a pagan temple for 900 years and was converted into a Christian church about 450 A.D. In 1458, Athens was captured by the Turks. The Parthenon was then turned into a mosque.

In 1687 the Turks were beseiged in the Acropolis by the Venetians, one of whose shells set off the gunpowder magazine which the Turks had stored in the Parthenon. The explosion blew out all the middle building, threw down many of the marble columns along the long sides and the sculptures with them.

When Lord Elgin came on the scene in 1800 as British ambassador to Turkey he found the Parthenon an empty shell. Some of the fallen sculptures were buried beneath debris, others had been burned for lime, and still others were built into the walls of surrounding houses. Lord Elgin determined to save what he could of the treasure.

Greece was then still part of the Turkish Empire. Lord Elgin obtained permission from the Turkish central government and removed the sculpture to England in 1800 to 1804.

The Elgin Marbles include 15 metopes, or marble panels in high relief; more than a dozen pieces of sculpture including a Caryatid and a statue of Dionysus; and some 400 feet of a 524-foot frieze.

If the Greeks succeed in their present campaign to have the Elgin Marbles returned, they will concentrate on other Greek antiq- best known are the Venus de Milo and the Winged Victory of Samothrace, both in the Louvre in Paris.

Latins Tighten Travel Curbs in Anti-Red Move

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mexico and its Central American neighbors tightened curbs on travel today as a precaution against possible Communist attempts to disrupt President Kennedy's visit to Costa Rica March 18.

Panama closed its Costa Rican border and Mexico imposed restrictions on travel to that country. Costa Rica expelled four Nicaraguan Communists said to be plotting to disrupt Kennedy's scheduled talks with Central American presidents.

Dispatches from Panama City said only previously authorized travellers will be permitted in the Costa Rican border area from now until after the conference. Even these persons are subject to personal search, the reports said.

In Mexico City, travelers attempting to board planes for San Jose were turned back at the airport if they did not carry a "special visa" now required for travel to Costa Rica.

Communist Cuba has bitterly attacked the Costa Rican conference, at which Kennedy is to discuss U. S. policies, including the Alliance for Progress, with the presidents of El Salvador, Costa Rica, Guatemala, Nicaragua, Honduras and Panama.

Youth Crews Will Be Given Farm Jobs

DENVER (AP) — The State Employment Department will place youth crews on farm jobs in Grand Junction, Sterling, Fort Morgan and the Arkansas Valley this summer.

The aim is to encourage more boys to accept farm jobs.

"For many years we have placed individual youngsters in farm jobs," Bernard E. Teets, department director, said. "This will be the first time we have tried to organize them into crews."

They will be paid on a piece rate basis with a guaranteed minimum scale of 90 cents per hour. No boy less than 16 will be permitted to work more than eight hours a day.

"The big question," Teets said, "is whether city-reared youths will be willing to engage in this type of hard work all summer long, and whether it will be profitable for farmers to employ them."

Human Rights Creator's Gift to Man, Editor Says

A question of semantics in the Declaration of Independence has led to the popular theory today that human rights are provided by governments, Robert LeFevre, gazette Telegraph editor, told the Colorado Springs Junior Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

"Human rights come to man by nature and from the Creator. The state may have power, but man has the rights. The state cannot give you life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," he said.

The editor, who is also president and founder of the Freedom School, made the observations in a discussion of the "Doctrine of Human Rights." During his address, he analysed the first five sentences of the second paragraph of the Declaration of Independence.

"These five sentences are perhaps the most revolutionary ever committed to the English language," LeFevre said.

In prefacing his discussion of the human rights set down in these sentences, the speaker said that today there are two broad theories concerning human rights.

One holds that "rights are whatever governments say they are ... that rights come from the government and stay only as long as the government chooses to permit them to stay," and the other simply states that "rights do not come from the state but derive from men ... men grant power to the state but retain the rights."

He said the latter theory, which led to our Declaration of Independence, was first put forth by John Locke in England in the 18th century. Later, George Mason adopted these precepts and put them into his Virginia Bill of Rights, the forerunner of our Declaration of Independence.

"It is important to remember that the Declaration of Independence is not a government document; it is not a law. It is a statement of intention," LeFevre said.

He pointed to the statement in the Declaration, that "we hold these truths to be self - evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness."

"This is a deeply meaningful statement — 'We hold these truths to be self-evident.' This is not a surface desire or a political manifestation. It says that these truths are so deeply rooted that they are self-evident," LeFevre said.

He pointed out that philosophically it is impossible to prove that man lives, "but we know this to be true because it is self-evident."

He pointed out also that our forefathers made clear that these truths "emanate not from the state but from the Creator."

"The document says," LeFevre said, "we have the right to pursue happiness. There is no guarantee whatsoever that you'll get it. The state won't provide it. The state can't provide Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

Turning to the next sentence, "That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed," he said it was the word "secure" in this statement which has led to the belief that human rights come from the government.

"The word secure, at the time this Declaration was written, meant only one thing, to make fast or to nail down. It did not mean to get or obtain." "Governments are created by men for the purpose of nailing down these rights, not to get them for men."

He pointed out also that the consent of the governed "does not say consent of the majority."

"They were trying to set up a society of equal rights which means that each person has the right only to what is his. It does not mean that the majority have the right to what belongs to another," the speaker said.

"These rights belong to you as an individual and cannot be alienated by any state, politician or individual," he said.

He said that the condition at the time leading up to the formation of the Declaration of Independence was one which was alienating human rights.

"We, during this time, didn't pay much attention to the king or any government. Americans paid taxes when they felt like it and when the king sent tax collectors to force payment of taxes they tarred and feathered them," LeFevre said.

"They had no social security, no general government around to tell them what to do and what not to do and were making a howling success of this. They said this situation works, and it has worked for 150 years. All men are equal and there are no kings in a society of equal rights," he said.

The speaker pointed out that the concept of equal rights teaches that there are "no special rights for kings or anyone else."

He explained that the Declaration of Independence also gives man the right to alter and change government if it "becomes destructive of these ends," referring to human rights.

"It is your duty to change it if it does this," LeFevre said.

He said that today, the theory that rights are something which are provided by the state has led to the formation of the Communist constitution and the United Nations Charter and is still in effect in England today.

"The Declaration of Independence said men are very important individually and it means that each of you have the same rights as others and that no one has more than anyone else. And the government doesn't give them," he said.

Businessmen From Denver to Visit Florence

Florence businessmen are being asked to turn out Wednesday, March 20, to greet and meet a large delegation of Denver businessmen who will be stopping off briefly in the city as guests of the Florence Chamber of Commerce.

The Denver group, who call themselves the "Denvoys," are members of the Denver Chamber of Commerce and annually make tours of the state.

This month the Denvoys will visit Fremont county and will arrive at the Pabco plant March 20 at 8 a.m. The group will stop at the plant about 45 minutes and will come directly to the new school cafeteria in Florence for coffee and donuts.

They will spend the bulk of the afternoon in Canon City after stopping for a noon luncheon at the pre - parole center where they have invited members of the Florence Chamber of Commerce and Lions club to eat with them. Others in Canon City invited to the luncheon include the Canon City Chamber of Commerce, Lions Club, and Rotary Club.

Anthony Scutti, secretary of the Florence Chamber of Commerce, asked that as many businessmen as possible turn out to meet the Denver group and make them welcome to this area.

At a recent meeting of the Florence Chamber, the board of directors announced that they are currently seeking a site for an industrial park and have several locations in mind including a couple of sites along the river. The board is seeking between 40 and 160 acres for industrial expansion.

Indecent Behavior Brings 90-Day Jail Term Plus Fine

A young Ft. Carson soldier Thursday in Municipal Court was given a 90-day jail sentence and a $100 fine following a hearing on charges of indecent exposure and behavior.

The soldier, Glynn Starrett, 21, 2505 E. Highway 24, was represented by attorney Paul Barber who told the court that the man's problem had been diagnosed as a condition of emotional immaturity by psychiatrists at Fitzsimons Hospital in Denver.

Barber said it was the opinion of the doctors that Starrett was a "medical problem" and his condition could be cured by treatment. He said the soldier would be released from the Army next week and had made plans to return to his home in Linden, Tex., to seek treatment.

Judge Allan Asher talked to the soldier at length, explaining to Starrett that his problem also involved public morals, pointing out to him that his "exhibitionism" had already caused him to become undesirable to the military.

The judge explained that altho he might receive criticism for suspension of the fine and sentence, he did not want to stand in the way of the soldier's finding a solution thru medical help for his problem. The suspensions were granted with the understanding that Starrett would return home and immediately embark upon a program of medical treatment to cure his problem.

Two youths, David Kemppainen, 19, Ft. Carson, and Dennis Webster, 19, 2312 W. Pikes Peak Ave., were found guilty of drag racing charges and each fined $100 and had their rights to drive in the city suspended for 30 days.

The two had previously pleaded guilty to the charges and did not appear in court; however, Judge Asher heard testimony from Police Officer Victor B. Morris who cited the two Feb. 13.

Charges of careless driving were dismissed against Inez Miller, 48, 423 N. Pine St., and Willard Hawkins, 27, 402 N. Cooper Ave.

"Your honor," Gallas Emmerling, 3717 Red Canon, said, "I overindulged; I'm guilty."

This was the first time he had been in court on this charge, he explained, adding it would also be the last.

Judge Asher fined the man $25 which he suspended on the condition that Emmerling not appear in court on a similar chage in one year's time.

CC President Speaker at San Antonio

Colorado College President Dr. Louis T. Benezet today told a group of educators in San Antonio that the most important task facing the nation's teachers is to understand and to shape the individual student's goals. He said this is much more important than techniques in teaching or the new emphasis on subject matter.

Speaking before some 6,000 members of the Texas State Teachers Association meeting in San Antonio, Benezet said:

"The final goal of education should be not merely to fit an individual for some job or career that satisfies him, important though that is to a stable society. The final goal is to help each individual find the means to a personal integrity which will last him throughout life."

Noting that life is a "drudge" without a philosophy to live by, he said learning should aim at the student's coming to believe in his own worth as a human being and as the creature of an ethical society.

Florence City Council Hires Denver Firm for Engineering

The Florence city council, in a speedy session Monday night, hired the firm of Stearns - Rogers to do the engineering work on the proposed water plant and announced that Mrs. Beth Wells has been hired as city clerk replacing Lillis Martin, who recently resigned her post.

The council will negotiate a formal contract with the Denver firm this week and will meet Friday with representatives of the CF&I and the Union Ditch company to cut through the final stages of preliminary planning for the new plant.

Last week the city received the approval of the board of county commissioners for a deed to South Houston avenue, and a deed to 40 acres of west mesa land from the Adamic estate for the plant site.

Once the final legal barriers have been cleared with the CF&I for an easement, and the Union Ditch company for the transfer of water from the Union ditch the city is expected to have preliminary engineering plans within 10 days.

By the end of April the city is hoping to be able to call for bids on the plant and have the plant completed by mid - summer.

In other business Monday night, the city council passed on final reading and adopted ordinance No. 501. . .the model traffic code. A resolution was also passed permitting the city to deposit $100,000 with the Fremont Savings and Loan association in 11 trust accounts.

Mayor Jack McFall called upon Councilman Walter Kimpton, head of the fire and police committee, to meet with the Florence fire department on the matter of city payments to the department.

The mayor, who favors paying the fire department a flat fee of $50 a month for the services of its volunteer firemen, read a prepared statement concerning his views.

"There has been a change in command within the fire department and we expect relations between the fire department and the city council to improve considerably. The firemen have requested that the city pay half the insurance on their Dodge 4 x 4 truck, Jeep and ambulance.

"I agree that Florence residents receive service from the ambulance and recommend the city pay firemen $30 as half the insurance on that unit and the fire district has agreed to pay a like amount.

"I also agree with the city manager that the Jeep and Dodge has no value as fire fighting equipment so far as the city is concerned. Those two units were purchased from the forest service with the understanding that the equipment be used to answer all forest fire calls. This is very commendable on the part of the firemen but city funds should not be earmarked to pay expenses on those units.

"About three years ago the fire and police committee was receptive to a suggestion that the city pay the department a flat $50 per month, or $600 per year. This money would be in payment of fire calls, conventions expenses, or for any items the firemen may wish to use it. The idea was never pursued since some of the firemen believe payment for fire calls would exceed $50 per month. However, the totals paid the firemen for calls for 1960 and 1961 amounted to $361.50, or $838.50 less than the $50 per month flat fee. In 1962 the amount was about $300.

"Many cities, or towns in Colorado prefer this method of payment," McFall told the councilmen. "It will relieve firemen from billing the city, listing names and hours worked, and it will expedite bookkeeping."

Kimpton told the council he will meet with the firemen Saturday to present the flat fee proposal.

Human Rights Creator's Gift to Man, Editor Says

A question of semantics in the Declaration of Independence has led to the popular theory today that human rights are provided by governments, Robert LeFevre, gazette Telegraph editor, told the Colorado Springs Junior Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

"Human rights come to man by nature and from the Creator. The state may have power, but man has the rights. The state cannot give you life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," he said.

The editor, who is also president and founder of the Freedom School, made the observations in a discussion of the "Doctrine of Human Rights." During his address, he analysed the first five sentences of the second paragraph of the Declaration of Independence.

"These five sentences are perhaps the most revolutionary ever committed to the English language," LeFevre said.

In prefacing his discussion of the human rights set down in these sentences, the speaker said that today there are two broad theories concerning human rights.

One holds that "rights are whatever governments say they are ... that rights come from the government and stay only as long as the government chooses to permit them to stay," and the other simply states that "rights do not come from the state but derive from men ... men grant power to the state but retain the rights."

He said the latter theory, which led to our Declaration of Independence, was first put forth by John Locke in England in the 18th century. Later, George Mason adopted these precepts and put them into his Virginia Bill of Rights, the forerunner of our Declaration of Independence.

"It is important to remember that the Declaration of Independence is not a government document; it is not a law. It is a statement of intention," LeFevre said.

He pointed to the statement in the Declaration, that "we hold these truths to be self - evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness."

"This is a deeply meaningful statement — 'We hold these truths to be self-evident.' This is not a surface desire or a political manifestation. It says that these truths are so deeply rooted that they are self-evident," LeFevre said.

He pointed out that philosophically it is impossible to prove that man lives, "but we know this to be true because it is self-evident."

He pointed out also that our forefathers made clear that these truths "emanate not from the state but from the Creator."

"The document says," LeFevre said, "we have the right to pursue happiness. There is no guarantee whatsoever that you'll get it. The state won't provide it. The state can't provide Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

Turning to the next sentence, "That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed," he said it was the word "secure" in this statement which has led to the belief that human rights come from the government.

"The word secure, at the time this Declaration was written, meant only one thing, to make fast or to nail down. It did not mean to get or obtain." "Governments are created by men for the purpose of nailing down these rights, not to get them for men."

He pointed out also that the consent of the governed "does not say consent of the majority."

"They were trying to set up a society of equal rights which means that each person has the right only to what is his. It does not mean that the majority have the right to what belongs to another," the speaker said.

"These rights belong to you as an individual and cannot be alienated by any state, politician or individual," he said.

He said that the condition at the time leading up to the formation of the Declaration of Independence was one which was alienating human rights.

"We, during this time, didn't pay much attention to the king or any government. Americans paid taxes when they felt like it and when the king sent tax collectors to force payment of taxes they tarred and feathered them," LeFevre said.

"They had no social security, no general government around to tell them what to do and what not to do and were making a howling success of this. They said this situation works, and it has worked for 150 years. All men are equal and there are no kings in a society of equal rights," he said.

The speaker pointed out that the concept of equal rights teaches that there are "no special rights for kings or anyone else."

He explained that the Declaration of Independence also gives man the right to alter and change government if it "becomes destructive of these ends," referring to human rights.

"It is your duty to change it if it does this," LeFevre said.

He said that today, the theory that rights are something which are provided by the state has led to the formation of the Communist constitution and the United Nations Charter and is still in effect in England today.

"The Declaration of Independence said men are very important individually and it means that each of you have the same rights as others and that no one has more than anyone else. And the government doesn't give them," he said.

Special Team To Brief Academy Cadets

A special tri - service (Air Force, Army, and Marine) team from the Field Command Defense Atomic Support Agency at Sandia Base, N. Mex., will brief the Class of 1963 on the U.S. nuclear test programs Saturday. The program is classified.

Members of the team include Col. Leo A. Kiley, deputy chief of staff, Weapons Effects and Test Group, Lt. Col. DeBow Freed, U.S. Army, and Maj. Donald H. Edwards of the Marine Corps.

The briefing will cover the 1962 nuclear testing programs on the Nevada test site and the overseas nuclear tests "Operation DOMINIC" held in the South Pacific last year.

Col. Kiley was commander of the military scientific task group for "Operation DOMINIC" and military deputy test manager for the joint atomic Energy Commission and Department of Defense nuclear tests held at the Nevada test site, 65 miles north of Las Vegas.

The colonel's son, Michael, recently received an appointment to the air Force Academy from Congressman Thomas G. Morris.

Col. Freed is chief physicist, Nuclear Branch for Research Division of the Field Command.

The third member of the team, Maj. Edwards is program director for Blast Shock and Cratering, Weapons Effects and Tests.

Florence City Council Hires Denver Firm for Engineering

The Florence city council, in a speedy session Monday night, hired the firm of Stearns - Rogers to do the engineering work on the proposed water plant and announced that Mrs. Beth Wells has been hired as city clerk replacing Lillis Martin, who recently resigned her post.

The council will negotiate a formal contract with the Denver firm this week and will meet Friday with representatives of the CF&I and the Union Ditch company to cut through the final stages of preliminary planning for the new plant.

Last week the city received the approval of the board of county commissioners for a deed to South Houston avenue, and a deed to 40 acres of west mesa land from the Adamic estate for the plant site.

Once the final legal barriers have been cleared with the CF&I for an easement, and the Union Ditch company for the transfer of water from the Union ditch the city is expected to have preliminary engineering plans within 10 days.

By the end of April the city is hoping to be able to call for bids on the plant and have the plant completed by mid - summer.

In other business Monday night, the city council passed on final reading and adopted ordinance No. 501, . the model traffic code. A resolution was also passed permitting the city to deposit $100,000 with the Fremont Savings and Loan association in 11 trust accounts.

Mayor Jack McFall called upon Councilman Walter Kimpton, head of the fire and police committee, to meet with the Florence fire department on the matter of city payments to the department.

The mayor, who favors paying the fire department a flat fee of $50 a month for the services of its volunteer firemen, read a prepared statement concerning his views.

"There has been a change in command within the fire department and we expect relations between the fire department and the city council to improve considerably. The firemen have requested that the city pay half the insurance on their Dodge 4 x 4 truck, Jeep and ambulance.

"I agree that Florence residents receive service from the ambulance and recommend the city pay firemen $30 as half the insurance on that unit and the fire district has agreed to pay a like amount.

"I also agree with the city manager that the Jeep and Dodge has no value as fire fighting equipment so far as the city is concerned. Those two units were purchased from the forest service with the understanding that the equipment be used to answer all forest fire calls. This is very commendable on the part of the firemen but city funds should not be earmarked to pay expenses on those units.

"About three years ago the fire and police committee was receptive to a suggestion that the city pay the department a flat $50 per month, or $600 per year. This money would be in payment of fire calls, conventions expenses, or for any items the firemen may wish to use it. The idea was never pursued since some of the firemen believe payment for fire calls would exceed $50 per month. However, the totals paid the firemen for calls for 1960 and 1961 amounted to $361.50, or $838.50 less than the $50 per month flat fee. In 1962 the amount was about $300.

"Many cities, or towns in Colorado prefer this method of payment," McFall told the councilmen. "It will relieve firemen from billing the city, listing names and hours worked, and it will expedite bookkeeping."

Kimpton told the council he will meet with the firemen Saturday to present the flat fee proposal.

Gen. Russ to Fly To Ft. Devens

Brig. Gen. Joseph R. Russ, assistant commander, 5th Infantry Division, will fly to Ft. Devens, Mass., Sunday, for a liaison visit to the 2nd Brigade.

The visit will include Brigade units in the field at nearby Camp Edwards, Mass., and discussion on brigade participation with the other elements of the 5th Division in Exercise Coulee Crest in May.

Maj. Robert W. Miller, 5th Aviation Battalion commander, will pilot the L23 for General Russ.

Annual Youth Contest Set By Odd Fellows

The annual U. N. Pilgrimage for Youth contest for selection of two Colorado Springs delegates to take part in a twenty-one day tour this summer of the United Nations headquarters in New York is now in progress.

Accompanied by 34 youngsters being sponsored by other Odd Fellow Districts in Colorado, the delegates will tour the U.N. Buildings, witness councils and committees in session, have meals in the U. N. delegates dining room and meet representatives of participating nations.

They will visit offices of various member nations including Russia and be guests for an evening at International House where graduate students from many lands live under one roof.

Included in the itinerary are stops at historic shrines across the country, with two days in Washington where they will visit Colorado congressional representatives and observe the House and Senate in operation. All expenses for the two delegates will be paid by the lodges of District 16 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs.

The selection of delegates is based on essays and a questionnair on the subject, "My Community and World Affairs." A test will be given to winning essays writers at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Lodge Hall at 128 N. Nevada. The ten top scorers will be invited to present a five minute speech at 2 p.m. Saturday, Mar. 23 in the Lodge Hall, before a panel of five judges.

The Judging Committee will be composed of Mrs. Max N. Huffman, president of the Women's League of Voters, J. Donald Haney, Colorado Springs attorney, Lt. Col. James R. Woodruff, Chaplain, Ent AFB, Charles E. Whale, local business man, and mrs. Lura Kliewer, retired school teacher.

To be eligible, a student must be a sophomore or a junior and age sixteen or seventeen. Thomas Rich, Harrison High Junior and winner of this year's Sertoma Award, and Jacquelyn Walberg, Calhan Senior, were last year's delegates and will be on hand to answer questions.

A supper will be given by the Rebekah Lodges of District 16 at the Lodge Dining Hall from 5:30 to 8:30 Saturday, March 16, to help raise funds for the tour. The public is invited.

Taxes and Exemptions

Because of the existence of taxation, there is a school of thought in America which holds that justice can be obtained only if all tax exemptions are cancelled and, hence, that everyone pays an equal share of all government exactions.

There is a degree of logic in this position. Assuming that taxation must occur, then it is obviously true that when any particular person, property or group obtains an exemption from the general burden, the burden borne by those not so exempted will be correspondingly higher. Simple mathematics will demonstrate the accuracy of that conclusion.

The fallacy within the argument relates to the premise . . . that is, that taxation can be just, or that it must exist, or that it can be equitably divided among all taxpayers.

The history of taxation is very ancient. It goes back to the idea of divine right of kings. It goes back beyond that, to the concept that a divine hierarchy owns the world and everything in it, and that government is divinely ordained.

If one is willing to accept this premise, then ownership never accrues to people. Ownership is always in the hands of divinity. Thus, it would have to follow that all human beings are merely "users" of property and never owners. Hence, it could not be wrong to ask them to pay a fee, annually or at certain stated intervals, in an appeasement of the gods. Such a fee could be considered as a rent, the payment to the real owner, the pantheon of deity which, at the moment, would be generally popular.

But it is incumbent upon us to note that from earliest times known to us, taxation has NEVER been universal.

In Egypt, when Joseph visited upon the people a 20 per cent tax on all produce, Joseph and his brethren were declared to be tax-exempt. So was the pharaoh and the pharaoh's household.

For the popular thought then (and now) is that those who are engaged specifically in work which relates to the extension of divine authority over human affairs, are actually above the paying of the fee.

These ideas, stemming from oriental and Egyptian despots, came into head-on collision when the free city-states of Greece gained their hour in the sun. Taxes in Athens were not collected from everyone. As a matter of fact, there is great doubt that there was anything at all in Athens and in most of the Greek cities (Sparta excepted) which remotely resembles the Egyptian and modern theories of taxation.

In times of crises, certain Greeks could be and were assessed huge sums. Some took it upon themselves to buy a ship to be presented to the city. Truly wealthy Athenians might furnish several ships. Some would pay for a division of the Greek troops. Others might commit their funds to a great public building, a statue, or some other item to enhance the beauty and the glory of the city.

But the payment of these sums, while called for, was considered not so much a tax as a voluntary contribution relating to the ability of the citizen to pay. Thus, honor descended upon those who contributed the most. And until the Peloponesian war, regular and universal taxation was not considered.

Thus, the principal Greek cities practiced more of a tax exemption than they did a general taxing formula. And their prosperity as well as their intellectual pioneering became the marvel of the world. In a sense it still is.

The idea that everyone owes a tax to the government, which is the "eminent authority of the domain" concept, goes back to the idea that government is divine and those serving in it must properly be exempted from the payment for divinity levied against all others.

Never Permanent

Success and failure never have to be permanent conditions. A success won by the violation of principle is a failure. Often, a failure which is based upon principle turns out to be a success.

Let's All Be Tax Exempt

In order to correctly analyze anything, it is incumbent upon the analyst to reduce his problem to the lowest possible demoninator. Thus, in considering taxation, it is important to reduce the problem to a condition, not of government making, but of nature. Does taxation arise from a state of nature, or is it something which men in government create?

The answer is obvious. Taxes are not paid in a state of nature. Men create taxation and they create both the supposed reasons for taxation and the agency whereby taxes can be collected.

But if we base our thinking on men in a state of nature, we would find that there is no visible reason why some of them should pay taxes to others of them. Taxation, then, has simply become a custom, sanctified by much usage and rightfully today under attack thru much abuse.

Now, let us consider tax exemption from a state of nature. Under a condition in which no taxes existed, obviously everyone would be exempted, even as the early Athenians were exempted save by their own pleasure and honor they could attain thru a large payment.

Let us imagine an analagous situation.

Let us suppose that in a particular country there lived a monarch who ordained that every male under his domain should have the left leg amputated up to the knee.

Let us further suppose that a certain man went to the monarch and pleaded with him in such a manner that finally, for whatever reasons one cares to imagine, the king decided that this particular man did not have to have his leg cut off.

Would it be correct to say that the exempted male, in this case, had received a "benefit" from the king? Would we assume that the others in the kingdom would suffer more because one citizen suffered not at all? Would we not conclude instead that the exempted male had been the only one not injured by the king, rather than supposing that he had been benefited by the king?

The matter is pertinent because the condition we face relates to this school of thought which opposes exemption. For these people who oppose exemption, frequently find themselves advocating increased taxes for others simply because they are impressed with the mathematical fact that the present tax structure is unjust and they detest injustice.

But by urging that others be taxed more in an effort to equalize taxation they are, in fact, urging larger and larger taxes which will, in the end, be heaped upon themselves, too. And good men who might otherwise lend their considerable weight and prestige to a program that would assist in cutting taxes, at least for some, instead find themselves on the other side of the fence, advocating more and more taxes for others.

What is important, we feel, is the immediate recognition by all and sundry that taxation has never been fair, has never been equal and that by its nature it cannot be. There will always be some who escape the burden and always others who pay more.

If this is grasped, then the aim should be to analyse the problem from a state of normalcy, a state of nature. And in such a state, what should be advocated is universal exemption on as rapidly expanding a basis as possible.

If it is to be urged that government needs the money, the argument is barren when confronted with the obvious and appalling needs of those who earn the money for the money they themselves earn. We would like to see more and more firms exempted from taxes, more and more institutions, indeed, more and more individuals.

Not that we expect it to happen in the present situation. But at least the present situation should not impair our ability to reason thru to a proper conclusion.

LIBERTY

If the true spark of religious and civil liberty be kindled, it will burn. Human agency cannot extinguish it. Like the earth's central fire, it may be smothered for a time, but at some time or other, in some place or other, the volcano will break out and flame up to heaven.

To The Point

By RUSSELL KIRK

Ever since 1830-31, until last year, the French were masters of Algeria; and thousands of French farmers and traders settled there. Many of the "colons" who keep Algeria French never had seen France: for five or six generations, their families had been North African. So they were as outraged at the prospect of being pushed out by Moslems as citizens of Arizona and New Mexico would be if suddenly those states were to be given back to the Navajos and Hopis. Remember that Algeria was French-governed longer than the American West has been American-governed.

So the resistance - movement called the O.A.S. originally directed against Moslem rebels but eventually becoming itself a terrorist movement directed against the regime of General de Gaulle, fought frantically with its plastic explosives and its submachine guns against both the Moslem and the French power. The O.A.S. leaders for a long time had the open or tacit support of the French Army of Algeria, but never found much financial backing: its agents had to hold up banks, like Irish nationalists half a century ago, to pay for the sinews of war. A good many of the O.A.S. people were Jews — who knew what would happen to them if a Moslem extremist regime assumed power.

Now the game is up. The generals who rebelled against de Gaulle's government are imprisoned. In Algeria itself, what members of the O.A.S. have not fled to Europe are hunted down mercilessly by both the new Algerian regime and unofficial Algerian nationalist zealots: hundreds, and perhaps thousands, of French Algerians, suspected of sympathy with the O.A.S., have been kidnapped by Algerian terrorists, and never will be seen again.

Most of the fugitive O. A. S. members have taken refuge in Italy. There they have asylum, securely enough, because the precarious balance of parties in Italy makes the government too indecisive to dare to be intolerant toward anyone. The intellectual leader of the movement, Jacques Soustelle — once de Gaulle's right arm — was harbored in Rome for a time, but at last was ordered out by the Italian authorities because he possessed no passport; now he wanders, under aliases, across the face of Western Europe. Georges Bidault, one of the most honest and courageous of French political leaders, gave up security and flung in his lot with the O.A.S.: today he, too, is a man without a country.

Others of the O.A.S. have settled in the Balearics, where the Spanish government manifests a certain sympathy for them, altho they do not feel so safe as in Italy. They are investing in real property in booming Palma de Mallorca. The best-known man among them is Ortis, the Algiers cafe-proprietor who raised the standard of revolt against French parliamentary rule. (In Latin lands, the owners of cafes retain a curious political power they never thought of asserting in Anglo - American countries). As usually happens among defeated parties, the Palma O.A.S. have split into two hostile factions— the Catholics, and the Masons.

Paradoxically, the O.A.S. and their sympathizers probably could not have been expelled from their Algerian strongholds except by de Gaulle's power. It is improbable that the Boer and English people of South Africa, established in the Dark Continent far longer than were the Algerian French, can be dislodged by Zulu nationalists.

UPHOLD RIGHTS

To the Editor:

In a responsible, competitive society such as we now enjoy in these fifty United States of North America: Labor, Business, Government and the Individual — compete with, yet complement one another; all fearing that some specific individual within or without their sphere of influence will become too strong, unfair, or monopolistic. In a reasonable but workable, free but moral society, the dignity, responsibility, and rights of each and every indivual must be upheld over every other consideration no matter how expedient it might seem at the time; for the individual in a democracy, is the lifeblood of labor, business, government. In other words, the individual and the groups with which he chooses to be allied, are the backbone of both a healthy economy and a moral society.

Let us all heed Thomas Jefferson's advice: Democracy, he warned, is the most difficult type of government to have function properly. It requires an educated people, but, even more, it requires a people willing to accept individual responsibility and to take an active part in their government.

'FREE CHOICE'

To the Editor:

Mr. Kennedy said, in Look Magazine, January 15, 1963: "Two great forces— the world of communism and the world of free choice— have, in effect, made a bet about the direction in which history is moving." That we must "move toward comprehensive disarmament and reinforce the United Nations as a channel and forum for peace."

The United Nations Charter, contrary to general belief, was never intended to be a channel or forum for peace.

Its main objective is promotion and accomplishment of world government, with peaceful dissolution and subjugation of the United States of America.

Did Koreans have a free choice when they were, in effect, disarmed and half their nation left under Communist control?

Do the satellite nations have free choice about anything now that they have been disarmed, and is the United Nations Organization moving to restore their freedom?

Since the United States involvement with the United Nations, she has been responsible for infamous treachery to many nations.

The United States disarmed Chiang Kai-shek and caused China to be turned over to the Communists.

The United States "disarmed" (ousted) anti-Communist, pro-American Batista and set up gangster Castro.

The United States is responsible for the failure of the Bay of Pigs invasion.

By promoting United Nations Peace Force, the United States "disarmed comprehensively" Katanga, and forced her Christian ruler, Moise Tshombe, into exile. We condoned the most culpable atrocities against the Katangese, and have now set up a Communist rule of Katanga.

What odds would you give to a "bet" on "freedom of choice" when the implementation of the Disarmament Act, 87-297, has been completed? When the United States, as the law provides, is entirely under and controlled by the United Nations International Peace Force?

We are sitting idly by, while the world government planners are using our Constitution as a pawn in the game they are playing. Few people seem to know or care that, unless we withdraw from the United Nations, our own Constitution is null and void.

OPINION

To the Editor:

PUBLIC OPINION, powerful in action, is again working adversely to the Communist build - up in Cuba and Latin America. Communism and its imitators continue to prove it is a society which cannot feed its people without prompt aid from U. S. taxpayers. It has shown military might only when assisted by U. S. forces.

Great waves of anti - semitism and anti - Negro prejudice often sweep the Soviet and its satellites. Communist Ruler Anna Pauker, in liquidating 350,000 Jews in Rumania, put to death many of her most intimate helpers. Now from Russia we hear of several prominent men with Jewish names being convicted and killed in one day, guilty of what would be termed "unfair trade practices" in a capitalist country. In Bulgaria, 200 Negro students were recently persecuted until they were glad to get out any way they could. In a Communist take - over, union labor is the first casualty and all minorities fare badly wherever any form of dictatorship prevails.

GIMME BLOCS

To the Editor:

Looking ahead with grim foreboding to 1964 and the next presidential campaign, it would be well to "take a gander" at a pet program of the New York governor, who aims to be the Republican candidate.

Proposition No. 2 was submitted to the New York voters last November and they slammed it down 2 to 1. But there's nothing to prevent its resurrection as a campaign issue in 1964!

This proposition would have provided subsidies of $50 per month ($600 per annum) for housing middle income families (that is, those with incomes between $5,000 and $7,500). Construction of 5,000 new housing units would have been authorized. Three million families in New York State are within the eligible income brackets. The unfortunate families outside this charmed circle, just short of three million in number, would have had to "dig down" to help pay $3 million in taxes for the benefit of the favored 5,000!

Now, obviously, this was to have been what is known as the "camel's nose under the tent flap." This is what would have happened.

Announcements would have been given to the press that applications could be made for 5,000 units of modern new housing for families in the $5,000 to $7,500 income bracket. The $600 per annum rent subsidy would not be baldly stated, but the publicized comparisons between the prevailing rent scales and those to be charged in the new public housing would vividly indicate the value of the special privilege. Naturally, applications by the hundreds of thousands would pour in. Each rejected family would be told that it would be placed on the waiting list. They would also be told that nothing could be done for them until the next referendum — and then only if a bigger public housing budget were authorized. Those hundreds of "waiting list" families would then become an explosive pressure for continuously expanding middle income rent subsidies.

Now, just suppose that the two opposing candidates for the presidency should start trying to outbid one another for this segment of our population!

During the period, 1945 to 1951, when the Labor Party ruled Great Britain, 90 per cent of the new housing constructed was owned, subsidized and controlled by the government. It was practically impossible for a private individual to get a permit to build a home for himself, paid for with his own money. Government policy was to discourage such construction!

So, folks, watch out for 1964, when it's quite possible that the two leading candidates will be "slugging it out" for the support of the "gimme blocs."

And, remember this — that no matter which side wins, the Amrican taxpayer will foot the bill!

Bids for a Smile

A man crossing a suburban street was knocked down by a huge St. Bernard bounding across the intersection. As he struggled to his feet, he was bowled over again by a tiny foreign sports car.

"I didn't mind being knocked down by that dog. But that can tied to his tail almost killed me!"

Middle age is that period of life when you would do anything to feel better except give up what's hurting you.

You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but the rest of the time they will make fools of themselves.

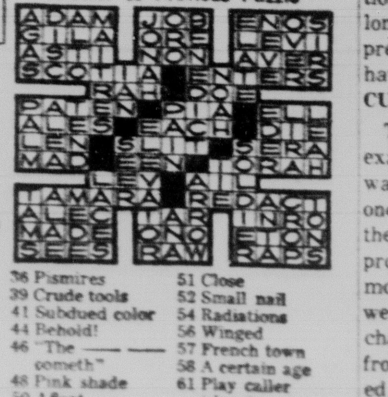
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Professor Friedman Writes on Freedom

By OSCAR W. COOLEY
Professor of Economics
Ohio Northern University

Although economics is the science of voluntary exchange — how free men use the limited resources of the earth to satisfy their unlimited wants — few of today's professors of economics are conspicuous advocates of voluntaryism and freedom.

In the depressed 1930's economists led the pack of those who turned, snarling, upon capitalism, leaping to the conclusion that the free market had failed, and who urged that political government step in to spend what the free economy had not spent and to employ the workers that private enterprise had not employed. For 25 years the doctrines of J. M. Keynes have been preached in American college classrooms, while the "invisible hand" has been derided, "laissez faire" denounced, and freedom seldom mentioned.

It is a pleasure then to encounter a top - flight economics professor who, if not exactly a libertarian, is at least a 19th century liberal and a sturdy defender of things economic in the contest with things political. Such is Milton Friedman, University of Chicago, who has written his credo in "Capitalism and Freedom" (U. of Chicago Press, $3.95).

In this 200-page book for the general reader, Friedman discusses money, international trade, education, monopoly (including labor unions), welfare, fiscal policy, licensing, and discrimination, in each case examining what he believes to be the proper institutional arrangements.

In his scheme, Friedman has a role for political government but it is a minor role. He would have the vast bulk of functions performed by free individuals and firms, but he would make government responsible for "the maintenance of law and order to prevent coercion of one individual by another, the enforcement of contracts voluntarily entered into, the definition of the meaning of property rights, the interpretation and enforcement of such rights, and the provision of a monetary framework."

He does not object to government taking care of the insane or of orphans, provided it does not check private charity (which, he remarks, proliferated in "the heydey of laissez-faire"). Nor does he oppose government-run schools, provided parents who prefer to educate their children privately are not forced to support such schools.

He would abolish the present "rag bag" of welfare measures and substitute a simple "negative income tax," or subsidy, which would set "a floor below which no man's net income could fall." At the same time, he admits the danger in allowing people to vote themselves this "negative income tax" out of the pockets of their neighbors but sees no solution but to "rely on the self-restraint and goodwill of the electorate." Some will not share Professor Friedman's faith in the electorate's self—restraint and goodwill.

As regards money—and Friedman is highly regarded as a monetary economist—he assumes that government should monopolize the creation of money, but he would not allow the officials of either the Treasury or the Federal Reserve System to manipulate the economy, as at present, through increase and decrease of the money supply. In place of the present discretionary system, which he holds has over the years been a failure, he would have the Federal Reserve increase the money supply each year by a constant percentage, to be fixed at some point between 3 and 5. If this had been done during the last 50 years, he holds, we would have enjoyed greater monetary stability than we have under the discretionary system.

For a more complete exposition of Friedman's ideas on money, one should read his excellent "A Program for Monetary Stability" (Fordham U. Press, 1960).

As for the gold standard, he finds it undesirable because of the cost of mining gold and not feasible because "the mythology and beliefs required to make it effective do not exist. For gold's automatic check on money creation, he apparently would substitute his 3 to 5 percent fiat.

His solutions for the problems of international economics are purely libertarian: he would have foreign exchange rates free to fluctuate without check, like market prices, and he would drop all trade barriers over a five-year period, initiating wholly free trade. Free or "floating" exchange rates hinge upon abolition of the gold standard, so his theory regarding international payments follows naturally his theory of money.

That setting the exchange rates free would, for good and all, solve the "problem" of balance of payments, he explains by imagining that Japan and the United States are the only countries involved in trade and that at some exchange rate, say 1000 yen equals $1, the Japanese could produce every kind of good more cheaply than the United States. Obviously, the Japanese would sell a great deal to us, and we nothing to them. But what would they do with the dollars we paid them? These would be useless to them. No Japanese would want to give 1000 yen for a dollar that he could not spend. So the dollar would fall in terms of yen. Let's say it fell to 500 yen equals $1. Now Americans would have to pay twice as much for Japanese goods as before, so they would buy less. And Japanese could buy American goods for one-half as much as before. No longer would Japan be able to outsell us. Goods would move both ways. At some exchange rate, whether at 500 yen to the dollar, or another, "all (Japanese) exporters who desire to do so can sell the dollars they get for the goods they export to America to importers who use them to buy goods in America." Thus the exports would just pay for the imports and the payments would automatically balance.

Professor Friedman condemns occupational licensure on the grounds that it denies or impedes free entry into occupations and so generates monopoly. The claim of the American Medical Association that doctors need to be licensed to protect consumers from incompetents and quacks he examines with care and finds without foundation. With free entry into the medical profession the quality of medical practice would rise, not fall, he contends.

In his concluding chapter, Friedman lists the statist reforms of recent years and demonstrates in each case how abysmally they have failed. Meanwhile, the nation has continued to progress, thanks to "the initiative and drive of individuals cooperating through the free market." Why has statism failed? "The central defect of these measures is that they seek through government to force people to act against their own immediate interests in order to promote a supposedly general interest." Self-interest is "one of the strongest and most creative forces known to man."

It is a good book for Professor Friedman's fellow-economists to read. It is an especially good book for seniors majoring in economics who have not yet decided what their economic philosophy is.

Question Box

Question No. 160: "Why do so many persons believe in high taxes?"

Answer: Undoubtedly the reason is because they believe that somebody else is going to pay these high taxes. The income tax was put over in the belief that the rich were going to pay the income tax, but now the person who is in the 20 per cent bracket is paying a great bulk of the taxes.

Another thing that fools the great mass of people who think they pay little taxes is that they pay the great part of the indirect taxes — that is, the taxes that are added to what they buy. Every cost has to be added to the price of a thing in order for the employer or manufacturer to stay in business.

And the total cost of government amounts to at least one-third of the national income, so everything that a person buys is loaded with taxes. Instead of paying 66 cents for an item, he pays $1 for it. In other words, he could buy one half more if it were not for high taxes.

And very few people realize that all taxation is a form of robbery. It is based on initiated force. And taxes are what lead us into one war after another. If the government couldn't tax, we wouldn't be in all these wars all over the world.

Taxes have been part of life for thousands and thousands of years and few people see the great harm that comes from taxation. And very few people realize that the people in low income brackets are the big taxpayers. They are misguided and believe the corporations and the rich pay the taxes, but the corporations and rich have to pass on the taxes. If they don't pass on the taxes, there are fewer tools and the workers have to work for less because they produce less.

We will attempt to answer any question pertaining to the means used to improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth. The means, of course, predetermine the results.

Let's Take the Offensive

By HARRY BROWNE

In the past two years interest in constitutional government, free enterprise economics and American foreign policy has skyrocketed. Literally millions of Americans have rediscovered Americanism, and the development is inspiring.

Such an upsurge of interest in freedom can produce spectacular results. It can restore the original productive climate — free from government interference — that created the most abundant society in history. The current revival can accomplish this — but it is not certain.

UNDERSTANDING

The uncertainty rests on whether or not our concern about the wrong policies of the last thirty years becomes channeled into positive programs. An understanding of what's wrong can only be a preface to constructive action to make things right. And as long as we remain stuck in the preface, the enemies of freedom have nothing to worry about.

CUBAN EXAMPLE

The recent Cuban "crisis" is an example where one wrong policy was replaced by another wrong one. We were so busy criticizing the administration's poor approach to Cuba, we forgot to promote a correct approach. When we finally succeeded in forcing a change, what we got was as far from a solution as what we started with.

Reactions to other areas of national policy have been similar. We quickly point out the obvious errors, but don't favor our listeners with the correct policy. We must begin stressing positive proposals.

Once we begin pressing for what is right, the trend to collectivism will rapidly reverse itself But as long as we are mired in studies of evil, exposes of evil, and complaints about evil, nothing will change — at least not for the better.

Instead of trying to stop new programs that would worsen the prevailing collectivist climate, let's initiate programs that will increase freedom. Let's start asking for what we want — and force the enemies of freedom to try to stop us.

WHAT WE ARE FOR

We're not against Medicare to solve the problems of the aged — we're for the Liberty Amendment to solve everyone's problems. We're not against a new U.N. bond issue — we're for total withdrawal from the anti-American U.N.

So let's quit being lured into debating the enemy's proposals — and starting making ours the issues.

Let's speak out for what we want — instead of complaining about what we don't like.

In other words, let's take the offensive!

Taxes and Exemptions

Because of the existence of taxation, there is a school of thought in America which holds that justice can be obtained only if all tax exemptions are cancelled and, hence, that everyone pays an equal share of all government exactions.

There is a degree of logic in this position. Assuming that taxation must occur, then it is obviously true that when any particular person, property or group obtains an exemption from the general burden, the burden borne by those not so exempted will be correspondingly higher. Simple mathematics will demonstrate the accuracy of that conclusion.

The fallacy within the argument relates to the premise. . . that is, that taxation can be just, or that it must exist, or that it can be equitably divided among all taxpayers.

The history of taxation is very ancient. It goes back to the idea of divine right of kings. It goes back beyond that, to the concept that a divine hierarchy owns the world and everything in it, and that government is divinely ordained.

If one is willing to accept this premise, then ownership never accrues to people. Ownership is always in the hands of divinity. Thus, it would have to follow that all human beings are merely "users" of property and never owners. Hence, it could not be wrong to ask them to pay a fee, annually or at certain stated intervals, in an appeasement of the gods. Such a fee could be considered as a rent, the payment to the real owner, the pantheon of deity which, at the moment, would be generally popular.

But it is incumbent upon us to note that from earliest times known to us, taxation has NEVER been universal.

In Egypt, when Joseph visited upon the people a 20 per cent tax on all produce, Joseph and his brethren were declared to be tax-exempt. So was the pharaoh and the pharaoh's household.

For the popular thought then (and now) is that those who are engaged specifically in work which relates to the extension of divine authority over human affairs, are actually above the paying of the fee.

These ideas, stemming from oriental and Egyptian despots, came into head-on collision when the free city-states of Greece gained their hour in the sun. Taxes in Athens were not collected from everyone. As a matter of fact, there is great doubt that there was anything at all in Athens and in most of the Greek cities (Sparta excepted) which remotely resembles the Egyptian and modern theories of taxation.

In times of crises, certain Greeks could be and were assessed huge sums. Some took it upon themselves to buy a ship to be presented to the city. Truly wealthy Athenians might furnish several ships. Some would pay for a division of the Greek troops. Others might commit their funds to a great public building, a statue, or some other item to enhance the beauty and the glory of the city.

But the payment of these sums, while called for, was considered not so much a tax as a voluntary contribution relating to the ability of the citizen to pay. Thus, honor descended upon those who contributed the most. And until the Peloponesian war, regular and universal taxation was not considered.

Thus, the principal Greek cities practiced more of a tax exemption than they did a general taxing formula. And their prosperity as well as their intellectual pioneering became the marvel of the world. In a sense it still is.

The idea that everyone owes a tax to the government, which is the "eminent authority of the domain" concept, goes back to the idea that government is divine and those serving in it must properly be exempted from the payment for divinity levied against all others.

Never Permanent

Success and failure never have to be permanent conditions. A success won by the violation of principle is a failure. Often, a failure which is based upon principle turns out to be a success.

Let's All Be Tax Exempt

In order to correctly analyze anything, it is incumbent upon the analyst to reduce his problem to the lowest possible demoninator. Thus, in considering taxation, it is important to reduce the problem to a condition, not of government making, but of nature. Does taxation arise from a state of nature, or is it something which men in government create?

The answer is obvious. Taxes are not paid in a state of nature. Men create taxation and they create both the supposed reasons for taxation and the agency whereby taxes can be collected.

But if we base our thinking on men in a state of nature, we would find that there is no visible reason why some of them should pay taxes to others of them. Taxation, then, has simply become a custom, sanctified by much usage and rightfully today under attack thru much abuse.

Now, let us consider tax exemption from a state of nature. Under a condition in which no taxes existed, obviously everyone would be exempted, even as the early Athenians were exempted save by their own pleasure and honor they could attain thru a large payment.

Let us imagine an analagous situation.

Let us suppose that in a particular country there lived a monarch who ordained that every male under his domain should have the left leg amputated up to the knee.

Let us further suppose that a certain man went to the monarch and pleaded with him in such a manner that finally, for whatever reasons one cares to imagine, the king decided that this particular man did not have to have his leg cut off.

Would it be correct to say that the exempted male, in this case, had received a "benefit" from the king? Would we assume that the others in the kingdom would suffer more because one citizen suffered not at all? Would we not conclude instead that the exempted male had been the only one not injured by the king, rather than supposing that he had been benefited by the king?

The matter is pertinent because the condition we face relates to this school of thought which opposes exemption. For these people who oppose exemption, frequently find themselves advocating increased taxes for others simply because they are impressed with the mathematical fact that the present tax structure is unjust and they detest injustice.

But by urging that others be taxed more in an effort to equalize taxation they are, in fact, urging larger and larger taxes which will, in the end, be heaped upon themselves, too. And good men who might otherwise lend their considerable weight and prestige to a program that would assist in cutting taxes, at least for some, instead find themselves on the other side of the fence, advocating more and more taxes for others.

What is important, we feel, is the immediate recognition by all and sundry that taxation has never been fair, has never been equal and that by its nature it cannot be. There will always be some who escape the burden and always others who pay more.

If this is grasped, then the aim should be to analyse the problem from a state of normalcy, a state of nature. And in such a state, what should be advocated is universal exemption on as rapidly expanding a basis as possible.

If it is to be urged that government needs the money, the argument is barren when confronted with the obvious and appalling needs of those who earn the money for the money they themselves earn. We would like to see more and more firms exempted from taxes, more and more institutions, indeed, more and more individuals.

Not that we expect it to happen in the present situation. But at least the present situation should not impair our ability to reason thru to a proper conclusion.

LIBERTY

If the true spark of religious and civil liberty be kindled, it will burn. Human agency cannot extinguish it. Like the earth's central fire, it may be smothered for a time, but at some time or other, in some place or other, the volcano will break out and flame up to heaven.

To The Point

By RUSSELL KIRK

Ever since 1830-31, until last year, the French were masters of Algeria; and thousands of French farmers and traders settled there. Many of the "colons" who keep Algeria French never had seen France: for five or six generations, their families had been North African. So they were as outraged at the prospect of being pushed out by Moslems as citizens of Arizona and New Mexico would be if suddenly those states were to be given back to the Navajos and Hopis. Remember that Algeria was French-governed longer than the American West has been American-governed.

So the resistance - movement called the O.A.S. originally directed against Moslem rebels but eventually becoming itself a terrorist movement directed against the regime of General de Gaulle, fought frantically with its plastic explosives and its submachine guns against both the Moslem and the French power. The O.A.S. leaders for a long time had the open or tacit support of the French Army of Algeria, but never found much financial backing: its agents had to hold up banks, like Irish nationalists half a century ago, to pay for the sinews of war. A good many of the O.A.S. people were Jews — who knew what would happen to them if a Moslem extremist regime assumed power.

Now the game is up. The generals who rebelled against de Gaulle's government are imprisoned. In Algeria itself, what members of the O.A.S. have not fled to Europe are hunted down mercilessly by both the new Algerian regime and unofficial Algerian nationalist zealots: hundreds, and perhaps thousands, of French Algerians, suspected of sympathy with the O.A.S., have been kidnapped by Algerian terrorists, and never will be seen again.

Most of the fugitive O. A. S. members have taken refuge in Italy. There they have asylum, securely enough, because the precarious balance of parties in Italy makes the government too indecisive to dare to be intolerant toward anyone. The intellectual leader of the movement, Jacques Soustelle — once de Gaulle's right arm — was harbored in Rome for a time, but at last was ordered out by the Italian authorities because he possessed no passport; now he wanders, under aliases, across the face of Western Europe. Georges Bidault, one of the most honest and courageous of French political leaders, gave up security and flung in his lot with the O.A.S.; today he, too, is a man without a country.

Others of the O.A.S. have settled in the Balearics, where the Spanish government manifests a certain sympathy for them, altho they do not feel so safe as in Italy. They are investing in real property in booming Palma de Mallorca. The best-known man among them is Ortis, the Algiers cafe-proprietor who raised the standard of revolt against French parliamentary rule. (In Latin lands, the owners of cafes retain a curious political power they never thought of asserting in Anglo - American countries). As usually happens among defeated parties, the Palma O.A.S. have split into two hostile factions—the Catholics, and the Masons.

Paradoxically, the O.A.S. and their sympathizers probably could not have been expelled from their Algerian strongholds except by de Gaulle's power. It is improbable that the Boer and English people of South Africa, established in the Dark Continent far longer than were the Algerian French, can be dislodged by Zulu nationalists.

UPHOLD RIGHTS

To the Editor:

In a responsible, competitive society such as we now enjoy in these fifty United States of North America: Labor, Business, Government and the Individual — compete with, yet complement one another; all fearing that some specific individual within or without their sphere of influence will become too strong, unfair, or monopolistic. In a reasonable but workable, free but moral society, the dignity, responsibility, and rights of each and every indivual must be upheld over every other consideration no matter how expedient it might seem at the time; for the individual in a democracy, is the lifeblood of labor, business, government. In other words, the individual and the groups with which he chooses to be allied, are the backbone of both a healthy economy and a moral society.

Let us all heed Thomas Jefferson's advice: Democracy, he warned, is the most difficult type of government to have function properly. It requires an educated people, but, even more, it requires a people willing to accept individual responsibility and to take an active part in their government.

'FREE CHOICE'

To the Editor:

Mr. Kennedy said, in Look Magazine, January 15, 1963: "Two great forces— the world of communism and the world of free choice— have, in effect, made a bet about the direction in which history is moving." That we must "move toward comprehensive disarmament and reinforce the United Nations as a channel and forum for peace."

The United Nations Charter, contrary to general belief, was never intended to be a channel or forum for peace.

Its main objective is promotion and accomplishment of world government, with peaceful dissolution and subjugation of the United States of America.

How much "free choice" do nations have which have been "comprehensively disarmed" by the United Nations or its member nations?

Did Koreans have a free choice when they were, in effect, disarmed and half their nation left under Communist control?

Do the satellite nations have free choice about anything now that they have been disarmed, and is the United Nations Organization moving to restore their freedom?

Since the United States involvement with the United Nations, she has been responsible for infamous treachery to many nations.

The United States disarmed Chiang Kai-shek and caused China to be turned over to the Communists.

The United States "disarmed" (ousted) anti-Communist, pro-American Batista and set up gangster Castro.

The United States is responsible for the failure of the Bay of Pigs invasion.

By promoting United Nations Peace Force, the United States "disarmed comprehensively" Katanga, and forced her Christian ruler, Moise Tshombe, into exile. We condoned the most culpable atrocities against the Katangese, and have now set up a Communist rule of Katanga.

What odds would you give to a "bet" on "freedom of choice" when the implementation of the Disarmament Act, 87-297, has been completed? When the United States, as the law provides, is entirely under and controlled by the United Nations International Peace Force?

We are sitting idly by, while the world government planners are using our Constitution as a pawn in the game they are playing. Few people seem to know or care that, unless we withdraw from the United Nations, our own Constitution is null and void.

OPINION

To the Editor:

PUBLIC OPINION, powerful in action, is again working adversely to the Communist build - up in Cuba and Latin America. Communism and its imitators continue to prove it is a society which cannot feed its people without prompt aid from U. S. taxpayers. It has shown military might only when assisted by U. S. forces.

Great waves of anti - semitism and anti - Negro prejudice often sweep the Soviet and its satellites. Communist Ruler Anna Pauker, in liquidating 350,000 Jews in Rumania, put to death many of her most intimate helpers. Now from Russia we hear of several prominent men with Jewish names being convicted and killed in one day, guilty of what would be termed "unfair trade practices" in a capitalist country. In Bulgaria, 200 Negro students were recently persecuted until they were glad to get out any way they could. In a Communist take - over, union labor is the first casualty and all minorities fare badly wherever any form of dictatorship prevails.

GIMME BLOCS

To the Editor:

Looking ahead with grim foreboding to 1964 and the next presidential campaign, it would be well to "take a gander" at a pet program of the New York governor, who aims to be the Republican candidate.

Proposition No. 2 was submitted to the New York voters last November and they slammed it down 2 to 1. But there's nothing to prevent its resurrection as a campaign issue in 1964!

This proposition would have provided subsidies of $50 per month ($600 per annum) for housing middle income families (that is, those with incomes between $5,000 and $7,500). Construction of 5,000 new housing units would have been authorized. Three million families in New York State are within the eligible income brackets. The unfortunate families outside this charmed circle, just short of three million in number, would have had to "dig down" to help pay $3 million in taxes for the benefit of the favored 5,000!

Now, obviously, this was to have been what is known as the "camel's nose under the tent flap." This is what would have happened.

Announcements would have been given to the press that applications could be made for 5,000 units of modern new housing for families in the $5,000 to $7,500 income bracket. The $600 per annum rent subsidy would not be baldly stated, but the publicized comparisons between the prevailing rent scales and those to be charged in the new public housing would vividly indicate the value of the special privilege. Naturally, applications by the hundreds of thousands would pour in. Each rejected family would be told that it would be placed on the waiting list. They would also be told that nothing could be done for them until the next referendum — and then only if a bigger public housing budget were authorized. Those hundreds of "waiting list" families would then become an explosive pressure for continuously expanding middle income rent subsidies.

Now, just suppose that the two opposing candidates for the presidency should start trying to outbid one another for this segment of our population!

During the period, 1945 to 1951, when the Labor Party ruled Great Britain, 90 per cent of the new housing constructed was owned, subsidized and controlled by the government. It was practically impossible for a private individual to get a permit to build a home for himself, paid for with his own money. Government policy was to discourage such construction!

So, folks, watch out for 1964, when it's quite possible that the two leading candidates will be "slugging it out" for the support of the "gimme blocs."

And, remember this — that no matter which side wins, the Amrican taxpayer will foot the bill!

Bids for a Smile

A man crossing a suburban street was knocked down by a huge St. Bernard bounding across the intersection. As he struggled to his feet, he was bowled over again by a tiny foreign sports car.

Middle age is that period of life when you would do anything to feel better except give up what's hurting you.

You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but the rest of the time they will make fools of themselves.

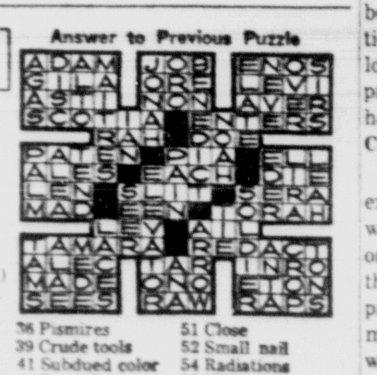
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Professor Friedman Writes on Freedom

By OSCAR W. COOLEY
Ohio Northern University

Although economics is the science of voluntary exchange — how free men use the limited resources of the earth to satisfy their unlimited wants — few of today's professors of economics are conspicuous advocates of voluntaryism and freedom.

In the depressed 1930's economists led the pack of those who turned, snarling, upon capitalism, leaping to the conclusion that the free market had failed, and who urged that political government step in to spend what the free economy had not spent and to employ the workers that private enterprise had not employed. For 25 years the doctrines of J. M. Keynes have been preached in American college classrooms, while the "invisible hand" has been derided, "laissez faire" denounced, and freedom seldom mentioned.

It is a pleasure then to encounter a top - flight economics professor who, if not exactly a libertarian, is at least a 19th century liberal and a sturdy defender of things economic in the contest with things political. Such is Milton Friedman, University of Chicago, who has written his credo in "Capitalism and Freedom" (U. of Chicago Press, $3.95).

In this 200-page book for the general reader, Friedman discusses money, international trade, education, monopoly (including labor unions), welfare, fiscal policy, licensing, and discrimination, in each case examining what he believes to be the proper institutional arrangements.

In his scheme, Friedman has a role for political government but it is a minor role. He would have the vast bulk of functions performed by free individuals and firms, but he would make government responsible for "the maintenance of law and order to prevent coercion of one individual by another, the enforcement of contracts voluntarily entered into, the definition of the meaning of property rights, the interpretation and enforcement of such rights, and the provision of a monetary framework."

He does not object to government taking care of the insane or of orphans, provided it does not check private charity (which, he remarks, proliferated in "the heydey of laissez-faire"). Nor does he oppose government-run schools, provided parents who prefer to educate their children privately are not forced to support such schools.

He would abolish the present "rag bag" of welfare measures and substitute a simple "negative income tax," or subsidy, which would set "a floor below which no man's net income could fall." At the same time, he admits the danger in allowing people to vote themselves this "negative income tax" out of the pockets of their neighbors but sees no solution but to "rely on the self-restraint and goodwill of the electorate." Some will not share Professor Friedman's faith in the electorate's self—restraint and goodwill.

As regards money—and Friedman is highly regarded as a monetary economist—he assumes that government should monopolize the creation of money, but he would not allow the officials of either the Treasury or the Federal Reserve System to manipulate the economy, as at present, through increase and decrease of the money supply. In place of the present discretionary system, which he holds has over the years been a failure, he would have the Federal Reserve increase the money supply each year by a constant percentage, to be fixed at some point between 3 and 5. If this had been done during the last 50 years, he holds, we would have enjoyed greater monetary stability than we have under the discretionary system.

For a more complete exposition of Friedman's ideas on money, one should read his excellent "A Program for Monetary Stability" (Fordham U. Press, 1960).

As for the gold standard, he finds it undesirable because of the cost of mining gold and not feasible because "the mythology and beliefs required to make it effective do not exist. For gold's automatic check on money creation, he apparently would substitute his 3 to 5 percent fiat.

His solutions for the problems of international economics are purely libertarian: he would have foreign exchange rates free to fluctuate without check, like market prices, and he would drop all trade barriers over a five-year period, initiating wholly free trade. Free or "floating" exchange rates hinge upon abolition of the gold standard, so his theory regarding international payments follows naturally his theory of money.

That setting the exchange rates free would, for good and all, solve the "problem" of balance of payments, he explains by imagining that Japan and the United States are the only countries involved in trade and that at some exchange rate, say 1000 yen equals $1, the Japanese could produce every kind of good more cheaply than the United States. Obviously, the Japanese would sell a great deal to us, and we nothing to them. But what would they do with the dollars we paid them? These would be useless to them. No Japanese would want to give 1000 yen for a dollar that he could not spend. So the dollar would fall in terms of yen. Let's say it fell to 500 yen equals $1. Now Americans would have to pay twice as much for Japanese goods as before, so they would buy less. And Japanese could buy American goods for one-half as much as before. No longer would Japan be able to outsell us. Goods would move both ways. At some exchange rate, whether at 500 yen to the dollar, or another, "all (Japanese) exporters who desire to do so can sell the dollars they get for the goods they export to America to importers who use them to buy goods in America." Thus the exports would just pay for the imports and the payments would automatically balance.

Professor Friedman condemns occupational licensure on the grounds that it denies or impedes free entry into occupations and so generates monopoly. The claim of the American Medical Association that doctors need to be licensed to protect consumers from incompetents and quacks he examines with care and finds without foundation. With free entry into the medical profession the quality of medical practice would rise, not fall, he contends.

In his concluding chapter, Friedman lists the statist reforms of recent years and demonstrates in each case how abysmally they have failed. Meanwhile, the nation has continued to progress, thanks to "the initiative and drive of individuals cooperating through the free market." Why has statism failed? "The central defect of these measures is that they seek through government to force people to act against their own immediate interests in order to promote a supposedly general interest." Self-interest is "one of the strongest and most creative forces known to man."

It is a good book for Professor Friedman's fellow-economists to read. It is an especially good book for seniors majoring in economics who have not yet decided what their economic philosophy is.

Question Box

Question No. 160: "Why do so many persons believe in high taxes?"

Answer: Undoubtedly the reason is because they believe that somebody else is going to pay these high taxes. The income tax was put over in the belief that the rich were going to pay the income tax, but now the person who is in the 20 per cent bracket is paying a great bulk of the taxes.

Another thing that fools the great mass of people who think they pay little taxes is that they pay the great part of the indirect taxes — that is, the taxes that are added to what they buy. Every cost has to be added to the price of a thing in order for the employer or manufacturer to stay in business.

And the total cost of government amounts to at least one-third of the national income, so everything that a person buys is loaded with taxes. Instead of paying 66 cents for an item, he pays $1 for it. In other words, he could buy one half more if it were not for high taxes.

And very few people realize that all taxation is a form of robbery. It is based on initiated force. And taxes are what lead us into one war after another. If the government couldn't tax, we wouldn't be in all these wars all over the world.

Taxes have been part of life for thousands and thousands of years and few people see the great harm that comes from taxation. And very few people realize that the people in low income brackets are the big taxpayers. They are misguided and believe the corporations and the rich pay the taxes, but the corporations and rich have to pass on the taxes. If they don't pass on the taxes, there are fewer tools and the workers have to work for less because they produce less.

We will attempt to answer any question pertaining to the means used to improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth. The means, of course, predetermine the results.

Let's Take the Offensive

By HARRY BROWNE

In the past two years interest in constitutional government, free enterprise economics and American foreign policy has skyrocketed. Literally millions of Americans have rediscovered Americanism, and the development is inspiring.

Such an upsurge of interest in freedom can produce spectacular results. It can restore the original productive climate — free from government interference — that created the most abundant society in history. The current revival can accomplish this — but it is not certain.

UNDERSTANDING

The uncertainty rests on whether or not our concern about the wrong policies of the last thirty years becomes channeled into positive programs. An understanding of what's wrong can only be a preface to constructive action to make things right. And as long as we remain stuck in the preface, the enemies of freedom have nothing to worry about.

CUBAN EXAMPLE

The recent Cuban "crisis" is an example where one wrong policy was replaced by another wrong one. We were so busy criticizing the administration's poor approach to Cuba, we forgot to promote a correct approach. When we finally succeeded in forcing a change, what we got was as far from a solution as what we started with.

Reactions to other areas of national policy have been similar. We quickly point out the obvious errors, but don't favor our listeners with the correct policy. We must begin stressing positive proposals.

Once we begin pressing for what is right, the trend to collectivism will rapidly reverse itself But as long as we are mired in studies of evil, exposes of evil, and complaints about evil, nothing will change — at least not for the better.

Instead of trying to stop new programs that would worsen the prevailing collectivist climate, let's initiate programs that will increase freedom. Let's start asking for what we want — and force the enemies of freedom to try to stop us.

WHAT WE ARE FOR

We're not against Medicare to solve the problems of the aged — we're for the Liberty Amendment to solve everyone's problems. We're not against a new U.N. bond issue — we're for total withdrawal from the anti-American U.N.

So let's quit being lured into debating the enemy's proposals — and starting making ours the issues.

Let's speak out for what we want — instead of complaining about what we don't like.

In other words, let's take the offensive!

Strength in Scattered Blue Chips Is Noted

NEW YORK (AP)—Strength in scattered blue chips was a feature of an irregular stock market early this afternoon.

The market was indecisive, showing a slight gain at the opening, turning irregular, posting a gain later in the morning, then lapsing into a hodge podge of plus and minus signs.

Buying was attracted to a number of the oils, tobaccos, and mail order-retails, among others. Stees, rails and motors were thoroughly scrambled.

The economic background had a new shadow of doubt thrown into it by the worsening of unemployment in February, but that month's retail sales held close to the January record, and auto production was scheduled to rise.

Reflecting a rise which no longer held true as trading worked into the afternoon, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .6 at 255.2 with industrials up 1.3, rails unchanged, and utilities up .4.

The investment sector of the market was drawn once again to the oils. Standard Oil (New Jersey) gained a fraction and touched another new high. Texaco advanced more than a point. Gains of about a point were posted for Tidewater and Getty while Royal Dutch added a fraction.

Also bolstering the averages, Woolworth gained well over a point and Du Pont about a point.

Avnet Electronics, strong during the past two sessions, dropped a fraction on profit taking. The president of the Company, Lester Avnet, asked about the reason for the stock's rise, said the company had licensed one of its processes to IBM. IBM was off about 2.

American Stock Exchange prices were mostly higher in moderate trading. Gainers included Arkansas Louisiana Gas, Cinerama, Hecla Mines, Lefcourt Realty, Reinsurance Investment, Rusco Industries, Syntex and Thompson-Starrett. Insurance Co. of North America lost more than a point.

Art Society To Make Annual Selection

The Contemporary Art Society of the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center will make its annual selection Sunday of an important work of art which members will purchase and give to the Fine Arts Center permanent collection.

Selection will be made at the Society's annual dinner meeting Sunday night at the Fine Arts Center. The membership will vote on one painting, sculpture or other art piece from a field of ten works previously selected by a guest juror, Lewis story, assistant director of the Denver Art Museum.

Story's selections were from an original group of some 30 art works, most of which were selected and sponsored by individual Society members. All of these will be on exhibit at the Fine Arts Center now thru April 8, with the ten finalists and the Society's choice all identified.

This year's gift will be the 7th addition to the permanent collection made by the Contemporary Art Society which was organized in 1956 by area art enthusiasts interested in not only aiding the fine arts Center but in having a part in its advancement.

Love Shows No Interest in Vice Presidency

DENVER (AP) — A suggestion by Richard M. Nixon that Gov. John A. Love might be a possible Republican nominee for vice president didn't get much response from Colorado's new chief executive.

"I've got problems of my own," he said when newsmen asked him about Nixon's remark in Washington. "I've got a job to do here in Colorado."

Reflecting on the suggestion a few minutes, he commented: "My mother will like it."

Bomb Reported Found On Spanish Airliner

LONDON (AP)—Airport police, acting on a telephone tip, halted a Spanish plane minutes before it was to take off for Madrid Thursday and searched it for a hidden bomb. None was found and the plane took off with its 57 passengers.

Spanish police found a homemade bomb Monday night aboard an airliner in Barcelona that was being readied for a flight to Palma de Mallorca. This came after a Communist organization, calling itself the Iberian Council of Liberation, had sent notes to foreign newsmen in Madrid warning tourist to stay away from Spain.

Public Interest Yardstick for Company Mergers

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The public interest as the government's chief yardstick for judging mergers is given added emphasis today. This comes as the yen for corporate marriages grows—and as fears about the trend increase in Congress where the motives are suspect as against the public interest. And in labor circles mergers often seem synonymous with loss of jobs.

The newest federal guidelines are proposed for the railroads and the airlines. These are under considerably more regulation than are industrial corporations.

But the federal government has been taking keen interest in industrial and banking mergers. In some cases it has gone to court to try to prevent them. In others it has sued under the antitrust laws to dissolve them. The chief government argument has been that the merger tended to create a monopoly or that it hurt the public interest in other ways.

That somewhat vaguely defined thing, the public interest, also is advanced as the government's guidelines for wage or price increases.

In the case of the rails and airlines, a presidential committee sets as the prime guide—a merger is okay if the public benefits through lower fares or freight rates or through better service. The committee rejects the pleas generally put forth by the companies seeking to merge such as avoiding bankruptcy, cutting duplicated costs or service, strengthening their financial structure in general.

Business mergers last year set a record of 1,260, the Federal Trade Commission reports. In 1961 there were 1,234, a gain of 22 per cent over the 1,012 in 1960.

The reasons given for merging were to add to total capacity or to capacity in specific areas, to diversify products, to gain a source of supply, to move into a new consumer market, to get a tax loss to offset the big earnings of the healthier partner, to acquire management whizzes or engineers, or to survive.

By growing larger in this fashion, companies also can get more bank credit, afford expensive automation, and cut costs better than can smaller firms.

Since World War II the merger movement has been guided largely by corporate management rather than bankers. The motives have been diversification, ending cut-throat competition, growing big enough to afford the high cost of doing business these days.

The present administration is bringing forth a different question: How does the public fare when companies marry? Just what constitutes the public interest will be debated more and more in business and government circles.

More Office Space Urged in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to provide office space and expense allowances for presidents-elect and vice presidents-elect and for outgoing presidents and vice presidents was introduced Thursday by Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla.

Fascell said the proposal stemmed from recommendations of a bipartisan committee and had the endorsement of President Kennedy and former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman.

It would provide necessary services and office space for outgoing presidents and vice presidents for six months after they leave office and for elected presidents and vice presidents for the period between election and their inauguration.

Fascell's bill also would provide for access by presidents-elect to government information.

While such information has been made available in the past, Fascell said, it has been provided through voluntary cooperation rather than through formal law.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market showed more firmness than weakness today as buying improved in the early afternoon on the Board of Trade.

Wheat, corn and soybeans were ahead major fractions or more in spots although March wheat again was under active liquidation along with rye.

Support for corn was credited partly to export demand but dealers said most of it was short covering.

Carlot receipts were estimated at: wheat 14 cars, corn 103, oats 6, rye 2, barley 8, soybeans 16.

Strength in Scattered Blue Chips Is Noted

NEW YORK (AP)—Strength in scattered blue chips was a feature of an irregular stock market early this afternoon.

The market was indecisive, showing a slight gain at the opening, turning irregular, posting a gain later in the morning, then lapsing into a hodge podge of plus and minus signs.

Buying was attracted to a number of the oils, tobaccos, and mail order-retails, among others. Steels, rails and motors were thoroughly scrambled.

The economic background had a new shadow of doubt thrown into it by the worsening of unemployment in February, but that month's retail sales held close to the January record, and auto production was scheduled to rise.

Reflecting a rise which no longer held true as trading worked into the afternoon, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .6 at 255.2 with industrials up 1.3, rails unchanged, and utilities up .4.

The investment sector of the market was drawn once again to the oils. Standard Oil (New Jersey) gained a fraction and touched another new high. Texaco advanced more than a point. Gains of about a point were posted for Tidewater and Getty while Royal Dutch added a fraction.

Also bolstering the averages, Woolworth gained well over a point and Du Pont about a point.

Avnet Electronics, strong during the past two sessions, dropped a fraction on profit taking. The president of the Company, Lester Avnet, asked about the reason for the stock's rise, said the company had licensed one of its processes to IBM. IBM was off about 2.

American Stock Exchange prices were mostly higher in moderate trading. Gainers included Arkansas Louisiana Gas, Cinerama, Hecla Mines, Lefcourt Realty, Reinsurance Investment, Rusco Industries, Syntex and Thompson-Starrett. Insurance Co. of North America lost more than a point.

Art Society To Make Annual Selection

The Contemporary Art Society of the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center will make its annual selection Sunday of an important work of art which members will purchase and give to the Fine Arts Center permanent collection.

Selection will be made at the Society's annual dinner meeting Sunday night at the Fine Arts Center. The membership will vote on one painting, sculpture or other art piece from a field of ten works previously selected by a guest juror, Lewis story, assistant director of the Denver Art Museum.

Story's selections were from an original group of some 30 art works, most of which were selected and sponsored by individual Society members. All of these will be on exhibit at the Fine Arts Center now thru April 8, with the ten finalists and the Society's choice all identified.

This year's gift will be the 7th addition to the permanent collection made by the Contemporary Art Society which was organized in 1956 by area art enthusiasts interested in not only aiding the fine arts Center but in having a part in its advancement.

Love Shows No Interest in Vice Presidency

DENVER (AP) — A suggestion by Richard M. Nixon that Gov. John A. Love might be a possible Republican nominee for vice president didn't get much response from Colorado's new chief executive.

"I've got problems of my own," he said when newsmen asked him about Nixon's remark in Washington. "I've got a job to do here in Colorado."

Reflecting on the suggestion a few minutes, he commented: "My mother will like it."

Bomb Reported Found On Spanish Airliner

LONDON (AP)—Airport police, acting on a telephone tip, halted a Spanish plane minutes before it was to take off for Madrid Thursday and searched it for a hidden bomb. None was found and the plane took off with its 57 passengers.

Spanish police found a homemade bomb Monday night aboard an airliner in Barcelona that was being readied for a flight to Palma de Mallorca. This came after a Communist organization, calling itself the Iberian Council of Liberation, had sent notes to foreign newsmen in Madrid warning tourist to stay away from Spain.

Public Interest Yardstick for Company Mergers

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The public interest as the government's chief yardstick for judging mergers is given added emphasis today. This comes as the yen for corporate marriages grows—and as fears about the trend increase in Congress where the motives are suspect as against the public interest. And in labor circles mergers often seem synonymous with loss of jobs.

The newest federal guidelines are proposed for the railroads and the airlines. These are under considerably more regulation than are industrial corporations.

But the federal government has been taking keen interest in industrial and banking mergers. In some cases it has gone to court to try to prevent them. In others it has sued under the antitrust laws to dissolve them. The chief government argument has been that the merger tended to create a monopoly or that it hurt the public interest in other ways.

That somewhat vaguely defined thing, the public interest, also is advanced as the government's guidelines for wage or price increases.

In the case of the rails and airlines, a presidential committee sets as the prime guide—a merger is okay if the public benefits through lower fares or freight rates or through better service. The committee rejects the pleas generally put forth by the companies seeking to merge such as avoiding bankruptcy, cutting duplicated costs or service, strengthening their financial structure in general.

Business mergers last year set a record of 1,260, the Federal Trade Commission reports. In 1961 there were 1,234, a gain of 22 per cent over the 1,012 in 1960.

The reasons given for merging were to add to total capacity or to capacity in specific areas, to diversify products, to gain a source of supply, to move into a new consumer market, to get a tax loss to offset the big earnings of the healthier partner, to acquire management whizzes or engineers, or to survive.

By growing larger in this fashion, companies also can get more bank credit, afford expensive automation, and cut costs better than can smaller firms.

Since World War II the merger movement has been guided largely by corporate management rather than bankers. The motives have been diversification, ending cut-throat competition, growing big enough to afford the high cost of doing business these days.

The present administration is bringing forth a different question: How does the public fare when companies marry? Just what constitutes the public interest will be debated more and more in business and government circles.

More Office Space Urged in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to provide office space and expense allowances for presidents-elect and vice presidents-elect and for outgoing presidents and vice presidents was introduced Thursday by Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla.

Fascell said the proposal stemmed from recommendations of a bipartisan committee and had the endorsement of President Kennedy and former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman.

It would provide necessary services and office space for outgoing presidents and vice presidents for six months after they leave office and for elected presidents and vice presidents for the period between election and their inauguration.

Fascell's bill also would provide for access by presidents-elect to government information.

While such information has been made available in the past, Fascell said, it has been provided through voluntary cooperation rather than through formal law.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market showed more firmness than weakness today as buying improved in the early afternoon on the Board of Trade.

Wheat, corn and soybeans were ahead major fractions or more in spots although March wheat again was under active liquidation along with rye.

Support for corn was credited partly to export demand but dealers said most of it was short covering.

Carlot receipts were estimated at: wheat 14 cars, corn 103, oats 6, rye 2, barley 8, soybeans 16.

Falcons Face Marquette in Season's Finale

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

The final game of the season tonight could be one of the very best of the entire year — depending, of course, on the last effort by the Cadets of the Air Force Academy.

For the fourth straight game the AFA will be meeting a tournament-bound team when they clash with highly rated Marquette University of Milwaukee at 8 p.m. in the Cadet Gym. Of the other three, two losses and an upset were registered.

The Falcons have been closing fast this season, altho already doomed to their first losing season in the history of the school, and have won four of the last six games. A victory tonight could just about erase the disappointment of a season which has seen the AFA drop 12 of 21 games so far.

It will mark the fifth time the Air Force and Marquette have met over the past few years, with the Warriors of colorful Coach Eddie Hickey owning three wins. And as a little added incentive, the Falcons may be out to avenge the 60-36 pasting administered at Milwaukee last season.

In their last meeting, the Falcons attempted to slow the game to a snail's pace against the much taller Braves. The visitors succeeded for a half, holding Marquette to a 14-14 score at intermission, but then Hickey's famed fast-break offense went into high gear and they outscored the Cadets by 44 points in the second half.

Coach Bob Spear has no intention of letting that sort of run-gun antics to go on tonight, altho there's good odds that the Cadets will be trying to slow up play again. The Falcons remain among the nation's leaders in defense and hope to keep the clamps tight in this finale.

If form holds true, tho, the Falcons may have to climb into astronomical figures in their shooting percentage to turn the trick. In the two upsets of their last six games, the AFA laced the bullseye for 63.8 per cent in a 66-65 surprise of Utah State and then went from that to a record-shattering 65 per cent from the field in upended Regis of Denver for their only win on the road this season.

The tournament tag should be no mental block to the Falcons. Utah State is an entry in the NCAA post-season frolics and Regis is bound for the National Catholic Tournament. In addition, other teams on the AFA list this winter which are headed for tournament play have been Colorado State U., Texas Western, Kansas State and Wichita.

To top the Warriors, however, the Air Force undoubtedly will have to tame their prolific scoring which has averaged over 76 points per game. Just two nights ago Marquette thumped Creighton, 74-68, to run their season's record to 18-7.

Earlier this year the Braves ran into another sticky defense from Texas Western (which rates among the top three in the country) and they blistered the Lone Star Miners with 77 points.

And for those who like to compare scores, it might be remembered that the Air Force's lastest loss was at El Paso to this same Texas Western, by a 17-point margin, 62-45, and some observers felt it could have been much worse had the Miners not substituted freely in the second half.

As usual, the Falcons will be up against a height problem — but not as badly outclassed in this department as in many games this year. Marquette's 6-7 Dave Erickson pivots between forwards Bob Hornak and Lee Borowski, both 6-4. On the other hand, the tallest of the Cadets is Roger Head at 6-6 and his helpmates are from 6-3 on down to little Johnny Judd at but 5-8.

The Warriors feature a balanced attack with all capable of breaking open a game should the opportunity arise. A particular nuisance to the Falcons over the last couple years has been 5-10 guard Dick Nixon, who is captain of the team.

There will also be a renewal of an old rivalry by a couple players as Cadet Roger Zoeller and Marquette's starting guard Ron Glaser both come from Milwaukee and used to play against each other in high school.

It will be the final game of their careers for only three of the Academy's players, Zoeller, guard Jim Diffendorfer from Ashland, O., and Parke Hinman from White Swan, Wash. Hinman, a 6-1 forward, is actually only a junior in class standing but had to forfeit a year in athletics because of participation in varsity basketball at Washington.

Buffs, Kansas State In Big Eight Showdown

MANAHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Coach Sox Walseth, whose Colorado team faces Kansas State in the Big Eight basketball showdown Saturday night, had this to say the last time he brought a team to Manhattan:

Walseth, a dry humorist much in demand on the banquet circuit, was needling Tex Winter, K-State coach who firmly believes the thin air of Boulder in the Colorado mountains makes visiting teams groggy.

Walseth has no quips this trip and he makes it clear his gloomy view of his club's chances in the big one is based on far of a vastly improved K-State team which has reeled off nine straight victories.

K-State, with an 11-2 record, to Colorado's 10-3, already is assured of a share for the championship. But Colorado would be the league's NCAA representative with a victory, because it would then have a 2-0 sweep of a season's series with K-State. A playoff is held only if the co-champs split for the season.

Colorado beat the Wildcats 70-53 at Boulder Jan. 14 .Winter tried a new move to beat the altitude—he flew the team in a few hours before gametime. He explained:

Colorado hasn't beaten K-State at Manahttan since 1955.

The Buffs have had no success at Manhattan since, but neither has anyone else. Winter has won or tied for six league titles and finished second twice in eight seasons since then, averaging 11 league victories a year.

This season the Wildcats lost five of their first six games against top competition. Max Moss, 6-foot junior who didn't even make the trip to Colorado, has averaged 10.4 as a regular since then. Seven-foot Roger Suttner has improved and Gary Marriott's foot troubles are over.

Colorado's veteran Ken Charlton, hampered by knee troubles the past month, still leads the league with a 19.2 average but K-State's Willie Murrell is only five points behind, 249-244, and could win the scoring title.

Jim Davis at 6-8, Milt Mueller and Charlton, both 6-6, give Colorado the league's best front line. But the Buffs will be bucking a string of 34 straight K-State victories at home in regular season Big Eight games.

YOU FOULED HIM—Academy High's Bill Culver, lies in a prone position after fouling Bill Raines of Cheyenne (back to camera) in a scramble for the ball during the first half of Thursday night's encounter. Cheyenne went on to defeat the Kadets, 50-38, to eliminate the Academy High team from contention in the District Tournament. Tonight the Cheyenne squad tangles with Manitou at 8:30 at the Colorado Springs City Auditorium .The tourney concludes Saturday night.

Panthers Face Lantz-Less Salida

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The Pikes Peak District Tournament had figured to conclude its official business during tonight's semi-finals at the City Anditorium but a sprained ankle, almost unnoticed in the bustle of Thursday's opening round, may have changed the entire complexion of the eight-team affair.

Dave Lantz, Salida's prize 6-5 all-stater, twisted an already weak ankle in the second half of the Spartans' 70-40 romp past Fountain Thursday and Coach Don Schmedli said immediately after the contest that he saw no possibility of his star seeing further action in the tourney.

Without Lantz the Spartans may find themselves in an auditorium-full of trouble against hot-shooting Harrison in the 7 p.m. leadoff of tonight's semi-finals. Cheyenne Mountain and Manitou Springs clash in the 8:30 windup and earlier forecasts saw the winner of that contest receiving the PPL's second state tournament berth — which is what this whole business is about in the first place.

Salida, the league champion, clinched the automatic berth via its title but the other representative is to be either the winner of this tourney or the runner-up, in case the Spartans repeat. With powerful Salida in the upper bracket it had appeared that the lower bracket game tonight would probably decide the league's second entry at state. But with fired-up Harrison now in a strong position to pull an upset, the decision could be delayed until Saturday night's finals.

It may take two-to-tango, but the Spartans proved that the waltz requires only one as they glided thru the helpless Trojans in quick time Thursday afternoon. The ease of the victory made it all the more indigestible to Salida coaches and followers that they had to pay with the loss of Lantz. He was taken to the hospital immediately afterwards for X-Rays and the staff was mainly concerned with whether or not he would be ready for state tournament action next weekend.

In addition Dave's 6-7 sophomore brother, John, twisted a knee slightly but he should be ready to go again tonight. Without the pair, the towering Spartans would suddenly become one of the tournament's smaller teams.

During Thursday's opener, agile Dave twisted thru the Fountain defenses for 12 first half points as Salida jumped to a 14-7 quarter lead and then rapidly increased it to 32-11 by intermission. With Salida reserves in, Fountain kept pace thruout the third quarter but the Spartans closed with a 24 point burst in the final eight minutes to complete the rout. Dave Lantz' 16 points paced the winners while sharp-shooting Mike Dunn popped in 10 from outside to lead Fountain.

Equally impressive was Harrison's opening round romp past Florence, 56-26. The Panthers smacked the league's southernmost entry with the spiciest display of shooting during the opening day. Before Florence could get its bearings on the spacious City Aud court, Lloyd Crawford drilled a pair of goals and Tom McClure another. Harrison romped to a 14-6 first quarter lead and the game was never any closer.

The Panthers continued to pepper the nets from outside in the second quarter, rendering Florence's zone defense ineffective. The local team had piled up a 38-18 margin at halftime and appeared to be on the way to making a complete shambles of the contest. However, in the second half the tiny Huskies began to outhustle Harrison on the backboards and the Panthers failed to add to the lead.

Smooth Tom McClure, who appeared to be one of the league's best players, led Harrison's backboard game and also scored 14 points. Fred Stephens topped the Panthers with 15 while Dave Ramos was high for Florence with 10.

Cheyenne Rally Downs Academy; Manitou Five Upsets Widefield

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

After leading throuout the first half, the Kadets of Academy High lost their polished offensive drive and succumbed to determined Cheyenne Mountain, 50-38; and Manitou Springs knocked off Widefield with steady shooting that netted a 53-48 triumph, in the final two games of the first round action of the annual Pikes Peak District Tournament Thursday night.

The "Big Blue" quintet used their offensive shuffle to put them ahead at intermission, 20-19, but the towering carom specialists from Cheyenne dominated the backboards in the latter half.

Bill Raines and Sid Reidlehuber pulled the Indians thru the second half with steady rebounding and scoring. But Gary Graham enabled the Indians to stay within striking distance of the Kadets in the first half with clutch bombardments. Reidlehuber played one of his finest games as the 6-3 Cheyenne post pumped in 19 important points and excelled on the boards. Raines hit for 12 while Graham poured in 13.

Flashy John Julius performed at his usual outstanding pace: hitting the long shots and as a menace on defense, but the Indians clogged up their smaller opponents in the latter half and Julius didn't get many opportunities to shoot. Julius was the only Kadet to score in the double figures.

The Kadets jumped to an early lead in the opening period and maintained that margin until Graham sank two points with 5:56 remaining in the third period as the Indians forged ahead for the first time, 23-22.

With two minutes left and down 47-38, the Kadets' poise was taxed as the clock developed a malfunction and the official scorekeepers fired a pistol to stop the action. The clock stopped running with 2:05 and the official timer elected to fire the gun to gain the attention of the referees. During the brief consulation with the respective coaches the pistol must have developed a malfunction as it went off for the second time causing further panic. But in face of losing by nine points and all the gun shots, the Kadets remained calm and fought until the final second.

Despite a 17-point scoring spree by Widefield's ace gunner, Rusty Wasinger, the Mustangs of Manitou maned to snatch the victory. Jim Rigdon, Tom Johnston and Steve Kohl bombarded the Gladiators in the first half to compile a comfortable 36-28 half time margin. Rigdon raked in 13 points to lead his teammates in scoring.

In addition to Wasinger's 17-point effort, Eddie Rodriguez enabled the Gladiators to stay in the contest via 13 points. Mick Reiher tallied 11 points for the Widefield squad.

Larry Olsen's Mustangs, after racking up 36 points in two periods, nearly threw the ball game away with a poor output in the third quarter as they could only cash in four points. Wasinger, Rodriguez, and Reiher clicked to rally the Gladiators in that erratic third period within two points of the Mustangs, 40-38.

Both clubs played shoddy basketball in the third quarter as they tried to gun-run. This resulted in a mass of wild shooting and passing. But both teams settled down in the opening minutes of the last period.

Widefield forged ahead on Reiher's basket and led 42-40 with 5:57 remaining.

Falcons Face Marquette in Season's Finale

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

The final game of the season tonight could be one of the very best of the entire year — depending, of course, on the last effort by the Cadets of the Air Force Academy.

For the fourth straight game the AFA will be meeting a tournament - bound team when they clash with highly rated Marquette University of Milwaukee at 8 p.m. in the Cadet Gym. Of the other three, two losses and an upset were registered.

The Falcons have been closing fast this season, altho already doomed to their first losing season in the history of the school, and have won four of the last six games. A victory tonight could just about erase the disappointment of a season which has seen the AFA drop 12 of 21 games so far.

It will mark the fifth time the Air Force and Marquette have met over the past few years, with the Warriors of colorful Coach Eddie Hickey owning three wins. And as a little added incentive, the Falcons may be out to avenge the 60-36 pasting administered at Milwaukee last season.

In their last meeting, the Falcons attempted to slow the game to a snail's pace against the much taller Braves. The visitors succeeded for a half, holding Marquette to a 14-14 score at intermission, but then Hickey's famed fast - break offense went into high gear and they outscored the Cadets by 44 points in the second half.

Coach Bob Spear has no intention of letting that sort of run-gun antics to go on tonight, altho there's good odds that the Cadets will be trying to slow up play again. The Falcons remain among the nation's leaders in defense and hope to keep the clamps tight in this finale.

Thus, with Marquette already holding an invite to the National Invitational Tournament (NIT) in New York, the stage is set for a possible upset and a real crowd pleaser from start to finish.

If form holds true, tho, the Falcons may have to climb into astronomical figures in their shooting percentage to turn the trick. In the two upsets of their last six games, the AFA laced the bullseye for 63.8 per cent in a 66-65 surprise of Utah State and then went from that to a record-shattering 65 per cent from the field in upended Regis of Denver for their only win on the road this season.

The tournament tag should be no mental block to the Falcons. Utah State is an entry in the NCAA post - season frolics and Regis is bound for the National Catholic Tournament. In addition, other teams on the AFA list this winter which are headed for tournament play have been Colorado State U., Texas Western, Kansas State and Wichita.

To top the Warriors, however, the Air Force undoubtedly will have to tame their prolific scoring which has averaged over 76 points per game. Just two nights ago Marquette thumped Creighton, 74-68, to run their season's record to 18-7.

Earlier this year the Braves ran into another sticky defense from Texas Western (which rates among the top three in the country) and they blistered the Lone Star Miners with 77 points.

And for those who like to compare scores, it might be remembered that the Air Force's lastest loss was at El Paso to this same Texas Western, by a 17 - point margin, 62-45, and some observers felt it could have been much worse had the Miners not substituted freely in the second half.

As usual, the Falcons will be up against a height problem — but not as badly outclassed in this department as in many games this year. Marquette's 6-7 Dave Erickson pivots between forwards Bob Hornak and Lee Borowski, both 6-4. On the other hand, the tallest of the Cadets is Roger Head at 6-6 and his helpmates are from 6-3 on down to little Johnny Judd at but 5-8.

The Warriors feature a balanced attack with all capable of breaking open a game should the opportunity arise. A particular nuisance to the Falcons over the last couple years has been 5-10 guard Dick Nixon, who is captain of the team.

There will also be a renewal of an old rivalry by a couple players as Cadet Roger Zoeller and Marquette's starting guard Ron Glaser both come from Milwaukee and used to play against each other in high school.

It will be the final game of their careers for only three of the Academy's players, Zoeller, guard Jim Diffendorfer from Ashand, O., and Parke Hinman from White Swan, Wash. Hinman, a 6-1 forward, is actually only a junior in class standing but had to forfeit a year in athletics because of participation in varsity basketball at Washington.

Buffs, Kansas State In Big Eight Showdown

MANAHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Coach Sox Walseth, whose Colorado team faces Kansas State in the Big Eight basketball showdown Saturday night, had this to say the last time he brought a team to Manhattan:

Walseth, a dry humorist much in demand on the banquet circuit, was needling Tex Winter, K-State coach who firmly believes the thin air of Boulder in the Colorado mountains makes visiting teams groggy.

Walseth has no quips this trip and he makes it clear his gloomy view of his club's chances in the big one is based on far of a vastly improved K-State team which has reeled off nine straight victories.

K-State, with an 11-2 record, to Colorado's 10-3, already is assured of a share for the championship. But Colorado would be the league's NCAA representative with a victory, because it would then have a 2-0 sweep of a season's series with K-State. A playoff is held only if the co-champs split for the season.

Colorado beat the Wildcats 70-53 at Boulder Jan. 14 .Winter tried a new move to beat the altitude—he flew the team in a few hours before gametime. He explained:

"I know it's true. The first day in the atmosphere the system remains in the same state. After a day, the system changes."

It looked good the first half, with K-State in front 30-29 at intermission. Then the cold folded.

Colorado hasn't beaten K-State at Manahttan since 1955.

The Buffs have had no success at Manhattan since, but neither has anyone else. Winter has won or tied for six league titles and finished second twice in eight seasons since then, averaging 11 league victories a year.

This season the Wildcats lost five of their first six games against top competition. Max Moss, 6-foot junior who didn't even make the trip to Colorado, has averaged 10.4 as a regular since then. Seven-foot Roger Suttner has improved and Gary Marriott's foot troubles are over.

Colorado's veteran Ken Charlton, hampered by knee troubles the past month, still leads the league with a 19.2 average but K-State's Willie Murrell is only five points behind, 249-244, and could win the scoring title.

Jim Davis at 6-8, Milt Mueller and Charlton, both 6-6, give Colorado the league's best front line. But the Buffs will be bucking a string of 34 straight K-State victories at home in regular season Big Eight games.

This is why Walseth's gloom is real.

Panthers Face Lantz-Less Salida

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The Pikes Peak District Tournament had figured to conclude its official business during tonight's semi-finals at the City Anditorium but a sprained ankle, almost unnoticed in the bustle of Thursday's opening round, may have changed the entire complexion of the eight-team affair.

Dave Lantz, Salida's prize 6-5 all-stater, twisted an already weak ankle in the second half of the Spartans' 70-40 romp past Fountain Thursday and Coach Don Schmedli said immediately after the contest that he saw no possibility of his star seeing further action in the tourney.

Without Lantz the Spartans may find themselves in an auditorium - full of trouble against hot - shooting Harrison in the 7 p. m. leadoff of tonight's semi-finals. Cheyenne Mountain and Manitou Springs clash in the 8:30 windup and earlier forecasts saw the winner of that contest receiving the PPL's second state tournament berth — which is what this whole business is about in the first place.

Salida, the league champion, clinched the automatic berth via its title but the other representative is to be either the winner of this tourney or the runner - up, in case the Spartans repeat. With powerful Salida in the upper bracket it had appeared that the lower bracket game tonight would probably decide the league's second entry at state. But with fired-up Harrison now in a strong position to pull an upset, the decision could be delayed until Saturday night's finals.

It may take two-to-tango, but the Spartans proved that the waltz requires only one as they glided thru the helpless Trojans in quick time Thursday afternoon. The ease of the victory made it all the more indigestible to Salida coaches and followers that they had to pay with the loss of Lantz. He was taken to the hospital immediately afterwards for X-Rays and the staff was mainly concerned with whether or not he would be ready for state tournament action next weekend.

In addition Dave's 6-7 sophomore brother, John, twisted a knee slightly but he should be ready to go again tonight. Without the pair, the towering Spartans would suddenly become one of the tournament's smaller teams.

During Thursday's opener, agile Dave twisted thru the Fountain defenses for 12 first half points as Salida jumped to a 14-7 quarter lead and then rapidly increased it to 32-11 by intermission. With Salida reserves in, Fountain kept pace thruout the third quarter but the Spartans closed with a 24 point burst in the final eight minutes to complete the rout. Dave Lantz' 16 points paced the winners while sharp - shooting Mike Dunn popped in 10 from outside to lead Fountain.

Equally impressive was Harrison's opening round romp past Florence, 56-26. The Panthers smacked the league's southern-most entry with the spiciest display of shooting during the opening day. Before Florence could get its bearings on the spacious City Aud court, Lloyd Crawford drilled a pair of goals and Tom McClure another. Harrison romped to a 14-6 first quarter lead and the game was never any closer.

The Panthers continued to pepper the nets from outside in the second quarter, rendering Florence's zone defense ineffective. The local team had piled up a 38-18 margin at halftime and appeared to be on the way to making a complete shambles of the contest. However, in the second half the tiny Huskies began to outhustle Harrison on the backboards and the Panthers failed to add to the lead.

Smooth Tom McClure, who appeared to be one of the league's best players, led Harrison's backboard game and also scored 14 points. Fred Stephens topped the Panthers with 15 while Dave Ramos was high for Florence with 10.

South Wins State Berth Over 'Cats

PUEBLO — Clutch - king Pueblo South battled back from a 16 point deficit here Thursday night to edge Central 81-79 before a packed house of nearly 4,000 at the District 60 Gymnasium and clinch second place in the South Central League.

The Colt's victory nets them a playoff spot against the runner-up team from the Adams-Arapahoe League (either Littleton or Adams City) to be played next Monday night with the winner moving on to the state AAA tournament.

Central had defeated South 100-85 in the first meeting between the two and the Wildcats were blazing again Thursday. They ran up a 23-9 lead in the first period before the Colts could get moving and trim the margin to 25-15 at the end of the quarter. It was 49-37 at halftime and the Wildcats still had a 13 point lead at 71-58 as the final eight minutes got underway.

At that point the Colts' bustling full - court press began to take effect and as Central attempted to sit on the lead the game fell apart beneath them. South still trailed 79-76 with 51 seconds left but Lanny Carlson hit a shot and Jerry Jackson followed with the go-ahead marker after Carlson swiped the in - bounds pass. Ron Scwab added the final point on a free throw.

Carl Bodam led the scoring for Central with 20 points while Rich Reisner paced South with 21. The difference actually came at the free throw line where South outscored the Wildcats 23-11. Central lost Jim Gross, Jethroe Pratt, and Bob Price on fouls in the late going.

Terrors Close Out Tonight; T-Birds Travel to Junction

Palmer's "come - lately" Terrors close out the AAA basketball season in Colorado Springs tonight in an 8 p. m. clash with Pueblo East at the Palmer Gymnasium while local rival Wasson winds up its schedule on the Western Slope against Grand Junction.

Both South Central League schools opened the campaign more than three months back with high hopes and neither has seen the season live up to expectations. Palmer suffered thru a long drouth in the early weeks of the campaign, winning only once in its first nine starts, and twice in the first 12. Since that time, however, the Tribe has rebounded to capture three victories in its last five outings and a triumph over East tonight would boost the team's final record to 6-12.

Wasson can finish off the season with an impressive 13-5 mark if the Thunderbirds down last place Grand Junction tonight. Even at that, the campaign will have been a disappointment to the T-Birds who started out with a rating as one of the finest clubs to represent this area in some time. The five Wasson losses have been by a total of only 15 points and the four defeats in the league were by a total of nine points. At any rate, the team was eliminated from title contention and from a chance at a state tournament berth via last Friday's 65-63 loss to Trinidad.

Palmer will not change its place in the standings tonight but the Terrors can grab sole possession of fifth place with a victory. Should East win, the Eagles will pull into a tie with Gerry Schroeder's club.

In the previous meeting between the two, Palmer snatched a 43-42 win in Pueblo to end a six game losing streak. That victory was the one which signaled better days ahead for the Terrors and while it greased a skid toward the bottom for the Eagles who have won only twice since that time.

East has its attack constructed around Rich Hopkins, the fourth best scorer in the SCL and Bill Brown, who ranks 11th. A late comer is Dan Noll, younger brother of Russ Noll who led SCL point - makers the past two seasons. The Terrors did an excellent job of defensing the sometimes - prolific Hopkins the first time around, however, and if they can repeat that success this evening their chances of coming out on top again are good.

Schroeder will go with his usual starting five of Dave Steward and Walt Hylton at forwards, Bobby Joe Williams at center, and Alan Snyder and Jim Lindsey at guards. It will be the final work for seniors Steward and Lindsey.

Wasson will be bidding goodbye to an entire senior starting unit that has represented the school well for two seasons. Included are the Thunderbirds' two outstanding stars, Karl Tait and Darrell Greene who have eclipsed all of the school's individual records. Tait has smashed the one year and career rebounding marks while Greene has already surpassed the single season and career scoring records.

Also seeing their final action will be team captain Vic Shelton and starters Ken Charles and Bob Stanley along with reserve Ron Klopfenstein. The remaining squad members are juniors.

Even tho the fond hopes of the early campaign have been crushed, the Thunderbirds can accomplish one objective with a victory this evening. A Wasson basketball team has never won in Grand Junction and the past two season's losses in the Western Slope city cost the T-Birds possible trips to the state tournament. The Wasson staff would welcome the snapping of that jinx.

In an earlier meeting between the two teams in Colorado Springs, the T-Birds posted their easiest victory of the season, running up a quick 19-2 lead and then coasting to a final 55-28 margin. Even with Junction's past record of upsetting Wasson at home and the Thunderbirds' addiction to disaster this winter, it is doubtful that the Tigers have much chance this evening.

Pioneers, Nodaks Win Hockey Playoff Openers

DENVER (AP) — Denver University defeated Minnesota 3-0 Thursday night in the first game of a two-game series to establish a finalist in Saturday night's Western Collegiate Hockey Association championships.

Both teams played an excellent defensive game. Goalie Rog Groth of Minnesota had 21 saves, nine of them in the last period. DU's Rudy Unis had 14.

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP)—The University of North Dakota, displaying a tough defense and strong goal - tending, dumped Michigan Tech 2-0 Thursday night to take a 2-goal lead in the total-goal two game Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoff.

The first period was scoreless but the Sioux banged home two goals early in the second period and made them stand up.

The teams played a tough third period and were unable to score. Sioux goalie Joe Lech played brilliantly to capture the first Sioux shutout of the season.

14 Teams Have Qualified For 40-Team State Tourney

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The field for the B and C classes of the Colorado High School Basketball Tournament in Denver beginning March 14 will be decided this weekend.

District meets at Springfield, Sugar City, Longmont, Durango, Trinidad, Alamosa, Carbondale and Oak Creek will qualify the winner for the B competition.

The Class C teams will be determined in four district meets at Sterling, Kiowa, Salida and Greeley and in four games between winners in subdistrict tourneys last weekend. They are Vona vs. Wiley, Vilas vs. Rye, Bennett vs. Liberty and Silt vs. Norwood.

Already 14 teams have qualified for the 40-team festivities. They include defending champions Cortez of AA and Brush of A, which holds a string of 38 victories.

Two other 1962 champions, Limon of B and Peetz of C, have advanced to the district qualifying events this weekend.

For the first time in 13 years, Greeley, the 1962 AAA winner, has been eliminated in regular season play in the Northern Conference.

The latest AAA qualifier is Trinidad, which won the South Central League championship by defeating Pueblo Centennial 48-33 to finish with a 12-2 record.

South has wrapped up the Denver Prep League title and an AA berth but five teams have a chance at the runnerup position. Defending champion East and Manual go into this weekend's final games tied for second with 7-6 records. Lincoln, Washington and West are all another game back.

The Northern Conference's final weekend features a bid by Aurora for a share of the league title with Englewood. If Aurora loses Friday night against Fort Morgan and Boulder whips Loveland, Aurora and Boulder will have to play off for the runnerup spot.

The Nothern receives two AA tourney berths this year. If Aurrora and Englewood tie, a coin flip will decide the No. 1 and No. 2 positions for seeding in the state tournament.

Scottsbluff Upsets Trinidad

In the other games, Casper, Wyo., effortlessly downed Lamar, Colo. 91-57, Northeastern of Sterling, Colo., marched past Northwest Community College of Powell, Wyo., 65-52, and Pueblo managed a shaky 81-77 victory over Mesa College of Grand Junction, Colo.

Pueblo will now meet Casper and Scottsbluff plays Northeastern in a doubleheader tonight. The winners will tangle Saturday night for the tournament championship and a berth in the National Junior College Tournament later this month at Hutchinson, Kan.

Losers of tonight's games will meet Saturday night to decide third place.

Casper jumped to an early lead in the final game Thursday night, and never was headed. Freshman Ed Samelton led Casper with 24 points. He was tied for game scoring honors with Gene Williams of the Antelopes. The Thunderbirds held a halftime bulge of 42-23.

Mike Frink, with 27 points, sparked Pueblo, but the Indians' usually high-scoring combo of Sam Moore and Sam Batey managed only a total of 22 points. Moore's action was hindred by a sprained ankle.

Mesa was hampered by the absence of Harry Gilmore, its season-long star, who was absent due to scholastic ineligibility. But reserve George Tellez, sparked a rally when he came in during the second half and managed 11 points.

Nordic Skiers Compete For Olympic Berths

Eighty-four harness drivers won 50 races or more in 1962. A total of 142 reinsmen won more than $50,000 in purse money.

Cassius Clay Wins Poetry Reading Contest in Village

Associated Press Sports Writer

That was a burning question today in Greenwich Village, still rocking from the invasion of Cassius Marcellus Clay, the self-proclaimed next heavyweight champion of the world.

The decision is still out on the poetry reading contest in a Village coffee house, where Clay was pitted against a group of beatnik poets running heavy to beards and drooping black stockings.

Clay invaded a coffee house deep in the wilds of the Village, to read an ode or two and call attention to his 10-round fight next Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden against Doug Jones.

"He will go in six," quoth Cassius, as a warmup.

He made the scene—a dungeon where there are at least 1.4 guitars or every person—at lunch time, just as a collection of beats, sports writers and other social outcasts were devouring a repast of cole slaw and chicken wings off paper plates.

He responded by reading his poem, dedicated to Cassius.

Being a boy with an eye to the future, he wound up this way:

"Marcellus vanquished Carthage, Cassius laid Julius Caesar low,

"Sonny Liston will fall,

"And Cassius Marcellus Clay will be the noblest Roman of them all."

When he finished, there were few dry eyes in the house. It was pretty smoky in there.

Regional College Matmen in Tourney

GREELEY — Wrestlers from thruout the region will converge on the Colorado State College campus here today and Saturday to participate in the First Annual Mountain Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Tournament.

The tourney will be one of the largest collegiate wrestling events ever held in the Rocky Mountain area. Nine schools are scheduled to take part in the meet which is under the sponsorship of the newly-formed MIWA. There are 73 wrestlers taking part.

Sending teams to the meet are the Air Force Academy, Adams State College, Colorado Mines, Colorado State College, Colorado State University, Denver University, Montana State College, Utah State University and Western State College. Wyoming University is a member of the association but will not be able to participate this year due to the first Western Athletic Conference meet being held this weekend.

The new organization, a long time dream of veteran CSC coach John Hancock, became a reality last summer when several schools met to design a plan for the group. Several other schools in addition to the 10 charter members have shown interest in joining the group and it is anticipated that the association will grow to 16 teams next year. A maximum limit of sixteen members has been written into the constitution.

The primary purpose of the MIWA is to give regional wrestlers national recognition and to provide a better method for determining wrestlers who should represent the area in the NCAA championships.

Colorado State College will enter the meet as the favorite to capture the team championship. The Bears have the best dual meet record with 10 wins, one loss and three ties. That record includes a tie with defending NCAA champion Oklahoma State University.

Other teams given a strong chance to contend for the crown are the Air Force Academy, Colorado State University, and Western State.

All but Hollingshead are undefeated. Hollingshead dropped a close decision to Wayne Simons of Oklahoma State University.

The quarterfinal round will open the tournament on this evening at 7 p.m. The semi-finals are Saturday afternoon beginning at 1 p.m. with the championships Saturday evening at 7. All matches will be held in Gunter Hall on the Colorado State College campus.

Pioneers, Nodaks Win Hockey Playoff Openers

DENVER (AP) — Denver University defeated Minnesota 3-0 Thursday night in the first game of a two-game series to establish a finalist in Saturday night's Western Collegiate Hockey Association championships.

Both teams played an excellent defensive game. Goalie Rog Groth of Minnesota had 21 saves, nine of them in the last period. DU's Rudy Unis had 14.

Denver jumped to an early lead at 11 minutes 36 seconds of the first period on a goal by Capt. Marsh Johnston.

Bobby Hamill scored the second goal for DU at 1:11 of the third period. Billy Staub made the final goal on a line drive shot from 35 feet.

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP)— The University of North Dakota, displaying a tough defense and strong goal - tending, dumped Michigan Tech 2-0 Thursday night to take a 2-goal lead in the total-goal two game Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoff.

The first period was scoreless but the Sioux banged home two goals early in the second period and made them stand up.

Wing George Chigol fired the first marker 12 seconds into the period after a wild flurry in front of the Tech cage. He rebounded linemate Wayne Gurba's hard shot from six feet.

The teams played a tough third period and were unable to score. Sioux goalie Joe Lech played brilliantly to capture the first Sioux shutout of the season.

14 Teams Have Qualified For 40-Team State Tourney

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The field for the B and C classes of the Colorado High School Basketball Tournament in Denver beginning March 14 will be decided this weekend.

District meets at Springfield, Sugar City, Longmont, Durango, Trinidad, Alamosa, Carbondale and Oak Creek will qualify the winner for the B competition.

The Class C teams will be determined in four district meets at Sterling, Kiowa, Salida and Greeley and in four games between winners in subdistrict tourneys last weekend. They are Vona vs. Wiley, Vilas vs. Rye, Bennett vs. Liberty and Silt vs. Norwood.

Already 14 teams have qualified for the 40-team festivities. They include defending champions Cortez of AA and Brush of A, which holds a string of 38 victories.

Two other 1962 champions, Limon of B and Peetz of C, have advanced to the district qualifying events this weekend.

For the first time in 13 years, Greeley, the 1962 AAA winner, has been eliminated in regular season play in the Northern Conference.

The latest AAA qualifier is Trinidad, which won the South Central League championship by defeating Pueblo Centennial 48-33 to finish with a 12-2 record.

South has wrapped up the Denver Prep League title and an AA berth but five teams have a chance at the runnerup position. Defending champion East and Manual go into this weekend's final games tied for second with 7-6 records. Lincoln, Washington and West are all another game back.

The Northern Conference's final weekend features a bid by Aurora for a share of the league title with Englewood. If Aurora loses Friday night against Fort Morgan and Boulder whips Loveland, Aurora and Boulder will have to play off for the runnerup spot.

The Nothern receives two AA tourney berths this year. If Aurora and Englewood tie, a coin flip will decide the No. 1 and No. 2 positions for seeding in the state tournament.

Cassius Clay Wins Poetry Reading Contest in Village

Associated Press Sports Writer

That was a burning question today in Greenwich Village, still rocking from the invasion of Cassius Marcellus Clay, the self-proclaimed next heavyweight champion of the world.

The decision is still out on the poetry reading contest in a Village coffee house, where Clay was pitted against a group of beatnik poets running heavy to beards and drooping black stockings.

It appeared to boil down to whether as a fighter Clay is a pretty good poet, or whether as a poet he is a pretty good fighter.

Clay invaded a coffee house deep in the wilds of the Village, to read an ode or two and call attention to his 10-round fight next Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden against Doug Jones.

"This boy likes to mix.

"He will go in six," quoth Cassius, as a warmup.

He made the scene—a dungeon where there are at least 1.4 guitars or every person—at lunch time, just as a collection of beats, sports writers and other social outcasts were devouring a repast of cole slaw and chicken wings off paper plates.

He responded by reading his poem, dedicated to Cassius.

Being a boy with an eye to the future, he wound up this way:

"So when the gong rings and the referee sings out 'The Winner!'

"Sonny Liston will fall.

"And Cassius Marcellus Clay will be the noblest Roman of them all."

When he finished, there were few dry eyes in the house. It was pretty smoky in there.

Regional College Matmen in Tourney

GREELEY — Wrestlers from thruout the region will converge on the Colorado State College campus here today and Saturday to participate in the First Annual Mountain Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Tournament.

The tourney will be one of the largest collegiate wrestling events ever held in the Rocky Mountain area. Nine schools are scheduled to take part in the meet which is under the sponsorship of the newly-formed MIWA. There are 73 wrestlers taking part.

Sending teams to the meet are the Air Force Academy, Adams State College, Colorado Mines, Colorado State College, Colorado State University, Denver University, Montana State College, Utah State University and Western State College. Wyoming University is a member of the association but will not be able to participate this year due to the first Western Athletic Conference meet being held this weekend.

The new organization, a long-time dream of veteran CSC coach John Hancock, became a reality last summer when several schools met to design a plan for the group. Several other schools in addition to the 10 charter members have shown interest in joining the group and it is anticipated that the association will grow to 16 teams next year. A maximum limit of sixteen members has been written into the constitution.

The primary purpose of the MIWA is to give regional wrestlers national recognition and to provide a better method for determining wrestlers who should represent the area in the NCAA championships.

Colorado State College will enter the meet as the favorite to capture the team championship. The Bears have the best dual meet record with 10 wins, one loss and three ties. That record includes a tie with defending NCAA champion Oklahoma State University.

Other teams given a strong chance to contend for the crown are the Air Force Academy, Colorado State University and Western State.

All but Hollingshead are undefeated. Hollingshead dropped a close decision to Wayne Simons of Oklahoma State University.

The quarterfinal round will open the tournament on this evening at 7 p.m. The semi-finals are Saturday afternoon beginning at 1 p.m. with the championships Saturday evening at 7. All matches will be held in Gunter Hall on the Colorado State College campus.

Jerome Harris to Speak At Captain-Sponsor Banquet

Jerome (Whitey) Harris, nationally known professional bowler and instructor, will be the featured speaker at the fifth Annual Captain - Sponsor Banquet scheduled for Saturday at the Antler's Hotel.

A member of the Brunswick Advisory Staff of Champions, Harris will speak on sponsorship and bowling in general. Tickets for the banquet may be purchased at the various bowling alleys in the Colorado Springs area. Reservations must be made no later than midnight tonight. Because of only 475 seats available, ti will be on a first come, first serve basis.

In 30 years of active bowling, Harris has recorded 31 perfect games and won 20 consecutive American Bowling Congress Tournaments. After winning a number of national honors on the Budweiser team of St. Louis, which he was captain, Harris resigned from the team during the 1957-58 season.

Since that time he has rolled exhibition matches in foreign counties including England, Mexico, Puerto Rico, Japan, and Korea. He also bowls in Hawaii and Alaska.

Scottsbluff Upsets Trinidad

In the other games, Casper, Wyo., effortlessly downed Lamar, Colo. 91-57, Northeastern of Sterling, Colo., marched past Northwest Community College of Powell, Wyo., 65-52, and Pueblo managed a shaky 81-77 victory over Mesa College of Grand Junction, Colo.

Pueblo will now meet Casper and Scottsbluff plays Northeastern in a doubleheader tonight. The winners will tangle Saturday night for the tournament championship and a berth in the National Junior College Tournament later this month at Hutchinson, Kan.

Losers of tonight's games will meet Saturday night to decide third place.

Casper jumped to an early lead in the final game Thursday night, and never was headed. Freshman Ed Samelton led Casper with 24 points. He was tied for game scoring honors with Gene Williams of the Antelopes. The Thunderbirds held a halftime bulge of 42-23.

Mike Frink, with 27 points, sparked Pueblo, but the Indians' usually high-scoring combo of Sam Moore and Sam Batey managed only a total of 22 points. Moore's action was hindred by a sprained ankle.

Mesa was hampered by the absence of Harry Gilmore, its season-long star, who was absent due to scholastic ineligibility. But reserve George Tellez, sparked a rally when he came in during the second half and managed 11 points.

Nordic Skiers Compete For Olympic Berths

ANDOVER, Maine (UPI)— North American nordic skiers compete this weekend for berths on the 1964 U.S. Olympic cross country team. The 15- and 30-kilometer cross country events will be contested at the Pineland Ski and Outing Club's annual winter carnival.

Eighty-four harness drivers won 50 races or more in 1962. A total of 142 reinsmen won more than $50,000 in purse money.

How to Keep Well

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

CONSCIOUS RELAXATION

Learn to relax at will. Reciprocal inhibition is a method worth trying when bogged down by tension, anxiety, or fatigue. It is not difficult and is best described as a form of daydreaming for a moment or two to unwind when the going is tough.

Dr. Richard E. Gordon of Bergen, N. J., says the method begins while actually playing, vacationing, or relaxing in other ways. The individual fixes his mind on any pleasant scene or comfortable bodily sensation that occurs during these intervals. For one person, it might be reclining under a palm tree with a good book or a tall, cool drink; for others, sitting comfortably in a train riding along the Hudson river or through the Rocky mountains.

At any rate, at this enjoyable time, the individual concentrates so as to retain a lasting picture of himself under these relaxing situations. It is possible with practice to recall these images consciously, when they are needed most. The feelings that go along with the image must be included.

The harassed housewife can sit down for a moment and recall the joys of watching the full moon rise over the water while sitting on a swing on the porch of a cabin at the lake. The laborer may stop to think about a pleasant or rewarding incident during the last fishing or camping trip.

The executive will be helped by dwelling on his week in Puerto Rico, away from the phone and responsibilities. These refreshing breaks may add years of good health and longer life to all who indulge in them.

According to Dr. Gordon, reciprocal inhibition is the opposite of what many people have learned to do in the past when confronted with stress situations. The natural reaction is to tense up, rise to the occasion, and get the job done. The new plan eases the effects of unavoidable stress by encouraging a few minutes of relaxation while dealing with the problems at hand.

Heredity A Factor

Anxious writes: What is your opinion of a 21 year old girl, who has had rheumatic fever, marrying a 23 year old man who has had the disease four times? What are the chances that the children will suffer from the disease?

Reply

Heredity is a factor in rheumatic fever and the offspring have an increased chance of developing the disease when both parents are affected.

Skin Scraping

E. Y. writes: Can you explain dermabrasion?

Reply

Removal of the upper layers of the skin, which usually is done because of unsightly blemishes, may be performed mechanically with sandpaper or a wire brush. Chemical skin abrasion is employed occasionally but may leave the skin more unsightly than before.

The harassed housewife can sit down for a moment and recall the joys of watching the full moon rise over the water while sitting on a swing on the porch of a cabin at the lake. The laborer may stop to think about a pleasant or rewarding incident during the last fishing or camping trip.

The executive will be helped by dwelling on his week in Puerto Rico, away from the phone and responsibilities. These refreshing breaks may add years of good health and longer life to all who indulge in them.

According to Dr. Gordon, reciprocal inhibition is the opposite of what many people have learned to do in the past when confronted with stress situations. The natural reaction is to tense up, rise to the occasion, and get the job done. The new plan eases the effects of unavoidable stress by encouraging a few minutes of relaxation while dealing with the problems at hand.

Heredity A Factor

Anxious writes: What is your opinion of a 21 year old girl, who has had rheumatic fever, marrying a 23 year old man who has had the disease four times? What are the chances that the children will suffer from the disease?

Reply

Heredity is a factor in rheumatic fever and the offspring have an increased chance of developing the disease when both parents are affected.

Skin Scraping

E. Y. writes: Can you explain dermabrasion?

Reply

Removal of the upper layers of the skin, which usually is done because of unsightly blemishes, may be performed mechanically with sandpaper or a wire brush. Chemical skin abrasion is employed occasionally but may leave the skin more unsightly than before.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♡	1 NT
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♠

Had it not been for the alertness of West in today's hand, the declarer would have scored an overtrick in his three no trump contract instead of succumbing to a two trick setback.

East opened the bidding in third position with one heart, and South, who could see little advantage in trapping with the vulnerability conditions as they were, overcalled with one no trump. North's raise to two no trump holding six high card points is a reasonable speculation because of his excellent diamond suit which is close to being established.

In view of the fact that the opposition appeared to be well heeled in partner's suit, West decided to launch his attack in a new direction, so he opened the five of spades. East put up the king which was permitted to hold, and when he continued with the nine declarer ducked once more. West was in with the jack of spades and a third round cleared the suit.

South observed that his diamond holding was quite solid, but that there was a slight communication problem with the dummy. If he could gain access to the North hand via the club suit, it would not only permit him to run the diamonds, but would also give him his ninth trick.

Accordingly, he cashed the top diamond honors in his own hand and followed up by leading the jack of clubs. West cautiously refrained from covering and the jack was permitted to hold the trick. Frustrated in his initial attempt, declarer played the five of clubs next, intending to put in North's nine.

West was on the alert and, seeing that South might be able to dislodge East's ace of clubs without using up the dummy's king, he now sacrificed his own club queen in an attempt to sever the opponents' lines of communications once and for all. The effect of his play was devastating. South was obliged to play the king of clubs from dummy which East took with the ace, but on the club return declarer's ten of clubs topped North's nine and South was right back where he started —in his own hand.

The declarer fought out the remainder of the contest single handed, and the defenders wound up taking two tricks each in spades, hearts and clubs to defeat the contract.

Editor Says He Helped at Bay Of Pigs Fight

CHICAGO (UPI) — An Alabama pilot and editor said today he was one of 18 American airmen who "responded to a personal invitation" to take part in the Cuban Bay of Pigs invasion.

Albert C. Persons, in a dispatch in Chicago's American, said Cuban dictator Fidel Castro had 48 hours' advance notice of the invasion and was thus "allowed all the time he needed to successfuly disperse aircraft, tanks and troops."

The American, in a separate story, named Brig. Gen. G. Reid Doster of the Alabama Air Guard as the man in charge of tactical air operations in the invasion. The newspaper said Doster was identified as tactical air chief by retired Maj. Gen. David W. Hutchinson of Oklahoma City.

Doster, the American said, referred the newspaper to Persons, 47, a former World War II pilot and now managing editor of the weekly Birmingham Examiner.

Persons, in a dispatch bannered in today's American, said the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) was not to blame for the Bay of Pigs fiasco and "has been forced to accept the scape goat role in silence.

Defense Is Improved At Guantanamo Base

NEW YORK (AP)—Rear Adm. Peter Corradi said Thursday the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, is better defended now than it ever has been.

Corradi, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks, told a convention of the Associated General Contractors that "800 workers have been working like mad since the Cuban crisis began."

He said that, with most Cuban laborers cut off from the base, the work has been done by Navy Seabees, helped by civilian labor from Jamaica, Panama and the United States.

The admiral reported that shallow wells had been sunk to assure an adequate supply of water.

Average Male Will Be Losing More of Hearing

"What's the matter with you?" she cries in exasperation. "Why don't you answer me?"

"Well, why don't you speak up?" he retorts, not aware yet that people, especially females with high-pitched voices, will have to talk a little louder from now on for him to hear them as well.

And, studies by a St. Louis psychologist indicate, the average male will lose more of his hearing at about age 50 and suffer a third drop in hearing acuity when he reaches the 59-65 age bracket.

Dr. John F. Corso, Ph. D., drew his conclusions on hearing loss with advancing age from a study of 912 men and women who had been exposed to a minimum of industrial noise and were presumed to have normal hearing.

Writing in the current Archives of Environmental Health, published by the American Medical Association, he said a diminution in hearing acuity becomes noticable in men at age 32 and in women at age 37.

Marked changes in the hearing of men, he said, occur on the average in steps of about 15 years. In women, he added, the changes are more gradual, with deterioration fairly uniform.

The greatest hearing losses in men and women in later age groups occur for sounds between 4,000 and 6,000 vibrations a second. These are very high notes. The frequencies on a piano range from 27 vibrations a second for the lowest note to 4,000 for the highest.

Defense Is Improved At Guantanamo Base

NEW YORK (AP)—Rear Adm. Peter Corradi said Thursday the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, is better defended now than it ever has been.

Corradi, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks, told a convention of the Associated General Contractors that "800 workers have been working like mad since the Cuban crisis began."

He said that, with most Cuban laborers cut off from the base, the work has been done by Navy Seabees, helped by civilian labor from Jamaica, Panama and the United States.

The admiral reported that shallow wells had been sunk to assure an adequate supply of water.

Average Male Will Be Losing More of Hearing

"What's the matter with you?" she cries in exasperation. "Why don't you answer me?"

"Well, why don't you speak up?" he retorts, not aware yet that people, especially females with high-pitched voices, will have to talk a little louder from now on for him to hear them as well.

And, studies by a St. Louis psychologist indicate, the average male will lose more of his hearing at about age 50 and suffer a third drop in hearing acuity when he reaches the 59-65 age bracket.

Dr. John F. Corso, Ph. D., drew his conclusions on hearing loss with advancing age from a study of 912 men and women who had been exposed to a minimum of industrial noise and were presumed to have normal hearing.

Writing in the current Archives of Environmental Health, published by the American Medical Association, he said a diminution in hearing acuity becomes noticable in men at age 32 and in women at age 37.

Marked changes in the hearing of men, he said, occur on the average in steps of about 15 years. In women, he added, the changes are more gradual, with deterioration fairly uniform.

The greatest hearing losses in men and women in later age groups occur for sounds between 4,000 and 6,000 vibrations a second. These are very high notes. The frequencies on a piano range from 27 vibrations a second for the lowest note to 4,000 for the highest.

BOX OFFICE UP

WELCOME, DR. CASEY! HAVE YOU COME TO PRAISE ME OR BURY ME?
YOU DON'T NEED PRAISE FROM ME, BUT I DO ADMIRE YOUR UNSELFISHNESS IN ABANDONING YOUR ACTING CAREER.
DO YOU SERIOUSLY BELIEVE I'VE SACRIFICED ANYTHING? I'VE ALWAYS BEEN A FIRST CLASS HAM, A MEDIOCRE ACTOR WHO SHONE ONLY IN MY WIFE'S REFLECTED LUSTER.
ENOUGH! THIS POOR PLAYER HAS STRUTTED HIS HOUR UPON THE STAGE, AND WILL BE HEARD NO MORE. THE PLAY HAS ENDED, DR. CASEY.

WELCOME, DR. CASEY! HAVE YOU COME TO PRAISE ME OR BURY ME?
YOU DON'T NEED PRAISE FROM ME, BUT I DO ADMIRE YOUR UNSELFISHNESS IN ABANDONING YOUR ACTING CAREER.
DO YOU SERIOUSLY BELIEVE I'VE SACRIFICED ANYTHING? I'VE ALWAYS BEEN A FIRST CLASS HAM, A MEDIOCRE ACTOR WHO SHONE ONLY IN MY WIFE'S REFLECTED LUSTER.
ENOUGH! THIS POOR PLAYER HAS STRUTTED HIS HOUR UPON THE STAGE, AND WILL BE HEARD NO MORE. THE PLAY HAS ENDED, DR. CASEY.

Cabbie Given $1,000 Bill for Short Fare

NEW YORK (AP)—Taxi driver Harry Kuester picked up a man about 2 a.m. in the Bronx and drove him about eight blocks Wednesday.

The passenger, smartly dressed in a camel's hair coat and gray fedora, handed Kuester what the latter thought was a $10 bill for the 40-cent ride.

The passenger left the cab without waiting for change.

"I called him back, telling him he had change coming," said Kuester.

The man waved his hand and told him to keep the change, Kuester said.

Later, Kuester, 45, discovered it was a $1,000 bill.

He discussed the situation with is wife, Elsie, thought it over all day, telephoned his mother, Lillian. "We decided to go to the police," Kuester said.

Police will check to determine whether it is part of the proceeds from a crime. If not, and if no one claims it, it will be returned to Kuester, who has three children.

After he turned over the bill, he said:

"It was the most beautiful thing I ever saw."

Hunting and Fishing

By DICK MOORE

Ducks and geese observed during the midwinter survey in the Central Flyway showed encouraging signs that the curtailed season of 1962 had served its purpose in preserving waterfowl breeding stock. Observers reported 15 per cent more waterfowl observed this winter than in 1962, the Department of the Interior announced.

Ducks observed in the United States portion of the Flyway were up 23 per cent compared with 1962, but still almost 18 per cent below the long - term average. Mallards, the preferred duck for most Central Flyway hunters, tallied 14 per cent over 1962; however, this is still 26 per cent below the average number observed during the past eight years.

More pintails were recorded in the Central Flyway during this survey, but the total seen was 40 per cent below the long-term average. The closed hunting season on redheads the past few years has helped to slow or stop their decline. Their tally was 30 per cent below the long - term average, but almost the same as last year. The Central Flyway winters a major portion of the continent's redheads, with most of them being found in Laguna Madre on Texas' Gulf Coast and in the Tamaulipas Lagoon of Old Mexico.

More geese were observed this year. The snow and blue geese tallies were up 72 per cent over 1962 and up 23 per cent over the long - term average, white-fronted geese were also observed in increased numbers.

Twice as many waterfowl were recorded in New Mexico, Oklahoma, and North Dakota by the 1963 survey as in 1962. In Montana 19 per cent more waterfowl were observed, while fewer waterfowl were seen in South Dakota, Wyoming, Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas, and Texas.

The annual midwinter survey was carried out by 309 observers in the Central Flyway. They flew 21,668 miles in 30 aircraft and traveled another 25,620 miles by car, boat, and even snowplane.

The survey crews continued the continental coverage by surveying wintering waterfowl down the east coast of Mexico to the tip of Yucatan and west toward the center of the Mexican Republic thru Torreon, Durango, and then north to Juarez.

In reporting on the Central Flyway count the Department explained that the mid - winter survey is made to gain information about winter habitat conditions and to gather data on long-term waterfowl trends. Because observers tally only what they see and at times all waterfowl present are not visible, it is not possible to make an actual count of all the water fowl in the Flyway.

Over several years, however, the data does provide a general picture of trends. For most of the geese the midwinter survey is a reliable head count.

The department also pointed out that the midwinter survey data does not have a direct cause and effect relationship with the annual waterfowl hunting regulations, but that the survey was only one of several sets of information used in establishing hunting regulations each year.

The extensive survey covers the main waterfowl wintering areas of Mexico and Canada and all of the states except Alaska. The entire job must be completed quickly to guard against duplicate counts of birds that may move from one area to another because of weather changes.

On the first day of the survey hundreds of waterfowl observers in the United States, Canada, and Mexico climb into cars, boats, and airplanes to see how many waterfowl of each species can be observed in the assigned areas. Men and equipment from the Fish and Wildlife Service, fish and game departments of the Canadian provinces, and private organizations all cooperate in carrying out this important survey.

The mild winter in progress thruout the state is leaving Colorado's game in fine shape, informs Wayne Sandfort, chief of game research for the Colorado Game and Fish Department.

"We are having a winter that is causing generally less stress on our game species than that normally experienced," reports Sandfort. "Snowfall has been low thruout the state and this has helped animals withstand exceptionally low periods of temperature —particularly those that have occurred in western Colorado."

Winter inventories of elk and the special elk season show that the state's elk are in fine shape. Sandfort said counts run in mid-February show an exchange of elk between the Williams Fork and the main White River, indicating that the elk in this area are wintering at much higher elevations.

Deer also are doing well during the mild winter, tho there have been reports of some animals ni poor condition on the Uncompahgre Plateau. This is probably due to the long period of extreme cold experienced there in January.

Pilot Norm Hughes has reported counting 434 antelope on a flight in the Northeast Region. He said all the animals were in fine shape.

According to Wildlife Statistician Jack Grieb, waterfowl are wintering well all over, as there has been no snow to cover feed.

Pheasants are in excellent shape, according to Grieb. He says there was a small loss from suffocation during one of the early January storms, but this was insignificant in view of the condition of the entire pheasant population.

Sadfort ad Wetesnnrn Slopei

Sandfort said Western Slope turkeys may be experiencing some stress in certain areas due to a scarcity of food. But he said the populations are probably all right. Scaled quail, bobwhite quail, prairie chickens and sharp-tailed grouse are all doing well this winter.

Concludes Sandfort, "We are presently in good shape on winter game conditions and should experience no abnormal losses at this late date. There is, however, some concern that low snow pack will adversely affect moisture, range and general food conditions for game during the forthcoming seasons."

The Game Management Division of the Colorado Game and Fish Department reports that the total elk kill for 1962 was 10,353. This is 1390 less than the 11,743 elk killed during the 1961 big game season.

Game Management Unit 24 in the White River area had the highest elk kill in the state with 618 taken from there. 438 of this total were bulls, the remainder being 161 cows and 19 calves.

Residents took 8,033 of the 10,353 elk killed during the 1962 season, while nonresidents accounted for the remaining 2320 elk.

Socialist Proposes World Disarmament

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI)—Norman Thomas, widely known American socialist, said Wednesday night disarmament was one of four essentials for maintaining peace in the world.

Three other essentials, he said, were strengthening of "international machinery," especially through the UN; waging of a "holy war" against poverty, depression and illiteracy in the world's new nations, and an abatement of crises in such trouble areas as Cuba and Berlin.

Thomas, who six times sought the presidency on the Socialist ticket, addressed more than 600 students, faculty members and citizens at Colorado State University.
